Midwest Slips, Slides on a Giant Ice Sheet

Pea Soup Fog Adds To Peril

New England At Coldest

When Midwesterners weren't cracking their shins and breaking their bones on the glazed sidewalks, they were groping through dense, zero-visibility fog.

From Kansas to Ohio, freezing rain and drizzle laid down an ice cover which crippled cities, closed schools, and made driving a daredevil feat. Warm Gulf air created the pea-soup fog.

The East was scheduled to hit the skids Monday night. Meanwhile, New England froze in its coldest weather of the season — a 34-below reading at Newport, Vt.

Colorado battled not only ice and fog, but snows up to 16 inches deep which closed one mountain pass and packed all the others with snow. Travel without chains was impossible over the Sierra Mountains from Reno, Nev., to California.

The ice belt stretched from Kansas through parts of Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. Travel was so dangerous that the weather bureau urged: "All except urgent travel should be abandoned . . ."

Illinois had already counted three traffic deaths blamed on the ice and Iowa one.

Chicago, Detroit, Kansas City and St. Louis were among the larger Midwest population centers afflicted by the ice storm.

Congress Building Firm Hit

2nd Big Gem Haul Nets $250,000

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

Two "gentlemen" gunmen looted a downtown Miami diamond company of an estimated $250,000 in jewels late Monday in the second major gem theft here in two days.

Five members of the Al Levinson Co. said the two bandits scooped the jewels into a bag, peeled off their white gloves and rode the elevator eight floors to safety in the crowded streets below the downtown Congress Building, 111 NE Second Ave.

The big haul came just about 24 hours after a room prowler snatched $400,000 in gems from a swank eighth-floor Americana Hotel suite Sunday in Bal Harbour.

According to owner Al Levinson, Monday's robbers bound their five victims and made them lie on the floor during the 15-minute operation. But they courteously left behind a ring worn by one of the company's employes.

Levinson said one of the gunmen asked Employe Irving Getz if his ring was insured. Getz said no, and the gunman replied: "Well, you keep it then."

Jack M. Werst, one of the firm's officers, said he thought they wouldn't take personal rings if they thought the jewelry could be traced. So he told them his ring was insured. They took it.

But the big haul came from the company's wide-open safe. The thieves simply reached in and dumped tray after tray of gems into their bag, Levinson said.

Most of the jewelry was diamonds — some of it mounted, some not. It would have sold retail for $500,000, Levinson said.

According to Levinson, the first of the bandits entered the office shortly after 3 p.m. Levinson said he recognized him as the man who had purchased a $1,800 ring for cash from the same office three days before.

Before Levinson could get too friendly with his cash "customer," a nattily dressed accomplice bustled into the three-room suite. Both men then pulled .45 caliber automatics, Levinson said.

After binding the five victims and selecting what personal jewelry they wanted, the bandits worked quickly and efficiently, cleaning out the company's entire new gem shipment.

"That's close to a half-million retail," said Bud Levinson, the owner's son — who was also robbed. The fifth victim was Joseph Bickel, another company officer.

The jewelers said it took them about five minutes to free themselves from their adhesive tape bounds after the bandits calmly left the office.

Levinson said the loss was about "70 or 80 per cent insured."

2½-Billion Aid Offered Schools

WASHINGTON — UPI) — The Eisenhower administration Monday proposed a new program of aid to communities and colleges which cannot afford needed new construction.

The long-range aid program would cost the federal government an estimated 2½ billion dollars over a 25-year period. Details of draft bills were outlined to newsmen by Secretary Arthur S. Flemming of the Health, Welfare and Education Department.

He said the plan was "consistent with the fiscal policies of this administration." He said it could be handled within the framework of President Eisenhower's narrowly balanced 77-billion-dollar 1960 budget and will require no cash payments in fiscal 1960.

Under the proposed program for elementary and high school construction, the federal government would agree to pay principal and interest on new school construction bonds on a 50-50 matching basis with the states.

Flemming said the maximum annual federal payment on elementary and high school bonds would be 85 million dollars and the aggregate potential cost would be about two billion dollars over approximately 25 years.

The program, Flemming said, would be available only to communities which lack the resources to finance their own classroom needs.

The plan would be in effect for new construction started in the next five years. Flemming said it would cover up to three billion dollars worth of construction of elementary and high school buildings.

Under the program for college classrooms and housing, the federal government would put up an annual payment of 25 million dollars to retire debts.

The federal government would annually advance half of the funds required by needy local school districts to pay the principal and interest charges on bonds issued by the districts to finance school construction projects, if the states in which such districts are located undertake to put up the remaining half of the payments.

Collins Met Johnson in Race Talk

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— The governor's office disclosed Monday LeRoy Collins had a face-to-face meeting with Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas a week ago on Collins' plan that Congress set up a federal-state commission to deal with the school racial crisis.

William Durden, executive assistant to the governor, said Collins flew to Washington in response to a phone call from Johnson.

Durden confirmed that the Collins' plan was the subject of their discussions, but said any details of the Collins-Johnson meeting must come from Collins or the Texas senator.

Both Collins and Johnson, the Senate majority leader, are regarded as moderates on the racial question. Johnson was a non-signer of the Southern Manifesto of 1956 which all Florida congressmen and senators except Rep. Dante Fascell of Miami signed.

Recently, Collins told his news conference he had written Johnson about his plan and asked an opportunity to discuss it with him. Johnson telephoned Collins about two weeks ago and the Washington conference on Jan. 31 resulted.

Collins has proposed that Congress provide for a commission from each state, appointed by the president with approval of the governor of the state.

Herter Is Left In Charge

Secretary Needs Hernia Operation

By FELIX BELAIR JR.
The New York Times Service

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles took an indefinite leave of absence Monday to have an operation for a hernia condition and to complete his recovery from an intestinal disorder.

In a letter to President Eisenhower, which was made public immediately by the White House, the secretary asked permission to turn over his duties to Undersecretary Christian A. Herter or, in his absence, to Undersecretary C. Douglas Dillon "for a short time."

The secretary told the President in his letter that he "would expect, after a few weeks, to resume fully the duties of the office." James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, added to this that "there is no sign whatsoever of anything malignant" in connection with the secretary's decision to undergo surgery at this time.

Dulles underwent a successful operation for a cancerous colon lesion in December 1956. Last December he was again hospitalized with diverticulitis, an inflammation of the colon, but his doctors reported that there had been no recurrence of the malignancy at that time.

Secretary Dulles' letter to the President read:

"I should like your permission to turn over to Undersecretary Herter, or in his absence, to Undersecretary Dillon, the duties of secretary of state for a short period.

"My doctors advise that I should have an operation for a recently developed hernia; and I have not wholly thrown off the effects of the inflammation of the colon which occurred last December.

"I should accordingly like to devote a few weeks to physical recuperation, and also have some time when, free from other responsibilities, I could concentrate on the complicated and grave problems raised by the Soviet threats regarding Berlin and the Allied response thereto.

"I would be available for consultation with you and my associates and would expect, after a few weeks, to resume fully the duties of the office."

Faithfully yours,
John Foster Dulles"

Dulles' Illness Causes Dilemma

Dulles' Trip Paid Off . 7A
Who Herter Is 7A

By JAMES RESTON
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON—Two things about Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' illness are worrying officials here, one personal and the other organizational.

RESTON

The personal problem is not primarily the necessity for a hernia operation but the fact that last year's attack of diverticulitis (inflammation of the colon) has not cleared up.

The organizational problem is that under the leave of absence outlined by the secretary of state and accepted by President Eisenhower, Dulles will neither be in his job nor out for the temporary period of his illness.

On the personal side, the outlook is uncertain. This is Dulles' third illness in a little over two years and he is now 70.

In addition, Dulles fell out of the upper berth of a new military jet airliner late last summer en route back to the U.S. from Formosa and hurt his back.

Even after a rest in Jamaica last year, he was again talking to his associates here about the same digestive distress and this is what is clearly worrying his doctors and associates now.

When Dulles was asked last month about a report that his health had not been fully restored, he dodged the question, but assured his questioner that he will quit the moment he feels he cannot meet the responsibilities of his job.

What he has done now is to follow the principle proposed by the President himself to deal with the possibility of presidential disability.

Dulles has said, in effect, that for the time being he is unable to meet his full responsibilities and therefore would like to turn them over temporarily to Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter, with the understanding that he will get them back.

Dulles has, however, suggest-

Conductor Sevitzky To Sub for Bitter

Dr. Fabien Sevitzky, noted conductor who has been hopping around three continents trying to meet the demand for his services, decided Monday to settle down for a while.

He agreed to lead the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra next season.

UM President Jay F. W. Pearson said Monday that Dr. Sevitzky, 65, will take over for Dean John Bitter, who has been granted a year's leave of absence.

The Russian-born Sevitzky, a warm and vital personality got his first job in this country as a double-bass player under Leopold Stokowski in the Philadelphia orchestra.

For 18 years he directed the Indianapolis Symphony. He spends most of his time now commuting between the U.S., Europe and South America, as guest conductor for major orchestras.

He conducted the last of a series of concerts by the orchestra here this week. Miami audiences have given him standing ovations since his first appearance about a year ago.

Dr. Sevitzky

"It's good to be back in Miami," he said when he arrived here recently. "I'm a little tired of traveling."

Last year at a concert, he wore a shirt he designed and had made for easy do-it-yourself rinsing.

"I can just dunk it in suds after each concert," said the bespectacled conductor. "It's dry in a minute. No ironing, and looks like a regular stiff shirt."

Car Lights Faded and We Rose Into Darkness

By ROSEMARY MUDIE

The take-off of our balloon from Tenerife Island in our attempt to span the Atlantic was a nightmare come to life.

We had picked the Canary Islands, which lie about 60 miles off the African coast, as the best launching place on the advice of meteorologists. It was a sheer coincidence that from this same island Columbus set out in 1492 on his first voyage to the New World, but we thought it augured well for our own expedition.

El Globo, as the natives called "The Small World," was the No. 1 topic of conversation among the islanders. From the moment of our first appearance there we had a swarm of well-wishers and helpers around our launching site on Playa de la Tejita beach, near the tiny fishing town of El Medano.

A huge ground sheet had been spread out so that the balloon would not be punctured by sharp bits of debris and then the deflated 46-foot canopy itself was spread on top of it. The net was in place over it and firmly anchored with sand bags. Nearby in an orderly pile were the 690 cylinders of hydrogen gas for the four hour inflation job. Now we were waiting on the weather.

The sea trip down from Southampton was on a ship that obviously was more accustomed to carrying bananas than balloons. We were grateful for the free ride they gave us for though we were dealing with a lighter-than-air vehicle, our equipment weighed 45 tons!

Up, Up and Away!

Rosemary Mudie, the lone woman member of the daring expedition in the balloon "The Small World," the year's most thrilling true adventure story, today brings her first-person narrative to the take-off. This is the first publication of the full account of the perilous venture.

The Hairdresser Does His Share

After all the launching preparations were completed, I decided that there was still one thing for me to do personally — I had my hair done.

It turned out to be quite an experience for the shop became crowded with people who wanted to see the woman who was going on "El Globo." I was told later that some of them were comparing me with Manolete, the Spanish bullfighter, as the arch-symbol of bravery, which was the purest nonsense.

When the hairdresser was finished, he refused to accept any money, indicating that this was his contribution to our flight. Little did I reckon that it would be five weeks before I could have my hair done again and that three of those weeks would be spent at sea in an open boat. I left his shop knowing how a celebrity feels, and I must say that I enjoyed it.

"All right, boys and girls, we're going this time!" Bushy Eiloart said. It was just after one a.m. Thursday morning, Dec. 11, when our now-qualified balloon pilot made this decision.

We welcomed the decision after the more than a week of parties mixed with the long wait for the right weather. A beacon was lit on a nearby hill to call the volunteer motorists

Florida Official Accepted Printers' Favors

By JOHN BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE—A top employee of the Florida Department of Agriculture said Monday that he has accepted favors from printers, but said they had not influenced his handling of printing bids for the department.

Jack Shoemaker, director of the department's bureau of immigration, which distributes several publications on Florida, said he received some free personal photographic work from Granger Studio and Printing Co. of Tallahassee after the firm got a state job.

And he said he was a guest at several fishing parties aboard the boat of Charles Rosenberg, president of Rose Printing Co., Tallahassee, and other firms.

Shoemaker explained that he asked Granger to submit a bill for personal family photographs made for him but that he never received the bill.

He said the had been invited by the Rose Printing Co. sales manager to go on fishing trips and "considered it personal business since it was on my own time."

Forrest Granger of the printing firm said he couldn't recall any conversation about a bill and considered the matter closed when the estimated 17 dollars worth of photos was delivered. He said his small firm does only a small amount of state business.

Of $319,000 spent by the agriculture department, Rose Co. and affiliates got $100,000 of business. They got $61,000 of the $130,000 worth of printing business supervised by Shoemaker.

Shoemaker handled publication of the agriculture department's 71-page biennial report recently which cost $1.31 a page. Rose got the bid for the color-splashed job.

Shoemaker said he called for the use of color, in spite of added cost, because he felt it would make the report more attractive. He ordered 1,000 copies.

Shoemaker said he heard rumors "that some printers were getting together on prices" before submitting bids on state jobs, but he said he didn't hear them identified.

He said he submits a standard bid form to five printers for sealed bids on jobs for the immigration bureau. In many cases, he said, bidding is limited to Tallahassee printers because of deadline and proofreading problems.

The immigration bureau is mainly charged with supplying information on Florida agriculture and promoting various phases of the industry.

A legislative committee headed by Sen. Tom Adams of Orange Park recently asserted that some bureau publications duplicate promotional projects of the Florida Development Commission.

Some out-of-town printers have complained they aren't getting a fair shake from state agencies in the doling out of printing jobs.

Rep. John E. Mathews Jr. of Jacksonville has called for a legislative probe of printing costs and for legislation to put printing under supervision of the state purchasing commission.

Gov. LeRoy Collins has said he will support Mathews and will make another attempt to put printing under central purchasing. His effort to do so in the 1957 legislative session was unsuccessful.

U.S. Slaps Limits On Electra Landings, Hikes Cloud Ceiling

NEW YORK — (AP) — The federal government Monday limited bad weather landings by the new Electra jet-prop airliners. The safety restrictions—expected to be only temporary—followed last week's East River crash that cost 65 lives.

Nationally, for the time being, the cloud ceilings for such flights were raised 600 feet and visibility requirements doubled. This is intended to give pilots more leeway in landings when they come off instruments and into open weather.

"We're happy to cooperate," said a spokesman for American Airlines, whose Electra Flight 320 crashed into the river Tuesday night when it undershot LaGuardia Field. There were only eight survivors of the disaster.

American is hopeful that the restrictions — which also apply to Electra jet-props flown by Eastern Airlines— will be short-lived. Eastern, in directing compliance with the restrictions, spoke of "a temporary restriction of not more than three days."

An EAL official in Miami said the airline plans to keep its 16 Electras on schedule under the new limits whenever weather permits.

However, he commented, "this makes it more difficult to operate in weather that's marginal."

Eastern noted it has a precautionary rule of its own involving new-type planes, allowing pilots during their first 50 hours of flying them to land only when visibility is a half mile greater and the ceiling 200 feet higher than required.

The new safety limits were set by the Federal Aviation Agency, the new over-all government regulatory agency for commercial air operations. The FAA said:

"The restrictions are temporary, voluntary on the part of the airlines, and the airlines have accepted the restrictions so that the order is in force now."

The FAA is directing the intensive investigation now under way into the Feb. 3 East River crash. Thus far, there has been no indication as to why the plane plunged into the river in bad weather just short of LaGuardia.

If it eventually is determined that weather was not a factor in the disaster, the new restrictions presumably will be softened or removed. The FAA said they will remain in effect while the probe is going on.

Eastern Airlines was the first to put the 68-passenger Lockheed Electra into service early this year. American put them on its Chicago-New York run Jan. 23. Eleven other lines have the plane on order.

ed one qualification. This is that he should be available for consultation, presumably by the President and by Herter and Deputy Undersecretary of State Douglas Dillon. And it is this qualification that was causing some questions in the capital Monday night.

This creates some doubt as to who would perform the central duty of being the President's principal adviser at a critical point in the formation of U.S. foreign policy.

Herter is one of the most experienced Americans in the field of foreign policy. But there is some reason for believing that his views do not coincide precisely with Dulles' views on some questions, specifically on the question of U.S. German policy.

This, of course, is paramount at the moment. And with the Big Four powers already preparing for a foreign ministers meeting in May, this could cause some embarrassment.

For example, while Dulles proposes to turn over his duties temporarily to Herter, he also proposed that he should concentrate during his convalescence on preparing U.S. policy on Germany.

This indicates the dilemma:

On the one hand, Dulles seems to be passing his responsibilities temporarily to Herter as acting-secretary. But on the other hand he appears to be holding on to the task of advising the President as to what should be done in the formulation of U.S. policy on the unification of Germany and the political organization of Europe.

Fortunately, Dulles has just completed a trip to London, Paris and Bonn for the purpose of clarifying and unifying allied policy on the Berlin question.

Presumably he now has a better idea of the differences between the Allies on what should be done if the Communists attempt to block the passage of Western supplies into the free city of West Berlin, but differences do exist still particularly over the question of whether, in an extremity, the Allies should use military force on the ground to force a land convoy into the former German capital.

Dulles himself has been extremely firm on this point. He has felt all along that any effort by the Communists to use force to interfere with the supply of West Berlin should be met, not by an Allied airlift as in 1949 during the Communist blockade of that city but by an armed convoy.

Indeed, Dulles has been more firm on this point than any other official in the Western world, including many people in his own government and perhaps even including the President himself.

Thus, while the expectation here is that Dulles will be back before any major decision has to be taken on this questions, it illustrates the dangers of divided authority and advice.

This kind of problem, of course, has happened before. There have been presidents who have been their own secretaries of state (Franklin Roosevelt at the time of Secretary of State Edward Stettinius) and undersecretaries of state who have had more authority at the White House for some periods of time than the secretary of state (Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles) but the Eisenhower system is quite different.

The President delegates a great deal of authority in the field of foreign affairs to Secretary Dulles, who is not only chief presidential adviser in this field but principal foreign policy negotiator as well.

If he does indeed return to assume full responsibility for the conduct of foreign policy in the Department of State within "a few weeks" there is no reason to expect that this illness will be any more of a problem than the last two.

Nevertheless there was a sense of uneasiness in the capital Monday night partly because the man who has been the chief architect of U.S. foreign policy over the last six years is incapacitated for the third time in a little over two years.

But the uneasiness is also because the temporary organization he has proposed seems to give Herter responsibility without full authority.

The Winds Grew, Foiled Takeoff

"I've just read the latest meteorological report," he continued, "and it shows light to medium northeasterly winds constant for more than 500 miles west. We better take advantage of it."

But to our bitter disappointment it was not to be so. The wind grew in violence and shifted so we had to abandon the plans for takeoff. By now we were all becoming a bit irritable and peevish. This was the second night we had stood by at action stations only to be forced to scrub the takeoff. The tension and lack of sleep were beginning to take their toll of our nerves.

We wouldn't have been so disappointed then if we had been able to be sure that just 24 hours later we would be successfully airborne and off on our adventure. By eight o'clock that evening, we realized with growing excitement that the wind was dropping and if it continued we would have a chance to get off.

Bushy ordered that the balloon be inflated but at nine o'clock the work stopped because the wind had not dropped. We had reached the point where it was dangerous to inflate any more. My husband Colin and I went back to our tent to catch a nap while Bushy and his son Tim elected to sleep in the care of "The Small World."

Autos' Headlights Showed the Way

At 11 o'clock we were awakened by the whine of the gas cylinders inflating the balloon again. We realized that Wing Commander Ralph Booth, the head of our launching crew and the former captain of the dirigible R-100, had decided we might be able to make it after all.

Even then, as we approached the balloon, they were fixing the load ring, from which our car was suspended, to the neck of the canopy.

Wearing our blue two-piece flying suits, we four climbed aboard the car. The autos, which were formed in a semicircle about us, had turned on their headlamps to give us light to work by for it was a pitch-black night.

Speed would be needed in untying the sandbags from the balloon net as the wind hadn't dropped as much as we had hoped. Unfortunately, our launching crew was a multilingual one made up of our friends from England and the Spanish volunteers from the island.

Bushy was running around the car giving instructions about the launching bags and shouting out in exasperation every once in a while: "Tell them in Spanish somebody, tell them in Spanish!"

Colin and I were methodically lining up the materials that we might have to throw overboard on a strict priority basis while Tim was making the electrical connections and checking the radios.

Across the Beach, Up, and a Bounce!

The balloon had reached full inflation and Commander Booth shouted: "All right, let them go, let them go." He could scarcely be heard above the excited jabber of Spanish voices. Suddenly the car began to drag across the sand under the prodding of the turbulent gusts of wind.

It bumped, reared and teeter-tottered across the sand as we fought down the panic that was building up within us. I had a horrified feeling that the bottom of the boat was being ground off by the lava-like stones on the black and gold beach.

Though it was difficult for us to maintain our footing, Colin and I were tossing over some of the calcium hydride — with which we had planned to make hydrogen if necessary — and still "The Small World" grated across the sand.

People were running alongside the car and Bushy, ever gallant even under stress, leaned out to kiss his secretary and another girl goodby. Some of the Spaniards were holding on to the rope too long. Now the launchers were stringing out behind us on the sand as we were pulled inexorably toward the sea. Booth was shouting, "More ballast off, Colin, more ballast!"

Suddenly we lurched into the air only to crash down onto the sea and then bounce on the waves several times. I had the horrible feeling that we would never get up.

Car Horns Tooted, People Applauded

It was Bushy who revived our spirits by saying: "Thank God, that's over with. At least we're not going to be torn to pieces on the sand. Now we've got a chance."

It was 1:07 a.m. December 12th, Canary Island time.

Then we began to rise. We were still oscillating and slapping the ocean but each time there was a longer pause between bounces. My final memory was of seeing Peter Elstob, our business representative, silhouetted against the fading car lights. And then I realized that all the car horns were being tooted and that the people on the ground were clapping their hands.

I was suddenly conscious of the intense darkness and wondered if the people could see us.

"Give them a blast on your bugle, Colin," I said, "so that they will know we're all right. They probably think we've gone down in the sea."

Colin did and then Tim had a go at it and all at once we found ourselves laughing.

We had done it! We were headed toward America.

Our wild dream was turning into an incredible adventure. But our jubilation was to be short-lived.

Send Koreans to Us, Rhee Warns Japan

SEOUL, Korea —(AP)— President Syngman Rhee's government made a veiled threat Monday to use force if necessary to prevent the return of Koreans from Japan to Communist North Korea.

Japanese Foreign Misister Aiichiro Fujiyama has announced the intention to repatriate about 117,000 Koreans to the Communist north —a decision yet to be approved by the full cabinet. He said this number had requested to be sent to North Korea, and repatriation had been decided upon for humanitarian reasons.

Rhee's government claims it is the only legal Korean government and therefore all Korean citizens in Japan should be returned to the south.

Korean Minister Iu Tai Ha, who returned to Tokyo Friday to resume deadlocked negotiations, informed Renzo Sawada, the chief Japanese delegate at the talks, that South Korea could not guarantee "free passage" for any north-bound repatriation ships.

This was interpreted as a threat to intercept the ships—whether Japanese or North Korean—with naval vessels.

Allies Agree on Berlin

West to Stick Against Reds

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said Monday the Western Allies had reached general agreement on steps they would take if Russia imposed a new blockade around Berlin.

Dulles reaffirmed the West's decision to stay in Berlin following his return from Europe. He conferred there with British, French and West German leaders on the Soviet's threat to turn over their section of Berlin to the East German Communists on May 27.

The secretary, who planned to report to President Eisenhower almost immediately, said, "we are willing to talk with the Soviets in a sincere effort to reach agreements" on the German problem. But he said the West was determined to maintain access to Berlin.

"We do not accept the substitution of East Germans for the Soviet Union in its responsibilities toward Berlin and its obligations to us," Dulles said upon his arrival at the Washington airport.

"We are resolved that our position in, and access to, West Berlin shall be preserved. We are in general agreement as to the procedures we shall follow if physical means are invoked to interfere with our rights in this respect."

Dulles did not say what "procedures" the West would follow if the Soviets decided, as they did in 1949, to deny the West access to Berlin. The old German capital is isolated more than 100 miles inside Communist East Germany.

Shortly before Dulles' arrival, Britain announced its complete support for his earlier statement that the West would make no concessions to the Russians without counter proposals from Moscow.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the Russians bore the responsibility for deciding whether there was to be risk of war over Berlin.

Dulles had said as he boarded his plane in Bonn that the Western Allies would be "firm and united for our rights." He did not rule out a conciliatory attitude by the West but excluded any "concessions for which there is no counterpart."

We'll Be Squeezed, Berlin Mayor Says

WASHINGTON —(AP)— West Berlin's Mayor Willy Brandt said Monday his city would be "squeezed like a lemon" by the Russians should the West accept the Soviet ultimatum and withdraw its troops.

Brandt and his wife were interviewed on a television program while they had breakfast in West German Ambassador Wilhelm Grewe's residence.

National Summary

In the wake of a disturbance over the Rockies, clearing skies provided sunshine over southern California and parts of Arizona while another surge of moisture overspread the Pacific northwest.

Snow extended from Washington State into the mountains of northern California with rains along the coast, occasionally reaching heavy intensity along the northern California shoreline.

In addition to the severe ice storm, heavy snows are forecast for parts of the upper plains and Mississippi Valley and locally heavy accumulations are likely in the Colorado mountains.

Warnings include prospects for four inches or more in parts of Nebraska, Iowa and Wisconsin; and heavy snowfall may develop in South Dakota and southern Minnesota.

Mild temperatures with widespread cloudiness and rain will cover broad areas of the east.

Showers or thunderstorms are anticipated from the southern plains eastward into the Mississippi, Ohio and Tennessee Valleys as well as the Gulf states.

Scattered snows remain in the outlook for most of the west and may be locally heavy in the California mountains as rain moves southward through the state.

New Yen's Good

TOKYO — (AP) — Japanese don't have to worry about the money of the winking prince. Many thought the new 5,000-yen ($13.85) notes were counterfeit because the likeness of the sixth century Prince Shotoku showed one eye closed. The finance ministry assured them it was good money, bad printing.

Anti-Trust Campaign

U.S. Steel Probe on Way?

NEW YORK — (AP) — The Journal American said Monday that the Justice Department is preparing to subpena the records of U.S. Steel Corp. in connection with an antitrust investigation.

An article by Leslie Gould, financial editor, said "a grand jury investigation, similar to that just launched against General Motors Corp., is to be made, with two main objectives:

"1—A regional divestment of U.S. Steel's mills where the company has a major share of the steel market.

"2—An end to the present system of pricing."

The Journal said this is part of the Justice Department's new drive against bigness in business, "particularly where the enterprises are successful."

"The anti-trust campaign is bigger than any ever attempted in the past, including the days of Theodore Roosevelt," The Journal said.

U. S. Steel had no immediate comment.

Last week Assistant U. S. Attorney Victor Hansen said the Justice Department is gathering information on General Motors for presentation to a grand jury in New York. He also said data on "bigness" in the steel industry is being compiled for a grand jury in San Francisco but did not specify any individual steel firm.

Hansen said the campaign is directed at "undue concentration" in the steel and auto industries.

Colombia's Rojas Trial a Comic Opera

By GIL SLOAN
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

Rojas Pinilla
. . . $28 an hour?

BARRANQUILLA, Colombia — Rojas Pinilla, former dictator-president, entered the courtroom with a copy of Colombia's national constitution in his suit-coat pocket.

"Why," asked a reporter to his face, "didn't you use it when you were president?"

Ex-Gen. Rojas is standing public trial before a jury of 80 senators in Bogota, the nation's capital city.

The charges: Indignities in the execution of his duties as head of the republic (1953-57) and any number of counts of graft, of dealing in contraband cattle and corruption.

The trial began exactly 19 months and 22 days after he was evicted as chief executive. It was 50 days following the detention of Rojas for plotting against the present government of last Dec. 3.

It has taken on the shape of a comic opera.

The congress has authority only to condemn him for indignities and strip him of all political rights. The Supreme Court, later on, can (but probably won't) inflict harsher punishment.

The trial has seen a lot of dirty political linen washed in public. But it has also provided something of a "showcase" of Latin American political democracy.

The defendant isn't in full agreement.

Rojas has been reading "The Crisis of Democracy," a book by Harold Laski, during lulls in the long trial days. "I am interested," he explained, "in comparing some declarations (of the British leftist) with what is going on here."

A political cartoonist had great fun with that: He portrayed Rojas, a favorite caricature with jutted chin and lean face, with his head buried in the book.

The caption underneath asked: "One question, general: Have you read 'The Moral and Material Crisis of Columbia,' of which you were the author?"

Rojas, granting that the present democratic administration of President Alberto Lleras Camargo has brought calm to "most all the country," conceded that he, himself, was a dictator. He had to be, he implied, "to protect the people from the politicians."

The prosecution contends he became wealthy doing it. He accumulated wealth, their figures show, at the rate of 241 pesos (about $28) an hour during his tenure of office.

The names of many prominent Colombians have entered into the mud-slinging.

Some have offered to bare the story of their lives and careers before the senate. Others planned their vacations to the exterior, to coincide with the date of the proceedings.

McElroy Rejected Defense Missile, Generals Testify

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Two Army generals testified Monday that Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy rejected their urgent program to produce a defense missile which could shoot down Russian intercontinental rockets.

McELROY

Maj. Gens. William W. Dick Jr., Army special weapons chief, and Dwight E. Beach, Army air defense director, told the House Space Committee that other advisers swung McElroy away from the development project for the Nike-Zeus anti-missile missile.

"Who are the group of ghosts who stopped this program?" demanded Rep. James G. Fulton (R., Pa.).

The generals smiled but said they did not know. Committee Chairman Overton Brooks (D., La.) said the question would be put to McElroy when he appeared before the committee March 2.

Gen. Dick also said he felt there were delays in the Army's missile program because of slowness in decisions at the top. He said this appeared to be the situation "at least from where I sit."

Dick and Beach acknowledged there was a basic difference of opinion within the Defense Department over whether the Nike-Zeus was in the proper stage of development to go ahead with actual production facilities.

They said they strongly believe it was. They said they recommended 30 million dollars for the program in the current fiscal year and 700 million the next, but the amounts were cut from the defense budget.

The generals called the program important in the light of Soviet missile advances. The three-state Nike-Zeus, powered by solid propellants, is designed specifically to knock down enemy intercontinental ballastic missiles.

Dick and Beach said the U.S. had no other defense against enemy ICMBs in development.

Dick testified that while McElroy turned down the proposed production program for the Nike-Zeus, the program to develop such a missile was on schedule, with progress to date "most encouraging."

Polly Adler Her Guide In Court?

NEW YORK — (UPI) — A blonde former school teacher who learned to read the Bible before the age of three carried a copy of Polly Adler's book on prostitution to court with her Monday to hear testimony that she was a member of a call-gril ring with big businessmen customers.

Virginia McManus, 25-year-old Chicagoan fired from the New York public school system after her first arrest last October, appeared as one of four defendants in Woman's Court.

The four were charged with prostitution after their arrest in a police raid on a $350-a-month East Side apartment last Friday. The others were Barbara Jackson, 26, Gayle Siney, 23, and Beatrice Garfield. Mrs. Garfield also was charged with being the madam of the alleged call-girl operation, charging fees of up to $100 per date.

A policeman testified before Magistrate Hyman Bushel that he and another policeman had kept notes on wire tapped telephone calls made to and from the apartment, including one from Mrs. Garfield to an executive at the swank Park Ave. Racket Club.

Another alleged telephone call was said to have involved two "big shipping men."

A dapper middleaged man, identified as Harry Evons, of Houston, Tex., was the only other witness Monday. He testified he met the four call grils and a man at a restaurant and accompanied them to the apartment that later was raided by police.

Evons denied he had relations with any of the girls and said he was out of the room when the raid occurred.

City Powwow Chases Blues

LOS ANGELES — (UPI) — There is an active social club in Southern California dedicated to keeping big-city Indians from getting lonely for their reservations and tribes.

The Drum and Feathers Club holds a monthly Powwow which features different tribal ritual dances, singing and lots of talk. Its membership varies from 25 to 50 Indians.

The club was founded three years ago by Victor Roebuck, an electrician. Many of its members such as Foster Hood, appear often in film and TV productions.

Dollar a Pound

BERLIN, Conn. — (UPI) — Mrs. Delores R. Harrison, whose appearance in court on a traffic charge was delayed by the arrival of her baby, was asked by the judge how much the child weighed. Seven pounds, said Mrs. Harrison proudly.

"I fine you seven dollars," said the judge.

Dulles On His Rounds

Image Of A Mission

HOME from a huddle with our Western allies on the implications of the Berlin problem, Secretary of State Dulles reported to President Eisenhower yesterday on the "most fruitful" result of his labors.

We cannot know what he said in full detail, but an image rises from these European talks and the attitudes behind them. The image is of:

1. Unity in principle and in determination, such as Mr. Dulles' prior statement to a congressional committee that the West would rather risk war than abandon West Berlin to the Communists.

2. More flexibility of approach—a readiness to negotiate rather than an over-eagerness on the one hand or adamancy on the other, provided always that the Soviet Union will give some ground.

The image, therefore, is a brighter one.

TOO much cannot be said for the Allied stance of unity.

It is a miracle of sorts that this coalition has held together for nearly 14 years. In that time cabinets fell in France and Britain and governments changed hands in the United States. Under Stalin, at least, the Soviet tactic was to divide the West.

This divisive effort has failed. We think that is one of the blazing facts of this century.

It is clear also that at some point there must be negotiation — or, as Mr. Dulles has put it plainly, there must be war. The chances of the latter may well have been reduced in the last few months.

In the published "Epilogue" to a new abridgement of his six-volume history, "The Second World War," Winston Churchill holds that an "exterminatory war" can be avoided, for "as long as the free world holds together and maintains its strength, Russia will find that Peace and Plenty have more to offer" than World War III.

Perhaps this is unduly optimistic. One part of it has been fulfilled, however, by riveting the bonds of unity in the West.

THERE remains the specter of Berlin and how to banish it.

One approach is Western flexibility. For instance, there seems to have been a retreat from insistence on free elections in the two Germanys to unite them. And there is active discussion of several alternatives: accepting the East Germans as "agents" of Russia in controlling Allied access to Berlin, providing that Russian troops withdraw; placing Berlin under United Nations sponsorship as an open city; some confederation of the two Germanys, which already have certain economic and supervisory contacts typical of confederations.

At any rate the fixed diplomatic idea is discarded in favor of exploring positive ways and means to end the impasse.

The rest is up to the Soviet Union and the hope that Moscow, too, can be flexible. Should this happen it is possible that the rest of our century, like the last half of the 19th, will continue to present the image of tension but not of war, which we may be pleased to call peace.

Symbol On The Skyline

THE FUTURE of downtown Miami took a fresh turn yesterday when the newest skyscraper in its skyline opened for business. It is, of course, the 18-story First National Bank Building near the south end of Biscayne Blvd.

People poured into the bank's ground-floor quarters after a ribbon-cutting ceremony. At the same time, other offices in the building swung into the varied activity which will be their daily routine henceforth.

The graceful streamlined tower is more than a new home for the bank founded 56 years ago, when Miami was in its infancy. As such, it is a visible sign of the First National's rank as the largest bank in Florida, 95th among the nearly 14,000 banks in the country.

The new building also is a milestone in the growth of the city and the bank. Together, these have brought deposits in the First National Bank to their present high level of more than $300 million. Altogether, resources of 31 Dade County banks total $1,227,769,160 and their deposits amount to $1,115,880,773.

Standing as it does near the southeast corner of Miami's central business district, the First National Bank Building will draw additional activity there and throughout the downtown area. It is a handsome symbol of this area's new eminence in banking and finance.

A Health Chart For Florida

A COURAGEOUS group of doctors and laymen, named by Governor LeRoy Collins to look into the health needs of the state, has come up with an eye-opening report. It found that health services, while reasonably good, were almost totally inadequate. Florida must be prepared to expand its public and private health program into new and revolutionary fields.

This need not cost a lot of money. The committee emphasized over and over again that study, planning and coordination will point the way to economies as well as to better service.

But there is no doubt of the magnitude of the public health problem. The big fact is the swift increase of older persons attracted to Florida for retirement. In another year, we will have more than 400,000 persons over 65. Half of the men and 75 per cent of the women have incomes of less than $1,000 a year.

What happens when they get sick? Because of lack of home nursing, they must go to hospitals and convalescent homes. Though this age group makes up only 9 per cent of the population, it uses 26 per cent of the hospital beds.

TO MEET this obvious imbalance the Governor's committee suggested more health insurance for older persons, more home nursing programs, and a system of limited service hospitals where care is simple and costs are low.

It is a practical solution, and typical of the committee's practical approach. The members were concerned not only with old age, but with all ages. They pinpointed accidents as a major health problem and called for a continuing and hard-hitting state program of safety education. The shocking fact is that one out of every four Floridians will have some kind of accident injury in the course of 1959.

The committee also spotlighted the growing size and scope of the private health agencies which raise funds for research and education. While generally agreeing that the programs are good, the committee called for closer supervision and a system of state licenses to prevent unwarranted public appeals.

On the whole the report was the most thorough look ever taken at Florida's health picture. The committee, headed by Miami's Dr. Edward R. Annis and including men and women from every part of the state, worked long and hard and deserves the gratitude of all citizens. What it wrought will probably be the chart for action to improve Florida's health statistically for a long time to come.

Through The Iron Sieve

CAUGHT Red-handed in a cold war atrocity, Soviet Russia has reacted typically to the tape recording of the conversation among Russian pilots as they attacked an unarmed United States transport plane.

There's no such recording, says Moscow. Or if there is, it's a fake.

Everybody in the know knows better. Most nations today engage in electronic espionage. We're happy to note, from the public evidence, that no country is deeper into this business than the United States.

All along the margins of the Iron Curtain powerful radio receivers and radar screens keep vigil over Soviet military doings. Every detectable sound is picked up and recorded. In all likelihood Soviet missile and satellite tests, beginning with the count-downs and the firings, are under the constant surveillance of Allied and American radar. Jack Raymond of The New York Times quotes from the British magazine Ibis this paragraph published a year ago:

> All along the frontier between East and West, from Iraq to the Baltic, perhaps farther, are monitoring stations manned largely by national servicemen trained in Morse or Russian, avidly recording the least squawk from Russian transmitters — ships, tanks, airplanes, troops and central stations.

For some reason the two youthful authors of this article were arrested and jailed for three months — presumably in England. Whatever their motive, unconsciously they did the puzzled and even worried American layman a service.

It is now abundantly clear that the Iron Curtain is also a sieve. Thanks to the miracle of electronics and some devices so secret that they even defy guesswork, sounds and sights of a potential military enemy are far more audible and visible than anyone had imagined.

Transgressing the privacy of a nation is hardly less distasteful than invading the privacy of an individual. But if it has to be done, when 'tis done, we say: Bully!

Cut Uncle Slice Of White Meat

IT IS getting so these days you can't even look a gift turkey in the mouth.

Seems a firm out in Tacoma, Wash., like a lot of others elsewhere, including Miami, has been giving its employes birds for the holiday tables. It was just a happy gesture.

But along came that Internal Revenue man to demand a slice and a bit of the stuffing.

It appears that such gifts from the boss must be counted as compensation and the value is taxable as income. It must be shown on the employe's tax withholding form. And a fellow has to pay in April for the bird he thought was free in December.

Rep. Thor Tollefson of Washington State is going to have some things to say about the situation in Washington, D.C. He's burning at the ruling which he calls ridiculous but technically correct.

We wonder if IRS would allow a deduction if the bird was tough?

No City Can Be Too Beautiful

Editor The Herald: I wish to thank you for the very fine editorial relative to the parking facilities on Miami Beach. It is most gratifying to know that our long-range planning for parking has merited recognition.

Since the article appeared in the January, 1959, "Traffic Quarterly," in which Mr. Robinson states we had a deficit of 2,300 parking spaces, we have added:

Lincoln Lane double decking, 600; five new parking areas, 300; seven parking areas under construction, 275; spaces gained by offstreet parking ordinance, 1,190; 16th St. and Washington Ave. (in process), 95.

Our philosophy in Miami Beach is that no city can be too beautiful. We will continue to beautify and provide as many facilities as possible so that our tourists and residents alike can enjoy the blessings of a good life.

What's Wrong With Bobbseys?

Editor The Herald; We are some of the many children who like to read the books mentioned in your paper as banned. These books are very good. One book for instance is Nancy Drew. Another is the Bobbsey Twins and the others mentioned.

What is the matter with these books? Just because some kids of 11 to 12 do not like these books does it mean that those who like these books must suffer?

We do not think it is fair to have mostly space books in our public library. Do you? That's about all we have to say.

Love Necessary In Curing Ills

Editor The Herald: The world's first hospital devoted exclusively to treatment of the mentally ill by drug therapy is a bold concept, as stated in a Herald editorial.

Drug therapy is proving miracles but it is not an end in itself. Courage and love therapy also are needed for ultimate success.

These two quotes will explain the therapy:

1. Two-thirds of help is to give courage.

2. Rather an empty stomach than an empty heart.

The medicine plus the courage and love gives us all the will to live.

Also, would it not be a grand gesture to allot to the states the right to levy the proposed Ike gas tax? State gas taxes we deduct from our income tax. Federal, no! Isn't this why the tea was thrown in Boston harbor?

And Speaking Of Gratitude

Editor The Herald: I admire the writings of Sydney Harris. But, like all essayists today, he imagines himself an authority on psychology. Thus, he generalizes that it is a mistake to expect gratitude from children. He gives the impression that children owe their parents no gratitude because the parents got plenty out of the pleasure of raising them.

Perhaps this attitude helps explain the modern brats that blemish today's scene. And if Harris is right, then we should hasten back to the civilizations in which the children set their ancient parents out on the river bank to starve and die.

There is something definitely wrong in the upbringing of a child who senses no gratitude toward the parents who brought it up in love. There is something definitely wrong in the mind of a parent who senses no gratitude toward the child who enabled the parent to exercise his love. Gratitude is a virtue; and it is an essential part of true and good family life. In the true sense, he who gives, receives.

Arbitrary Fine Draws Protest

Editor The Herald: This is to protest the levying by Miami judges of $1 upon each hapless victim caught without his driver's license in the police road blocks.

It is a frightening thing that Municipal Court Judge Mitchell Goldman can blithely say that the levying of the $1 is basically illegal but "we felt that they should be charged something . . ." when a license is produced in court.

It seems to me that the greatest threat to American freedom is the brazen assumption of power by the American judiciary.

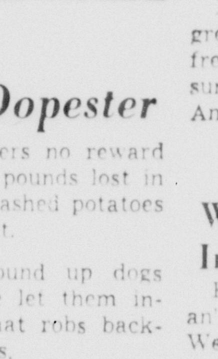
There's Poetry In Our Talk

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A FRIEND was telling us how he tried to explain the clock to his small son. "Here are the hours, here are the minutes, and here are the seconds."



Harris

The little boy pondered the clock for a moment, and then asked in puzzlement, "But where are the jiffies?"

A sensible and logical question. We have become so used to idiomatic language that we scarcely think how confusing it must be to the literal mind of a child.

Living with a small child makes one constantly aware of the metaphors we use in every-day speech. If you mention "a stab in the back," he wants to know what you were stabbed with; if you refer to a "queer kettle of fish," he wants to see both the kettle and the fish.

People who pride themselves on realistic "down-to-earth" speech simply don't realize how their everyday expressions are shot through with poetry and metaphor, with tags from Shakespeare and Milton and the Bible. Without these imaginative springboards, we would be reduced to grunts and squeaks.

THE MOST factual people in the English-speaking world every day use such expressions as "in my mind's eye," "more in sorrow than in anger," "the primrose path," "the milk of human kindness," and dozens of others — wholly unaware that such phrases did not exist until Shakespeare invented them for his plays.

And the most pious atheist daily makes use of scores of poetic idioms from the King James Bible — "feet of clay," "all things to all men," "filthy lucre," "a drop in the bucket," "a fly in the ointment," "a voice in the wilderness," "a wolf in sheep's clothing," "the blind leading the blind" — I could fill a whole page of newsprint with similar quotations.

BUT THE strange power of metaphorical language is such that it soon ceases to be "quotation" and becomes an everyday part of speech. This is why professional writers try to avoid them as much as possible — for they want to devise their own metaphors that are fresh and stimulating to the reader.

Nobody can speak "literal" English, which has no force and no grace. Moliere's comic character was surprised to learn he had been speaking "prose" all his life — we may be equally surprised to learn we have been speaking poetry.

Modern Trappings In Indian Puzzle

By JOHN PENNEKAMP

THREE NEWSPAPER articles in one day having to do with Indians suggests that this centuries old problem may be reaching a new heighth of public interest.

There are indications, too, that the revival may be finding some of its stimulus in White Man's promotional trappings.

Some of that flavor, for instance, may be in the threat of Al La Fontaine, a Sioux, to offer to sell a third of the state of North Dakota to Soviet Russia.

Pennekamp

As well as in the television appearance of a Seminole in New York; the suggestion by other Seminoles that their case be taken up by the United Nations, and the appearance some months ago of representatives of a Seminole group in Washington bearing what they called a "buckskin" treaty.

Other Indians have found national expression in appeals to Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and through her column, "My Day."

THERE ARE SIX recognized Indian "stocks" and these are divided into more than two dozen tribes, embracing some 345,000 Indians in all of the 49 United States. In 1492 there were an estimated 846,000. In 1940 the total was 334,000.

It is an understatement to say that the problem is equal to the number of stocks times the number of tribes. They are much more numerous.

The Seminoles are an example. In Florida they can be loosely divided into three divisions, ranging through groups that might be termed the traditionalists, the moderns and the reformed.

Yet no division is exactly defined; there is movement between each. At the same time the adherents of each must be credited with complete sincerity despite basic disagreements among them.

ONE OF THE DIFFICULTIES of the national situation has been the seeking for one formula to cover all of the problems.

"Let's make them American citizens, in fact," is the rallying cry of these.

But that panacea fails to recognize that it treads on fundamental and traditional beliefs which cross deeply religious lines.

Nor is the situation helped by the sentimentalism and emotionalism which is present in every approach to the problem, as well as the political and profit purposes which some White brethren are selfishly willing to pursue.

QUESTIONS as simple as work make for trouble.

Some tribes are noted for the mechanical skill of their members, while in the same tribe may be agrarians, stock raisers and handicraftsmen and women.

Some are relatively helpless, and a great section, particularly in the Mid-and Western areas, suffers from malnutrition.

"Why," ask those seeking a solution when they come upon these units, "don't we make some of our surplus products available to them?"

Some tribes and individuals are enormously wealthy as compared with the destitution of others.

There are several organizations whose purpose is to work for the Indians' interests and rights.

These accuse some White individuals of having altruistic motives on the surface but selfish purposes beneath.

In efforts to find a single, all-embracing solution methods that come close to coercion are practiced.

There are instances in which medical and welfare relief have been denied Indians who refused to "conform" to some official edict. Yet compliance called for the abandonment of a tradition that amounted to religious belief.

The situation isn't helped by the theatricals; in some respects such conduct further confounds it.

The Plane Attack

Red Bigwigs Caught In A Baldfaced Lie

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — The shooting down by Russian fighter pilots of an unarmed U.S. transport plane, which had lost its bearings a few miles over the Soviet-Armenian border, is a matter which is going to be with us for some time to come. It should be. We need to fix the facts clearly in mind so that the bland Kremlin denials can be seen for what they are.

Drummond

It is now clear why Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan put on such a heavy act of injured innocence while he was chummily visiting in Washington with the President, the Vice President, Secretary Dulles, and members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who kept asking him about what happened to the 17-man crew of the American plane, 11 of whom have never been reported on.

Mikoyan pulled out all the stops. He was pained; he was hurt; he was mystified; he was excruciatingly baffled by the picky questions which the Americans oddly insisted upon putting to him.

"Why should we hide anything? Why are Americans so suspicious about this?"

Finally, in his interview with Secretary Dulles, he made as though he could stand it no longer and professed to be downright irritated because the officials of the United States didn't seem to accept his personal and official assurance that the American transport had not been shot down, that it had crashed of its own fault, and that the Soviets had told all—absolutely.

THE FACT is that the Soviet government had in its hands as early as Nov. 13 the full transcription of the tape-recorded evidence proving that the Russian pilots had deliberately attacked the lost American plane even after they had seen that it was an unarmed transport.

We know that the Soviet government had this evidence long before Mikoyan became so grieved by being pressed with questions. The evidence was physically put into the hands of Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov. Robert Murphy, deputy under secretary of state, who always knows what he is doing in these matters, invited Menshikov to listen in his presence to a play-back of the tape-recorded conversation.

The Soviet ambassador wanted none of it. He said it would be "too technical" for him to "appraise." Perhaps, Murphy agreed, and explained that was why he had invited the ambassador to bring his air attache with him. Menshikov still did not want to listen to the voices of the Russian pilots. He wouldn't. Whereupon Murphy handed the ambassador the transcript of the recording in Russian. Menshikov said he would "convey the details" to his government.

MIKOYAN'S bland comment: Why would the Soviet Union try to hide anything about this incident, seems mighty empty now that the facts are out.

Obviously it wanted to hide that the attack was deliberate, that no "accident" had taken place, and that the pilots knew their target was unarmed. His government having said the exact opposite, Mikoyan evidently thought it was better to stand by the denial than to admit the truth of the evidence.

There seem to me to be only two premises underlying this attack.

Either it is unauthorized, irresponsible action of Russian pilots acting beyond orders. Or, it is the authorized, responsible action of the Soviet government.

Is Moscow prepared to tell the world that the only way it will treat a lost, unarmed transport plane is to peremptorily shoot it down rather than warn it to land?

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Johnson's Trade Runs Into Block

By DREW PEARSON

PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Some important backstage by-play took place between the White House and the Senate just before President Eisenhower's civil rights bill was sent to Congress. It put Secretary of Labor Mitchell in the position of being the most vigorous and consistent civil rights champion in the Eisenhower administration.

About 12 hours before Eisenhower sent his civil rights bill to Capitol Hill, Sen. Lyndon Johnson, the hard-working Democratic leader, phoned Bryce Harlow, Ike's administrative assistant, to advise strongly against including the Anti-Discrimination Employment Commission in the new civil rights proposals.

Johnson sincerely believes that a civil rights bill should be passed and has introduced one of his own, milder than the administration's proposal.

But he argued that Ike's proposed Anti-Discrimination Employment Commission would be challenged by southern senators as an FEPC and probably provoke a filibuster.

Johnson pointed to the Government Contracts Commission headed by Vice President Nixon which already rules on racial and religious discrimination.

He said it was doing a good job, had handled more complaints last year than in the four previous years, and suggested that the administration leave well enough alone.

"If it's money you want," he told Harlow, "I'll get you the money but don't put this in the legislation."

"This is Jim Mitchell's baby," said Persons. "I'll talk to him."

Persons, who comes from Alabama, has been opposed to a strong civil rights stand, but felt that Mitchell should have the last word on Johnson's proposal.

He informed the Secretary of Labor of Johnson's rather tempting offer. Johnson is a man who delivers and Mitchell knew that money for the present Government Contracts Commission would be forthcoming.

"Heck no," said Mitchell. "The Anti-Discrimination Employment Commission has got to stay in."

It stayed in. Next day Johnson, though his advice was ignored, said he would do his best to pass an adequate civil rights bill.

Unnoticed in the flutter of bills that hits every new Congress like a ticker-tape reception is one that would not only safeguard the view outside Mississippi Congressman Frank Smith's window but incidentally protect his property from commercial encroachment.

These personal benefits aren't mentioned, of course, in the bill he introduced authorizing the Park Service to purchase 235 acres from the Smoot Sand and Gravel Co.

The 235-acre plot in question happens to lie between the congressman's home and Mt. Vernon Highway on Washington's outskirts.

Smith took a sudden interest in preserving the scenery along Mt. Vernon Highway when radio station WPIK tried to rent ground from Smoot Sand and Gravel to erect a radio tower. There was also talk of constructing an apartment house on the 235 acres.

The Mississippi congressman, an arch foe of all forms of integration, didn't want a radio tower for a neighbor. So he telephoned the Park Service and asked what could be done to keep such unsightly objects from marring the beauty of Mt. Vernon Highway.

The park people said they would be happy to acquire the 235 acres in the interest of preserving the scenery along the approaches to George Washington's ancestral home.

"I introduced the bill," said Congressman Smith, when queried, "in the interest of my neighbors and in my own interest."

Dulles Scores in Europe With Sound U.S. Position

By DAVID M. NICHOL
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

BONN, GERMANY — Secretary of State Dulles finished his blitz tour of Europe here in the fashion of the mythical Greek wrestler Anteaus.

Anteaus was invincible while he kept his feet on the ground and drew new strength from mother earth whenever he was toppled.

Touching ground in London, Paris and Bonn, Dulles seems to have discovered that demands for "flexibility at any price" are much less urgent than he might have imagined, at least among the leaders who must implement Western policy.

THE TOUR BEGAN on a note of restrained caution. It concluded here with flat assertions both by the American spokesman and the West German spokesman that no concessions would be made to the Soviets without adequate counter concessions.

So far Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev has asked everything and offered nothing with his plans for making West Berlin a demilitarized "free city" and with proposals for a peace treaty to be signed by two independent Germanys.

WHAT ENCOURAGED the West Germans most considerably was Dulles' assurance that West Berlin and the Federal Republic would not be sold down the river in some hasty accommodation with the Soviets.

DULLES' STOCK rose several points in France as a result of his Paris and Bonn talks and his firm stand on Germany before the House Foreign Affairs Committee in Washington.

The long-lingering doubts in the mind of President Charles de Gaulle about the secretary's desire to compromise with the Soviets without getting any concessions in return were erased.

Dulles' repeated assertions to De Gaulle and Bonn Chancellor Konrad Adenauer that the United States was ready to risk war, over Berlin if forced to do so got more than a favorable echo in France among De Gaulle's associates.

THE GENERAL THEORY of leading circles in Paris is that if the Soviets want war they will go ahead with or without Western concessions and if they don't want war they will be ready to compromise on Allied terms.

'Maligned' Theory Takes Setback

Newfound Wires Indicate 'Disturbing' Mary Lincoln

New York Times News Service

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON—Two newly found telegrams in Mary Lincoln's own hand writing tend to bear out the position taken by Carl Sandburg and many other scholars — that Abraham Lincoln's wife played a disturbed and disturbing role in his official life.

This has been disputed by several Mary Lincoln biographers who contend she was maligned by enemies and gossipers. They contend she should be presented "in her true role as the devoted partner who shared a great man's life."

A search of the national archives made as part of the sesquicentennial celebration of Lincoln's birth disclosed the Mary Lincoln telegrams and other new Lincoln documents among the old records of the War and State Departments.

The revealing two telegrams of Mary Lincoln were sent from Fortress Monroe when she was on her way from Washington to rejoin her husband on the River Queen at City Point (on the James River below Richmond — now Hopewell) which she had left a few days earlier for no recorded reason. The Lincolns were on what had been announced as a vacation voyage, but in reality was a presidential trip to wind up the Civil War.

These telegrams requested that if she missed connections with him he should take another boat and leave the River Queen for her and her entourage. Actually she did re-join the President on April 6, 1865.

Mary Lincoln's telegrams read:

"If Mr. Seward is not too dangerously injured, cannot you remain at City Point until we reach there at noon today — we have several friends on board and would prefer seeing you and returning on your baat, we are not comfortable here."

"If you are compelled to return before we see you, which I shall much regret, cannot you return on some other vessel, we are most uncomfortable on this and would like your boat — I know you would agree with me and we will be with you in six hours at City Point."

So far as archive historians have been able to learn, these telegrams have never been seen or used by Lincoln scholars. They are probably the last messages she sent her husband.

On the day Mary Lincoln left Washington, Secretary of State William Seward had jumped from his careening carriage, pulled by runaway horses, and had been picked up unconscious, with a broken right arm and injured jaw bone. Lincoln was ready to rush to him, but it was not necessary.

Thus the President of the U.S. was never called upon to decide whether or not to leave the vessel he had used for final conferences with Generals Grant, Sherman and Sheridan, lying in the river for his wife.

Biographer Sandburg made clear htat he considered Mrs. Lincoln more of a problem than a helpmate. He gave credence to a purportedly eye-witness account of how prior to the first Lincoln inauguration she had thrown herself to the floor of a Springfield hotel and refused to leave the old hometown until her husband promised to give a federal post to a certain man.

Lincoln had to leave without her — she joined his train in Indianapolis, Sandburg said.

THE Last Word

QUESTION: We say that certain acts or certain passages of verse or music are touchstones. Why? P. A. R.

ANSWER: There is a dark, hard, smooth rock called basanite or touchstone. It was found that streaks made on this rock by certain alloys of known composition (especially of gold or silver) could serve as tests (by comparing the color) of pieces of metal whose composition was uncertain.

One version of the old proverb went:

All is not gold that hath a glistering hue,
But (what) the touchstone tries and findeth true.

Modern methods of assaying have done away with any practical need for the touchstone, but the word is fixed as a metaphor in the language. We say that money is the touchstone to test the real quality of professed virtues or that time is the final touchstone of worth.

Thought Control New Soviet Goal

By JOHN B. McDERMOTT
Herald Foreign Affairs Writer

A BIG ITEM in Russia's new Seven Year Plan for improved living standards is to strengthen the government's "thought control" program.

McDERMOTT

The Soviets do not use these words to explain this phase of their development. But it amounts to that and here's why.

The plan calls for an additional 30 million radio and television receivers by 1965 for homes across the nation.

Since the Communist-run government also controls broadcasting, as it does the press, these new radio and TV sets will only strengthen the propaganda outlets for the Reds.

There can be no question but what these receivers will add to the comfort of living.

Higher living standards — more "comforts" — is the driving force which has the entire Soviet nation aroused in support of the Seven Year Plan.

However, without the populace being aware of it, "comforts" such as these are bringing the Russian people more and more under the domination of the Kremlin bosses through thought control.

IN RUSSIA, AS I SAW it so vividly in Moscow and Leningrad, the people live in a vacuum of propaganda.

The Western radios like Radio Free Europe, Voice of America and the British Broadcasting Company are blotted out by a network of jamming stations operating under Radio Moscow.

The Soviet Communist leaders want to keep broadcasts of the outside world from the ears of the Russian citizens.

The "jamming" network is so extensive that it reaches not only across the vastness of Mother Russia itself but also into China and the satellite countries.

From 2,000 to 2,500 stations are involved, each whistling, howling or simply throwing out a beam of static on the wavelength of the Western broadcasting transmitter.

NO WESTERN NEWSPAPERS ARE allowed in the USSR.

Like everything else in the Soviet Union, newspapers are owned by the government and operated by Communist editors under orders from the party chiefs.

That is a truism above contradiction.

The only variance which might be pointed out is that the Russian child, virtually from the time of conception, becomes part of the state and subject to Communist influencing.

This observation is based on the fact that the mother gets her pre-natal care at a state-run clinic.

All her subsequent medication is sponsored by the state, and from the time the child is two years old, he is kept at least part time in a state-run nursery or Communist youth organization.

When you are saturated with only one ideology through the formative years of youth and when you know nothing of the outside world other than the distortions and bad side as played up in the controlled news media, then thinking can be categorized as tailor made.

That's what is happening in the USSR today — thought control.

Herter: No. 2 Man in One-Man Show

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — As undersecretary of state, Christian Archibald Herter has for the last two years had the misfortune of beng No. 2 man in a one-man State Department.

As has happened often in these past months when the operating power was temporarily out of action on the sidelines or in full action on the frontlines, Herter was again handed the title of "acting secretary" Monday.

The key word here is "acting," for if Herter did not know it when he arrived — and there is evidence that he did not — he soon found that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles had determined there would never be a Sumner Welles in the Eisenhower administration.

Welles, undersecretary during the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt, had a closer relationship with the White House than the secretary himself, Cordell Hull.

Accordingly, even when Dulles has been temporarily away from the store, his stand-in has had little chance to make the impact of his own personality felt on the great issues of state.

Some of Herter's associates in the Department have felt at times that Dulles is keeping him in not-so-splendid isolation and that a considerable talent is being buried under the weight of one of Washington's most powerful personalities.

Herter arrived in Washington soon after the Eisenhower election sweep of 1956 with impressive credentials and a magnificent press. An earlier passage, in the House of Representatives, had established him as an attractive Republican internationalist.

Two successful terms as governor of Massachusetts had confirmed his executive ability and after the Eisenhower heart attack of 1955, his name was high among those discussed as possible "liberal" Republican presidential candidates should the president decline to run in 1956.

The President did decide to run and Herter was promptly embroiled in a fiasco when Harold E. Stassen, then the administration's disarmament specialist, personally nominated him as the man to replace Vice President Richard M. Nixon on the Republican ticket.

Christian Herter

Herter, then leaving office in Massachusetts, suffering from a painful arthritic condition and facing the end of his public career, was induced to act as torpedo of the Stassen crusade by making the nominating speech for Nixon.

After the inauguration, he was appointed undersecretary of state, and rumors ran that he was groomed for an early succession to Dulles.

The future matured without such an exciting development. Dulles, at the desk or away, stayed in charge. Herter, once the darling of those who had hoped for fresh approaches in U. S. diplomacy, faded into the old familiar scenery where he still remains untested and unexposed.

"Chris" Herter was born March 2, 1895, in Paris where his parents were studying art. Young Chris was 10 and spoke fluent French before he returned to the States. He had his first taste of diplomacy during the first World War, serving as acting minister to Belgium at the age of 22 when illness in the diplomatic ranks left him the top man on the spot.

In his personal contacts, Herter at 63 is a polished and charming gentleman of the old school whose manner has often decieved the unknowledgeable into mistaking him for a Boston Brahmin. With an easy smile and a pervasive graciousness, he gives the casual visitor no sign of the physical hardship imposed by the severe arthritis.

We Tell Angry Canadians

'No Chain Gangs in Florida'

By JOHN McDERMOTT
Herald Staff Writer

Is Florida still a "chain gang" state?

That is the impression being spread across Canada.

The furor stems from Florida's efforts to secure the return of a 20-year-old fugitive now in custody in Toronto.

The youth is Kenneth William Brymer who was convicted in Citrus County in 1955 for breaking into a filling station and stealing $160 and some guns.

He drew a stiff 20-year sentence.

R. O. Culver, director of Florida's division of corrections, takes a sharp exception to the newspaper's insinuations.

"Years ago, that might have been true," he said. "But not today. We have no chain gangs and the methods used in our prisons for handling inmates is in keeping with the best-run prisons in the country."

Brymer reportedly was arrested in Ontario within two months after breaking out of a Florida road gang in 1957.

He came from a broken home — his mother and father are divorced and his father was arraigned in an Ontario court two weeks ago on a false pretenses charge.

Brymer, himself, had his first run-in with the law when he was only 11. He was convicted on a minor count then.

But his cause has been taken up by a group of Toronto University students and the Toronto Daily Star.

Fourteen students picketed the U.S. Consulate there carrying banners labeling Florida a "chain gang state" and also attacking John Foster Dulles, the U.S. Secretary of State.

As for the 20-year sentence — which the Toronto students felt was medieval — Culver pointed out that, under Florida law, any criminal convicted on such a charge is eligible for parole after serving only six months.

"If Brymer had stayed, he would be more than eligible now," he said. "But he was a bad one from the time we got him."

Solution To Cyprus Nearer

By KENNETT LOVE
New York Times Service

ZURICH — Premiers Konstantin Karamanlis of Greece and Adnan Menderes of Turkey reached the threshold of a Cyprus solution in a 3½-hour talk here Monday.

A relaible informant said Monday night the only major issue still resisting agreement is Turkey's demand for "tangible" security against threats from Cyprus. Turkey regards a U.N. guarantee as insufficient.

It is not known whether the Turks will insist on the stationing of troops on the island, either alone or with other nations in a North Atlantic Treaty Organization sub-command, or whether the Turks will be satisfied with guarantees in the Cypriot Constitution.

The two premiers are reliably understood to have agreed that the British island colony should be independent, with a Constitution guaranteeing the security of the Turkish mainland and the rights of the ethnic Turkish minority in Cyprus.

Direct Grants

Faubus Comes Up With Pupil Pay

LITTLE ROCK, Ark — (UPI) — Gov. Orval Faubus revealed Monday the latest gambit in his fight against integration — a proposed state law to give state money to students who don't want to attend integrated schools.

Faubus said a bill to make such a law will be introduced this week in the Legislature. He predicted it can not be overturned by any court.

FAUBUS

Faubus said that under the plan, any student could receive a direct grant from the state for educational purposes. The money could be spent for public or private schools.

The governor closed Little Rock's four public high schools Sept. 12 to block court-ordered integration. They have never opened.

Faubus said his plan will help private schools particularly but said it does not mean abolition of the public school system, since the tuition can be used by the student in any other school district.

Race will not be mentioned in the measure.

The governor said he does not think the courts can touch the proposed law.

A & M Law School: $33,316 a Graduate

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — The Board of Control said Monday the law college at Florida A&M University has cost the state an average of $33,316 per graduate, and only five of the 11 graduates are actually eligible to practice.

Figuring costs per student admitted to the Florida Bar, the board came up with an average of $73,296.

The figures were compiled for Gov. LeRoy Collins and the Legislature. Collins said the Legislature should reappraise the graduate schools at the Negro university with an eye to closing those that are abnormally expensive.

These students would enroll, if qualified, in the University of Florida graduate schools. The plan immediately drew fire from several legislators who said they are willing to spend whatever necessary to maintain segregation in all levels of education.

The board said figures are not complete on the graduate school in teacher education, but costs run about the same or lower than at the white universities.

Comparative costs of the law schools at A&M and the university of Florida are way out of line, the figures showed. This is because of fewer students at A&M and the requirement that the school maintain a specified faculty and library regardless of enrollment.

U.S. Academies Have Own Prayer

Lent begins on Wednesday, and in the spirit of the holy season The Herald is running daily excerpts throughout Lent from Columnist Jim Bishop's book, "Go With God." Here is the third installment:

By JIM BISHOP

Go With God

West Point Prayer

This prayer is regularly used at Sunday services of the United States Military Academy at West Point. Another prayer has been used similarly at all chapel services at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis.

O GOD, our father, Thou Searcher of men's hearts, help us to draw near to Thee in sincerity and truth. May our religion be filled with gladness and may our worship of Thee be natural.

Strengthen and increase our admiration for honest dealing and clean thinking, and suffer not our hatred of hypocrisy and pretense ever to diminish. Encourage us in our endeavor to live about the common level of life. Make us to choose the harder right instead of the easier wrong, and never to be content with a half-truth when the whole can be won. Endow us with courage that is born of loyalty to all that is noble and worthy, that scorns compromise with vice and injustice and knows no fear when truth and right are in jeopardy. Guard us against flippancy and irreverence in the sacred things of life . . . Help us, in our work and in our play, to keep ourselves physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight. All of which we ask in the name of the Great Friend and Master of men. Amen.

Charge: Fraudulent Checks

Ludman President Arrested by FBI

By STEPHEN TRUMBULL and ARTHUR JOHNSEY
Herald Staff Writers

Elmer M. (Bucky) Harris, much-troubled ex-president of the Ludman Corp., was arrested Monday at Hialeah race track by FBI agents who nabbed him on charges of transporting fraudulent checks.

HARRIS

The federal charges came on the heels of four criminal charges filed Friday by the state. Police broke down his apartment door to arrest him then.

The FBI charged the 41-year-old former Chicago steel salesman with causing seven "falsely-made or forged" checks, totaling $1,400, to be transported between Miami and Chicago. The checks were dated last November 24, 25 and 26, the FBI said.

The Ludman executive posted $5,000 bond set by U. S. Commissioner Roger E. Davis for his appearance Feb 26 before Davis

State charges allege "unlawful converting" of sales tax money by the corporation and by Harris, individually; writing a fraudulent check to the state comptroller — and two grand larceny charges from Palm Beach County. Details of the Palm Beach County charges were unspecified.

Bonds on the state charges totaled $4,000. Metro Detective H. O. Smith headed a group of process servers at Harris's Bar Harbor Island apartment, pounding on Harris' door at intervals Friday night.

He said the door-smashing became necessary when Harris and two friends refused to open the door. Smith finally kicked in the door and made the arrest.

Engel's Autonomy Fight Moves to Appeals Court

North Miami Police Chief Karl Engel's battle to keep his police department from being absorbed by the Metro Department of Safety moved to District Court of Appeal Monday.

ENGEL

Circuit Judge Ray Pearson dismissed Engel's suit to compel the North Miami Council to budget necessary funds, and Engel's attorney, E. F. P. Brigham, promptly announced an appeal.

Brigham contends a county majority vote to turn over the city's identification, communications, detective and juvenile bureaus, and part of the traffice division to Metro was "not in good faith."

"The budget was cut to reduce the police to watchman duty to punish the citizens for voting against the autonomy amendment," he said.

Homes for Aged Nearing Reality

A housing project for old folks — with low rent and recreational facilities — soon will be a reality in Miami.

Haley Sofge, executive director of the Miami Housing Authority, said the site itself will be announced in the near future.

The plan is to locate it in the northwest section of Miami.

Sofge said the project will be exclusively for persons over 65 and will consist of 50 to 60 units.

Rents will be limited to a maximum of 20 per cent of a person's income including utilities. That means all rents will range between $20 and $30 a month.

'Praying Cop' Goes on Trial

Miami's former "praying cop," Jackson Holloway Hooper, accused of setting a dozen fires last spring and summer, went on trial Monday for a fire at the downtown Roberts Hotel.

The trial, started before Criminal Court Judge Gen Williams and a jury, will be resumed today.

Last December a jury in the same court disagreed on an arson charge involving a fire at 3900 Biscayne Blvd. and Judge Williams declared a mistrial.

Bus Line Plans New Increase

South Miami Coach Line, which last week received tentative approval for a five-cent local fare increase from the South Miami City Council, will request the same increase from the Miami Commission.

The 18-bus line at present has three fare structures. Rate for local South Miami rides is 15 cents. This will become 20 cents on final approval of the South Miami Council.

The fare for inter-city travel from South Miami to points north of Aviation Ave. in Miami will remain 25 cents.

A third rate, for passengers riding only within City of Miami boundaries, currently is 15 cents. This inside-Miami fare is the one which bus officials will request Miami commissioners to raise to 20 cents, equaling the rate for Miami Transit Co. routes.

Race Tip Fraud Charged to Pair

A golf caddy posing as a jockey and a companion were arrested Monday by Miami FBI agents and charged with fraud in a phoney horse race tip.

Agents said Paul Stanley Stubelik, 44, of 1754 NE Fourth Ave., and Arsenio (Tony) Garcia, 26, of 1 NW 49th St. allegedly picked up a $50 telegraph money order wired here by a Buffalo businessman. Both were jailed.

Teague said Garcia called the New York man, representing himself as "Paul Stewart," a jockey who had "some inside dope."

Police Find Death Clues

Metro accident investigators reported they had "several good leads" Monday in the hit-run death of a 67-year-old Negro in South Miami.

The victim, Ben Will Jones of 6122 NW 19th Ct., was found beside the road at 6671 Sunset Dr. early Sunday after police received a call from a woman motorist who reported seeing the body.

Medical examiners said Jones died instantly of head injuries between 12 midnight and 12:30 a.m. Sunday after being struck with "great impact."

Metro Investigator John Nelson said lab tests showed the car which struck Jones was blue or aqua. He said a check at Jones' home indicated the man was on his way to the South Miami Convalescent Home when he was run down.

Mayor to Speak

Mayor Robert King High will speak before the Miami Consular Corps at a noon meeting Thursday at the Biscayne Terrace Hotel. Mayor High will discuss his recent trip to Columbia.

Men Or Women . . . Ages 15 to 74
New Limited Sickness and Accident Policy Includes $25.00 a Week Payment Features Costs Only $15.00 a Year
(Just $1.50 Down Payment)
Up to Age 59
Age 60 to 69—$22.50 a Year
Age 70 to 80—$30.00 a Year
(Limit of age at entry, 74 years)

The older you are, the harder it is to get protection against financial worries that come when accident or sickness strikes. That's why the reliable North American Accident Insurance Company, of Chicago, now has a new improved policy for men and women up to 74 years of age.

If your policy is in effect when you reach age 75, it may even be continued to age 80 at no further increase in premium and with no reduction in the benefits.

This is the popular, new "SERIES 550-R" Limited Accident and Sickness Policy which is being enthusiastically received by both men and women — it pays $25 a week up to 10 weeks for total disability resulting from certain specified accidents and sicknesses; $10 a week up to ten weeks for accidents not otherwise covered or excluded including accidents that happen in the home as well as at work, an ADDITIONAL $25 A WEEK up to four weeks from the first day of disability for accidents requiring hospital confinement within 30 days from date of accident. Even for a nondisabling accident such as a cut finger you get cash for doctor bills at the rate of $3 per visit up to $25. In case of accidental death within 90 days of the accident the policy pays $1,000 cash to your beneficiary in lieu of other benefits. Specified air travel coverage also included. Benefits are payable for covered accidents occurring after policy date.

The policy pays $25 a week up to 10 weeks after the first 7 days of total disability, during which time the Insured shall be under the regular care of a physician, and confined either at home or in a hospital because of sickness contracted more than 30 days from the policy date by pneumonia, cancer, diabetes, tuberculosis, polio, ulcer of stomach, or intestines, and operation for removal of appendix, hemorrhoids, gall bladder, kidney and prostate, and other sicknesses as described in our booklet, "Cash or Sympathy."

Policy also has a double idemnity feature covering travel accidents. You receive $50 a week if disabled by an accident to a bus, taxicab, train, subway or street car, or passenger steamship in which you are riding as a fare-paying passenger. You receive $75 a week up to 4 weeks if the accident requires hospital confinement. If such accident results in your death the benefit increases to $2,000 in lieu of other benefits.

Best of all the total cost of this policy is only $15 a year from ages 15 to 59 years . . . only $22.50 a year from 60 to 69 years . . . from ages 70 to 80 only $30 a year. Policy is renewable at the company's option. These rates cannot be increased by the company because they are set forth in the policy and are effective as long as the policy is in force.

POLICY ALSO PROVIDES A GRACE PERIOD OF 31 DAYS FOR PAYMENT OF ANY RENEWABLE PREMIUMS DURING WHICH PERIOD THE POLICY REMAINS IN FORCE.

Your benefits are never reduced even though you are also insured in a Group or other Hospitalization plan. So if you are now a member of some worthy hospitalization plan, you still need this additional protection. Most people—over 80%—are confined at home where hospitalization plans do not apply. Or, they are hospitalized for a few days or a week, then spend weeks of convalescence at home before they can go back to work again. The North American Policy pays specified benefits whether you are confined to your home or hospital.

Policy is sold to qualified men and women in all occupations except Quarrymen, Underground Miners, Smelter or Structural Iron Workers, Longshoremen or Stevedores. Retired persons, as well as housewives, are also eligible at these same low rates. It does not cover loss sustained outside of North, South or Central America; Air Travel (unless injured while riding as a fare-paying passenger on regular commercial airliner operating between definitely established airports); suicide, while in military or naval service outside the United States.

North American Accident Insurance Company has been in business for over 72 years and IS LICENSED BY THE INSURANCE DEPARTMENTS OF ALL 48 STATES AND THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Whether you are young or old, male or female, you need this sensible, necessary protection. Get full details by writing for the revealing booklet, "Cash or Sympathy." It will be sent without charge or obligation of any kind. Write to Premier Policy Division, North American Accident Insurance Company, of Chicago, 10 Commerce Court, Dept. 627, Newark 2, New Jersey.

Wild West 'Badman' Muffs Draw

By Herald Wire Services

AL JENNINGS, of Tarzana, Calif., now 95, was demonstrating to an old friend how he used to fan a .45 in the days when he was one of the West's better-known outlaws. "Now back in Kansas," said Al, "we did it like this."

The old revolver roared. The friend, Al Graves, 72, of Santa Clara, Calif., grabbed his right elbow. He had been hit.

Graves was taken to a hospital for treatment, and Jennings, sometimes called the "last of the old west badmen," was left the embarrassing task of telling police how it had happened.

"I guess I miscounted when I unloaded that thing," said Al. He said he thought he had emptied the old revolver's cylinder before showing Graves about fanning — firing by cocking the hammer back rapidly with the side of the free hand.

Jennings, who admitted in court once to killing three men, cattle stealing, and robbery, was pardoned by Theodore Roosevelt in 1907 while serving time for train robbery. After that he reformed.

King and Princess Have a Little Chat

KING BAUDOUIN of Belgium and Crown Princess Beatrix of the Netherlands met, apparently casually, and chatted in the lobby of the Hotel Post at St. Anton, Austria, fashionable skiing resort. Both are staying at the hotel.

There were rumors of romance but court spokesmen in The Hague promptly stepped on them with vigorous denials. For one thing, they noted, Beatrix, 21, is a member of Protestant dynasty while Baudouin, 27, is a Roman Catholic. While they have been here, they have done their skiing on separate slopes.

Playing Politics Is a Lot of Fun

SEN. RUSSELL LONG (D., La.) found a moment in the Senate recently when not a single Republican senator was present. Seizing the moment, he quickly and playfully proposed that Congress abolish the Republican Party.

Ever since, Republicans have been waiting for their chance. Recently it almost came. Minority Leader Everett Dirksen (R., Ill.) noticed that all Democrats were gone and announced he would propose abolition of the Democratic Party.

But, just then, Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) rushed in, calling, "I object." Said Dirksen:

"My friend from Minnesota has saved the day for the Democrats and I salute him for doing so."

Selling Stinkers Gets Him Jailed

JESS REED, 38, of Stockton, Calif., will be sentenced in Municipal Court here today for petty theft in the case of four allegedly deodorized skunks who weren't.

Reed pleaded guilty to the charge, which was the way the district attorney assessed the seriousness of his sale of four unimpaired skunks to pet dealers after representing them as incapable of doing what skunks are famous for. The dealers learned the truth the hard way.

SHERIFF LYNN Norris of Thomson, Ga. arrested Willie Hampton recently on a charge of stealing a radio from an ice house in October. Hampton admitted the theft and took the sheriff to a vacant house where the radio had been hidden.

It was gone. Norris said someone had stolen it from Hampton.

Making Foreign Cash a Crime

MEXICO CITY — (AP) — The supreme court has ruled that counterfeiting is a crime even if you fake foreign money.

It acted on the appeal of Salvador Viruliche, who was sentenced to four years in prison for making U.S. quarters. His lawyer contended Viruliche should go free because Mexican money wasn't involved.

Germans On March In Korea

By KEYES BEECH
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

SEOUL — American businessmen, who have regarded South Korea as their private preserve, are complaining about competition from a new and unexpected source — West Germany.

The West Germans are, in fact, doing quite well for themselves. Like the American businessman, they are interested in the seemingly endless flow of Yankee aid dollars into this rather overaided republic.

A hard-headed, capable lot, they are interested in business — not philanthropy. Their biggest deal so far is a contract with the ROK government to build a nitrogen fertilizer plant for $23,500,000.

The contract calls for the plant to be completed by 1961 and includes the training of Korean engineers to take over its operation within six months after completion.

By contrast, an American firm, using U.S. aid dollars, has built a similar plant at a cost of $34,000,000. It is scheduled to be in production by June of this year — 15 months behind schedule.

The American plant will use expensive imported fuel oil to make fertilizer. The Germans will use cheap Korean coal.

Power Steering Sprouts Wings

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The aircraft industry has developed an electronic power steering system for supersonic fighter - bombers that makes takeoffs and landings at speeds of 200 miles an hour as easy as steering the family automobile.

Planes, official publication of the Aircraft Industries Association says conventional mechanical steering systems were too slow to cope with the high speed of the latest aircraft. A half-second delay in responding to the pilot's signal could send the jet plunging off the runway.

The new system, which was tailor-made to match the average pilot's physical reactions, guarantees complete control of the jet on the ground at all times.

Put Nerves to Sleep-Stop Pain of Swollen Piles in Minutes!

Pain, itching of swollen piles are torture. You may think there's no relief without an operation. Yet... thousands have discovered how to stop this nagging discomfort in minutes — and without surgery! A remarkable compound you use at home makes you feel worlds better, right away! Not only reduces swelling but stops pain at once, promotes healing of inflamed tissues too!

Preparations that just act to "shrink" piles can't offer complete symptomatic relief. For real comfort, fast, you need this more complete medication, called Stainless Pazo. In doctors' tests, patients reported immediate relief of discomfort. That's because Stainless Pazo combines the most effective ingredients known for piles. Thus works 3 ways at once: 1. Anesthetic action stops pain, itching in minutes... puts rectal nerves to sleep, thus relaxing muscle spasms that cause discomfort. 2. Reduces tissue swelling, congestion... protruding parts shrink. 3. Promotes healing of raw tissues. You get immediate new comfort while Nature's own healing magic goes to work.

Don't suffer needlessly one more day. To sit, stand, walk without pain again, get Stainless Pazo Suppositories or Ointment at druggists. Get glorious relief without surgery or money back!

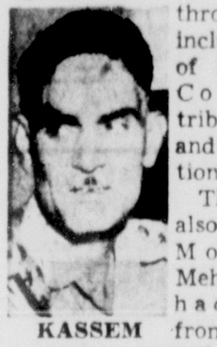
New Cabinet Gets Tough

Iraq Cracks Down on Reds

By the Associated Press



KASSEM

DAMASCUS — Local press reports Monday said Premier Abdel Karim Kassem's new cabinet has ordered arrests throughout Iraq, including scores of leading anti-Communists, tribal leaders and Arab nationalists.

The reports also said Sheikh Mohammed Mehdi Kubba had resigned from the sovereignty council, protesting that the Iraqi cabinet now was Communist dominated.

Another report said six cabinet ministers who resigned Thursday were placed under house arrest. The ministers had urged closer ties with President Gamal Abdel Nasser and the United Arab Republic.

The replacement of most of the civilian cabinet members has shifted the Baghdad government to the left, but no known members of the Communist Party were brought into the government. There now is a heavy concentration from the National Democratic Party, a leftist but non-Communist faction which leans toward socialism.

The National Democrats are followers of elder statesman Kamel Chaderchi, who was in jail or under house arrest during most of the regime of pro-Western Premier Nuri Said, killed in last July's revolt.

Chaderchi approves the idea of a federation of Arab states but is not very interested in total union with the U.A.R.

Chaderchi is not a Communist, but he has insisted for a long time that his party could cooperate safely with the Reds.

Indonesia Buys American Arms

JAKARTA, Indonesia — The U.S. is selling Indonesia enough light weapons and vehicles to equip 20 new battalions, or about 14,000 troops. It is the first major sale of American military equipment to the island republic in several years.

The deal also includes one Navy ship — type not disclosed — and other Navy and Air Force items.

U.S. Ambassador Howard P. Jones informed Foreign Minister Subandrio that President Eisenhower had approved the sale. Jones did not announce the size of the shipment, but unofficial reports said it would be worth about 10 million dollars.

The sale was taken as an indication that the U.S. has faith that President Sukarno's government will remain independent of the Soviet bloc as well as of the West in the cold war. It is certain to boost already-rising American prestige still further in Indonesia.

Premier Djuanda told newsmen the arms deal "is the best proof of a greater U.S. confidence in the Indonesian government and of a better appreciation of our foreign policy."

Polish Priest Gets Jail Term

WARSAW — A Polish court Monday sentenced the Rev. Marian Pirozynski to two years in jail on charges of violating censorship, bribing officials and black market dealings.

Of his 14-co-defendants, two were sentenced to jail terms and eight received suspended sentences. Three were acquitted and the case against one was dropped.

Court sources said the eight months the Roman Catholic priest spent in prison before trial will be deducted from his sentence and that he probably will receive a year off for good behavior. This would mean he would be out of jail in June.

Father Pirozynski, editor of the Roman Catholic semi-monthly Homo Dei (Man of God), told the court he would continue his efforts to propagate the word of God by every possible means "when I get out of jail."

The priest, a tall, white-haired man of 60, was the most prominent Roman Catholic personality to be prosecuted in Communist Poland since the conclusion of a church-state agreement in December 1956. Besides the jail term, he was fined 4,000 zlotys ($40 at the free market rate.)

No Love School, Police Decide

SALZBURG, Austria — Salzburg police complained Monday against what they charged were exaggerated reports claiming that a "love school" had been uncovered here in which teenagers were taught love-making at hot music parties.

The police said they had investigated complaints by neighbors against a 35-year-old woman who allegedly conducted the parties for Salzburg youths in her home but that they found no grounds to arrest her.

"We found no evidence of immoral match-making at these parties," said a police spokesman.

Reports obtained by some Vienna newspapers from their Salzburg reporters claimed police had questioned 30 Salzburg teenagers in the affair. These published reports alleged the youngsters received "theoretical and practical instructions in lovemaking" at parties held ostensibly to listen to records, and debating.

BUICK ELECTRA 225

IF YOU'RE IN THE MOOD FOR ELEGANCE

...and for saving $900, too!

This is the new Buick that's stirring the "luxury car" world as it hasn't been stirred in years.

This is Buick's new Electra 225 . . . offered in 4-door hardtop, 4-door Riviera sedan, or a stunning convertible.

It brings you Buick's new leadership in style at its most luxurious.

It is a car of magnificent performance and impeccable good taste.

It is perhaps the quietest car to ride in built in America today.

Its owners are reporting gasoline mileage surprisingly high in a car so luxurious and so able.

This is not only the finest Buick ever built in its quality of manufacture and appointments . . . but growing numbers of people call it the finest car built in America today, and much the most desirable.

For the $900 mentioned above is almost exactly the difference between the manufacturer's suggested retail price on the window of this car, and that on the other luxury cars. (Equipped with automatic transmission, power brakes, power steering, radio, heater, Easy Eye Glass, white sidewall tires, license plate frames.)

So, if elegance is what you want, see your Quality Buick Dealer and discover the new kind of luxury value Electra 225 has to offer.

SIT INSIDE...AND FEEL WHAT'S HERE!

Only from inside this car can you fully sense its new accomplishment. Only as you feel the richness of its wool broadcloth or rich Nylon upholstery . . . the quiet beauty of its fittings . . . the utter silence and great comfort of its motion . . . Then, and only then, can you sense how Buick has given true luxury in motoring a brand new meaning in price!

Time Your Best Ally In Preventing Mistake

By ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN:

Our son will be 21 years old on the 15th of next month. On that day he will inherit $4,000 from his grandmother's estate.

ANN

He told us he has asked a 15-year-old girl to marry him. She accepted, and what is more, she has her parent's consent.

We've never met the parents but we know the girl. She looks older than 15 but the minute she opens her mouth you know it's an adolescent talking. The thought of this girl being a wife and mother scares me. She has three years more of high school and plans to quit and "go back later."

We are simply mortified and would like some advice. — SHOCKED PARENTS.

Parents who would give a 15-year-old girl permission to marry should have their heads examined. And your Sonny Boy must have a few loose bolts up there, too.

Of course you must do everything within your power to persuade your son to postpone this marriage. Time is your best ally. Ask your clergyman to talk with him, or the family doctor—some one whose opinion he respects.

He must be made to realize that marriage is not like buying a new car that can be traded in if he doesn't like it. People change, particularly during adolescence. In three years this girl will be entirely different. She may have reached her full physical growth at 15, but emotionally and mentally she has a long way to go.

Good luck. I hope you get through to him.

DEAR ANN:

My husband is the janitor in an auditorium in which operas, musical comedies and theatrical performances are staged. Our friends and relatives don't seem to know the difference between a producer and a janitor.

Every few weeks somebody asks him to fix up an audition for a niece, a cousin or a brother who can sing, dance, or do bird imitations.

He has knocked himself out for people time and again and it was never appreciated. Now he says he doesn't want to be bothered anymore. His sister is mad at him because her next door neighbor has worked up a magic act and all he needs to crash the big time is "a break." She says he's selfish to deprive this genius of an opportunity to get ahead in the world. I say "baloney." What do YOU say, Ann? —THE WIFE.

Dear Wife: Make it two, please — mine on rye. Tell your husband if he wants to give a listen and decide which geniuses are worth an audition, O.K. But not to let people use him.

My Answer

Pray God To Receive Fellowship

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: I can't go to church, for there is none near here. In such a case, is there anyway I can enter into the fellowship of believers and do my duty as a Christian?

ANSWER: The church is the normal center for Christian fellowship and expression. There you can join in prayer and study of the Scriptures for your spiritual growth and enjoyment.

GRAHAM

But God is an understanding God who always takes into account our circumstances and knows when they are beyond our power to direct and control. First, you should definitely pray that if possible. He would lead you to a place where you can enjoy the blessing of fellowship.

Then, until such a change is possible, you should plan to study your Bible regularly and systematically.

Get the helps available in one of the Bible Study courses provided by Bible Colleges. Develop your personal prayer life, especially praying for those who are engaged in the proclamation of the Gospel. Your stewardship is also a vital part of your Christian life. Plan to share in the spread of the work of God through systematic giving.

Above all, don't be too dissatisfied with your present situation. God may want you right where you are for some important mission that no other person can do. Ask Him to give you insight and understanding in the matter.

'Bills, Bills, Bills, I Had to Get Away'

Wife No. 2 Told Police; He's Through With Her!

SAN JOSE, Calif. —(AP)— "I didn't want two wives," says Brian Wahlken, a jobless 22-year-old draftsman who was jailed in a bigamy investigation.

Police said Wahlken, who lives at nearby Mountain View, started his double life in November when he married Rachel Belasco, a 22-year-old theater usher in Reno. His first wife is Jenny, 24.

"Jenny and I were married early last year and there were bills, bills, bills," Wahlken said. I had to get away from it all."

He met Rachel and dated her every night for three weeks. Finally they drove to Reno and got married, he said.

"It was going to be a new life. I was going to get a job and, as soon as I could, I was going to get a dovirce (from Jenny)," he said.

He didn't find a job and police said that he lived one night a week with Jenny and the other six with Rachel.

Jenny talked Friday to Rachel's mother. Among the information exchanged was the fact that both wives were pregnant.

Rachel complained to police and Wahlken said he is finished with Rachel.

"First she talked about an annulment, then she goes for this bigamy charge. If I get a chance I'll try to make it up with Jenny, she can cook!" Wahlken said.

In this week's Post...

the laughter-filled, glamorous, intimate story

My Husband, Arthur Murray

What's it like being married to a temperamental yet charming, generous but penny-pinching, shy yet publicity-seeking genius? To have him as your sponsor on TV? To be his partner in the largest dancing empire in the world?

In this week's Saturday Evening Post, you'll read Kathryn Murray's own very honest, very surprising story of her life with Arthur. You'll learn:

- of the hilarious first dance between the giddy 18-year-old flapper and the sophisticated bachelor.
- what it's like for a grandmother to become a TV star at 50, and to have her husband as her boss.
- why Arthur's had one of the stormiest careers in TV history (in the first year alone he ran through four directors, five producers and one advertising agency).
- what really goes on in the Arthur Murray dance studios throughout the country.
- about the time Arthur taught a British dance instructor the Black Bottom by transatlantic phone!
- how Winthrop Rockefeller led a riotous conga line out of the dance studio, along Fifth Avenue, and up to the top of Rockefeller Center.

And you'll find out what it was like for a shy boy who grew up in great poverty to teach Firestones, Whitneys, Kennedys, Barbara Hutton, Elizabeth Arden, Tallulah Bankhead and other celebrities how to dance.

It's the most fascinating—and wonderfully exuberant—story you've read in years. You'll be delighted with "My Husband, Arthur Murray" starting in this week's Post.

See them each week in the Post; watch Arthur Murray demonstrate the Dance of the Week each Monday night during "The Arthur Murray Party" on TV, Channel 7.

Dade County Teachers Work Longer, Get Less

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Education Writer

Dade County school teachers work longer and get paid less than teachers in nearly all of the nation's other large school systems.

That was revealed Monday by the legislative committee of the local Classroom Teachers Association, which is stockpiling statistics to fire at the coming State Legislature.

Among the aims likely to be sought by state teacher groups at this session will be higher salary minimums, longer sick leave, and possibly a shorter work year.

Checking the top salaries paid holders of bachelors' degrees in the 25 urban school districts of more than a half-million population, the Dade group found local teachers are third from the bottom of the list.

Top pay here for the holder of a B.S. degree is $5,600. New Orleans is at the bottom of the list with $5,264 and New York is on top at $7,600.

Average for the 25 cities was Minneapolis, where a teacher can get $6,500 a year without an advanced degree.

The CTA's figures, distributed in a booklet, showed that teachers in only one other school system have a longer work year.

Dade teachers work 196 days, while those in Detroit put in 200 days. The average in the 25 school systems was 184.

Teachers in Houston, who have the same maximum pay as Dade County, had the shortest work year — 175 days.

Despite the low pay and long hours in Florida's largest school system, more teachers in this state tend to stay in teaching than in many other states, the CTA figures indicated.

An estimated 9.5 per cent of Florida teachers will leave the profession this year, compared to 18.6 per cent in Nevada and 3.3 per cent in South Carolina.

Amazing Herbold Pomade
Tones Down Gray Hair
Keeps Men's Hair Neat, Alive, Young

M. Herbold, Hollywood Chemist, noted Inventor of Herbold Pomade, tells men how to avoid Gray Hair.

If the years have stolen the natural color and oils from your hair, leaving streaks of dry lifeless gray – simply use Herbold Pomade instead of your regular hair dressing. Massage it in, with fingertips. That's all there is to it!

This clean, easy-to-use hair cream adds color to gray, streaked or faded hair, so gradually, and blends it so perfectly with your own natural color. Your hair will look young and alive again, with the color it had before it became old and gray.

If you are completely gray, or have only a few gray hairs – if you were once blonde or brunette, this one and only Herbold Pomade will add just the right touch of lasting color for your hair. The improvement is so real, so gradual, no one, not even yourself, can tell you are using anything but a fine hair dressing – because the special oils in Herbold Pomade groom, condition and restore that lustrous, alive, neat young look.

Start using Herbold Pomade today. In 1 to 3 weeks you will have the assurance of looking younger, without gray hair.

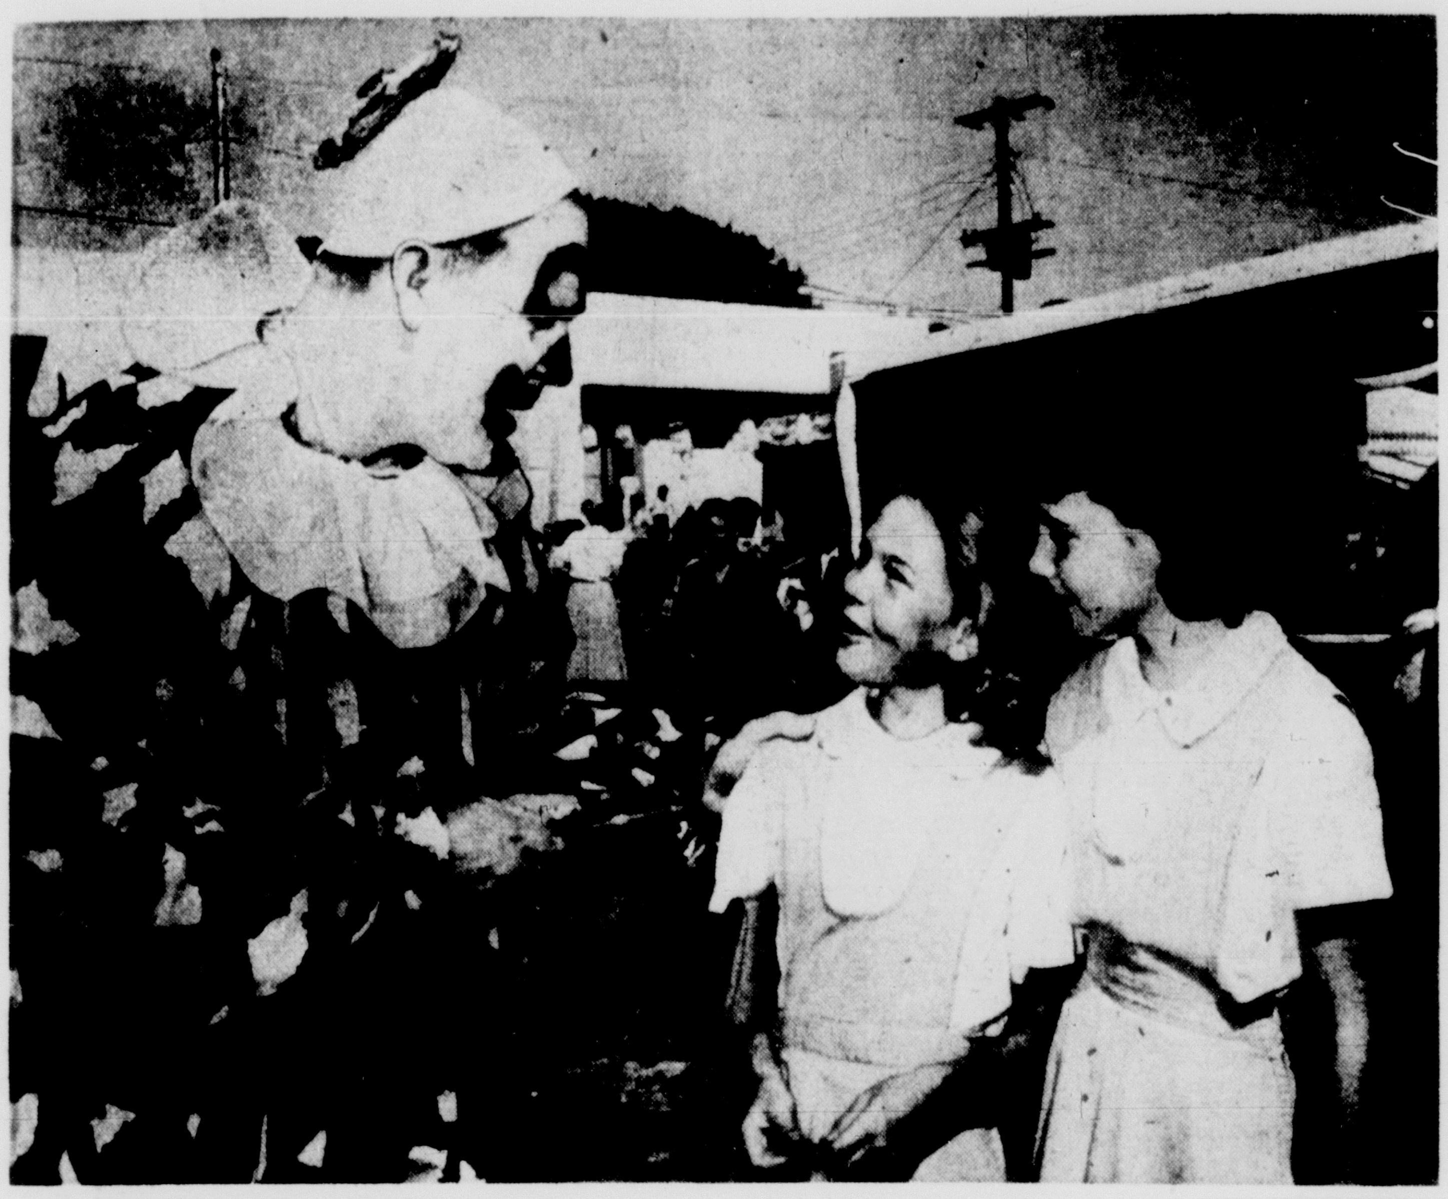
For and about WOMEN



HEY DAD, YOU LOOK FUNNY! Ed Roberts, dressed as a clown, was supposed to be the funny man at St. Theresa Home and School Association's Mardi Gras festival. Here he's teasing his daughter Ellen, a fourth grader, and her friend Susan Novak. Many of the local Catholic schools held their festivals and carnivals just before Lent begins on Wednesday.

Junior Chomps Are Target For Two PTA Projects

By ELEANOR DIXON
Herald Club Editor

EDISON JUNIOR HIGH
LITTLE RIVE ELEMENTAR

Children's smiles at Edison Junior High School and Little River Elementary School should be brighter and healthier if the PTAs of both schools have their way.

The two PTAs are working on dental health programs. Each has a different approach but the thought behind each one is the same—keep the children's teeth in good repair.

Dental Clinic

EDISON'S PROGRAM is a direct one. The PTA has started a dental health clinic for children who can't afford to pay a private dentist.

Four dentists are volunteering their services and will be paid by the PTA for the cost of materials used. Two of the dentists are fathers of students and two are Edison graduates.

The project came up when Mrs. Charles D. Allen, PTA health chairman, learned from the school doctor and nurse that some needy children could not meet the qualifications for county dental services. But they still needed their teeth fixed.

Starting in February the children who have been screened by school officials for physical and financial need will have appointments with the four dentists. (A dental survey showed that 58 children needed dental work).

The dentists have volunteered to serve for one year and Mrs. Allen says, "We hope to budget more PTA money for the program next year. We want to continue it until the county agencies provide enough dental clinics."

Contest

LITTLE RIVER PTA's dental health program hinges on an incentive plan.

All the school rooms are enrolled in a contest to see how many children bring in certificates from their dentists that their dental work is completed. Rooms with the best percentages will receive prizes in April.

During the year dentists are talking at PTA meetings about what parents can do to keep their children's teeth healthy.

The school has been chosen by the Miami Dental Society as part of its survey on dental health, and dentists will be working with teachers, too, to tell them how to teach dental health in the classrooms.

Mrs. E. I. Hilderbrand, PTA president, says the number of needy children in the school's area is perhaps double the normal percentage in other schools because of the number of public housing units in the area.

Fourteen of the children qualified for the Dade County Dental Clinic and PTA members are taking the children to and from the clinic.

"It's amazing how much work these children need. One first grader's teeth were so bad that the dentist at the clinic didn't want to handle it in the office. The child is being sent to Variety Childen's Hospital to have all the work done at one time," she said.

The dental health project is in addition to the PTA's regular health project — maintaining the school's health room where a full time paid attendant gives first aid to the childen and calls the mothers if they need to be sent home.

Cotillion Welcomes Five New Members

Hatted and gloved, practically all of Cotillion Club's 75 or so members met for luncheon in the Biscayne Room of the McAllister Monday. This group of young matrons, who got together just a few years ago solely to plan for themselves and their husbands three or four parties a year, were welcoming in five new members and their new slate of officers.

Joining the old members this year are Betty (Mrs. Paul) Fransella, Charlotte (Mrs. Starr W.) Horton, Marianne (Mrs. James R.) Northcutt, Cynthia (Mrs. Edwin H. Jr.) Underwood, Sara (Mrs. Dan G.) Wheeler.

Miami High Skit To Show History

An elaborate Founders' Day musical play will be presented by Miami Senior High School PTA at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in the auditorium, 2450 SW 1st St.

The play, in which parents and teachers will sing and dance, consists of musical numbers from 1890 to 1959, ranging from the Bird in a Gilded Cage to a skit about the 1959 PTA member.

Mrs. W. G. Gunnoe wrote the skit and will be narrator.

Pockets Are So Handy

Every little girl loves pockets on her dresses. Sometimes the ones you buy in stores do not have them.

If you want to please your tiny miss just open the waist seam about two inches and insert a pocket that you have stitched all the way around except at the top.

Insert the pocket from the wrong side of the dress and sew the raw seams of the pocket and the dress together.

PERSON TO PERSON

SURPRISE — practically a shock — to the 770 people who attended the eighth annual St. Francis Hospital "pink poodle ball" at the Surf Club on Monday was the absence of Sister Mary Magdalena and her staff in the receiving line.

Bishop Coleman F. Carroll of the Miami diocese had decreed that the sisters not be present.

So — guests were greeted by Mrs. Nelson Swift Morris in elegant pink satin and pearls, H. B. Hooper, Fred Snite who underwrites this annual benefit, Albert J. Horan, and Robert E. Petersen.

But Msgr. William Berry of St. Patrick's Cathedral was on hand in his cassock, as were a number of other Catholic dignitaries.

With 770 people to feed and be served, I went out to talk to Rudolph Kressevich, head chef who came from Trieste, and incidentally, doesn't get nervous over big events. He is a pale, blond placid man.

He explained that he did not hire any extra kitchen help — he would rather let his own men earn the overtime. Salads and desserts were prepared in the late afternoon, and two and a half hours before dinnertime, the kitchen staff started the cornish hens and accompanying dishes.

But 65 additional waiters were hired, making 80 in all. There were 25 extra busboys, making a total of 35, to park cars and perform other duties.

Color theme of the ball was pink, with cunning pink stuffed poodles for favors, and a real live poodle given away. Bonus for the guests was a fashion show.

At the table with Virginia and Jim Gerity — she in pale pink satin—were Lottie and George Whitten, Adm. and Mrs. Albert Cushing Read, the F. Rouse Smiths, Rial and Chuck McCaffrey, Irma and Ed Collins.

George Whitten had had a harrowing experience Monday afternoon. He had been trapped in an elevator in a downtown building. He had Arthur Vining Davis as a companion in the elevator.

Mrs. Fred Snite Sr. was wearing a flowered chiffon gown. "I did not buy a new, pink dress for the party," she said.

Among doctors from St. Francis were Dr. and Mrs. Francis E. Denman, she in gray net over pink; Dr. and Mrs. Cayetano Panettiere, Dr. and Mrs. Clay Shaw and Dr. and Mrs. Herman Boughton. Frances Boughton confided that she is about to become a grandmother again, and is all a-twitter.

Eleanor Kelly, there with Bill, was wearing an elegant silver lame sheath with cape attached to the shoulders with brilliants.

Amelia Coury, there with George, had on a haute couture sky blue harem - skirted dress; Gertrude Farrey, accompanied by Lloyd, was in crimson lace.

Col. and Mrs. Charles Mettler were in the company, she in soft blue chiffon; Helen de Grandcourt and Billie and Julio Sanchez joined forces for a table of guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Igleheart, Dr. John Oliver La-Gorce, and Rita and Dayton Fertig, were more glimpsed among the crowd.

'Bachelor Girls' Give Party

TWO BACHELOR "GIRLS," Grace Frain and Mary Beard, gathered 70 of their friends for cocktails, dining and dancing at the Surf Club on Sunday evening for a merry party.

They greeted their guests in the pool terrace bar, making nice foils for one another, Mary in black and Grace in white linen. After the cocktail hour, the company adjourned to the downstairs ocean front room for dinner and dancing.

Nice to see Jessie Beaumont out again after her long siege with a broken hip. She and husband, Phil, came with her sister, Mrs. Albert Schaller of Janesville, Wis., where the thermometer was 15 below when she left to come to sunny Miami. The Beaumonts' vast ocean front estate on Collins Ave. is in a zone which has been re-zoned, much to their sorrow.

Sadie and Pat Cummings drove up in their handsome "solid gold" Continental, a pale gold beauty which was in Pat's Christmas sock. They were at the head of the three sided rectangular table along with Blanche Swift Morris, Betty and Orion Mather, Judge and Mrs. Leonard O'Connor.

Lessie and Walter Merrill, Pauline (Mrs. C. P.) Mayer in a smart coral linen sheath, Dorothy White in a pink jeweled cocktail suit, squired by George Sofield, Ruth and Ted Hodge were dining and dancing.

Bill Richey told of the cruise he and Terry Campbell are planning this summer. They are taking off for a four months jaunt to Africa. Mae Peters, Edith Rowe from the Gables, Dr. and Mrs. Bill Budreau, Barbara and George Blaisdell were more.

At another table were Evie and Gen. Robert Wood Johnson and their house guests at their Indian Creek Island home, Lord and Lady Dynevor of England.

These visitors came over from Nassau and go from here to Palm Beach to visit Mrs. Ed Hutton there after their visit in Miami.

More About Young Presidents

TWO OF THE MEMBERS of the Young Presidents Organization, fresh from Nassau and the annual YPO meeting there, Bill Long of Tarboro, N. C., and Wally Bowler plus his pretty wife, Julie, of Newport News, Va., gave a small cocktail party on Sunday afternoon at the Sea View Hotel where they are staying.

Bill Long, who terms himself "just an ole country Tar Heel" and his brother invented a better hay binder and have made millions from it. Bill is president of the Long Manufacturing Co. in Tarboro.

A local YP, David Schine and his lovely Hillevi, stopped by on their way to the Symphony concert. They are beaming over the prospects of an addition to their family in August.

David said his mother Hildegarde (Mrs. Meyer) Schine arrives this week after a stay at Duke where she lost 18 pounds on the rice diet. It was at Duke that David and Hillevi met Larry Haugen, also a rice dieter, and also a party guest.

And Parties Continue

Invitations for a luncheon on March 11 at the Sea View Hotel are in the mail from Claire Hayden. She is entertaining for her friend Dorritt (Mrs. David) Chalmers of Denver who is staying at the hotel.

Famous Poets Will Judge Laramore-Rader Contests

Judges for the Laramore-Rader Poetry Group this year will be Joseph Auslander and his wife, Audrey Wurdemann, new Coral Gables residents.

Mr. Auslander, a poet and novelist, formerly taught at Columbia University. Mrs. Auslander (Audrey Wurdemann) won the Pulitzer prize for poetry in 1935 and at the time was the youngest poet to receive that prize.

The poetry group meets at 2 p.m. today in the home of Mrs. L. J. Johnston, 1251 Mariola Ct., Coral Gables. Members who have recently sold poems include Hannah Kahn, Stella Tuttle, Harriet Gray Blackwell and Clara Plager.

THE PALE LOOK IN LIPSTICK, well defined eyes is the New Look for spring, 1959. And don't forget your fake eyelashes.

Lip Look for Spring: Pale, Clear and Frothy

By ELEANOR HART
Herald Glamor Clinic Editor

Glamor Clinic

Comes the Spring and cosmeticians' fancy inevitably turns to fresh, light lipstick shades . . . the darker tones of winter wear are as passe as yesteryear's Bouffant coiffure.

This year it's the clear, cool, frothy colors that get the nod for spring and summer fashions. "The new look is the pale, pale look in lipstick," says a local cosmetic saleswoman, "with dramatic emphasis on the eyes."

The colors are unlimited, and they sound good enough to eat. In the pink and purple realm, you can choose from Frosted Pink, Strawberry Vanilla, Raspberry, Violet and Grape Icing. In the orangy shades, Tangerine, Mango and Toffee Sherbet, Orange Float, and Coral and Honey Vanilla.

And for an extra fillip, there is Nougat, a pinkish flesh tone that you apply over the orange tones for a frosty look and underneath for a darker look; and White a la Carte, which is used in the same way for blue, pink or red tones.

Another well-known cosmetic line is stressing Pure Pink lipstick, a true note of color uncomplicated by hints of blue or orange.

But whether you're Pure Pink or a Tangerine Sherbet type, don't forget your eye shadow, with eyes completely outlined as close to the lashes as possible.

The Pure Pink advocates also have fake eyelashes, made of real hair, available at a modest price. They are easily applied with a liquid adhesive and applicator that are packaged with the lashes.

IN APPLYING your lipstick, new or old, remember:

1. A TOO THIN MOUTH needs, along with the regular lipstick or brush, a fine line of one shade darker lipstick drawn a fraction outside the ridge of the lips.

2. OVERLY FULL LIPS take the reverse — a brush line of a touch of lighter lipstick just inside the lip ridge.

3. PREPOSSESING LOWER lip takes a slightly paler lipstick.

Don't cut corners in lipstick—bring your lipstick all the way out to the corners of the mouth, the experts say, unless the mouth is particularly wide.

The most satisfying method of applying lipstick is to rest your elbow securely on a dressing table, or brace your pinky finger at the center of your chin while the rest of the fingers do the work.

For a clearly sculptured mouth, remove all trace of previous color, then add a drop or two of moisture. Apply a first coat of lipstick, then blot with tissue. Dust lips lightly with powder, and follow with a second coat of lipstick. Wait two minutes and blot again.

To learn trade names of new lipstick shades and where they're available, call Herald Shopping Service FR 9-3826 after 9:30 a.m. today. After 24 hours, write for information to Shopping Service, Miami Herald, Miami, Fla., enclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

CAN'T TASTE, EITHER

Sense of Smell Is Gone — Why?

By DR. J. G. MOLNER

DEAR DR. MOLNER:

Do you know of any cause for a person losing the sense of smell and taste? I have often lost it during a cold but this time I have not regained it.

I can detect sweet and salt, but the individual taste for food has left me.—K.K.

There isn't anything unusual about losing your sense of taste when you lose your sense of smell. In fact, quite the opposite — it would be astonishing of you lost the sense of smell WITHOUT having your taste impaired.

Dr. J. G. Molner

You see, flavor really is detected by the sense of smell. The sensations of sweet and sour are detected through taste buds in the tongue; the other aspects of flavor are a function of the nose rather than the mouth.

If this sounds odd to you, just remember how easy it is to tell what's cooking on the stove just from the smell!

The principal causes of losing the sense of smell are some catarrhal situation in the nose; head injuries which can at times have this effect; and a condition known as atrophic rhinitis, wherein the normal secretions of the nose are absent, and the membranes become very dry.

What About A Sunlamp?

DEAR DR. MOLNER:

What do you think of a person using a sunlamp? Will it cause the skin to peel? Are there any other disadvantages? —X.

A sunlamp gives ultra-violet rays. So does the sun. The midsummer sun is much more intense. Still, a long enough exposure under a sunlamp can cause a burn, and hence peeling.

My general answer to you is this: I have no objection to sunlamps, nor to sunlight, so long as folks don't become suntan worshipers.

Heavy sunburn is neither healthful nor attractive, and excessive frying actively harms the skin.

Attention all women! For my new pamphlet, "The Pre-Menstrual Blues," write to me in care of The Miami Herald, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and five cents in coin to cover handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible. Write to him in care of The Miami Herald.

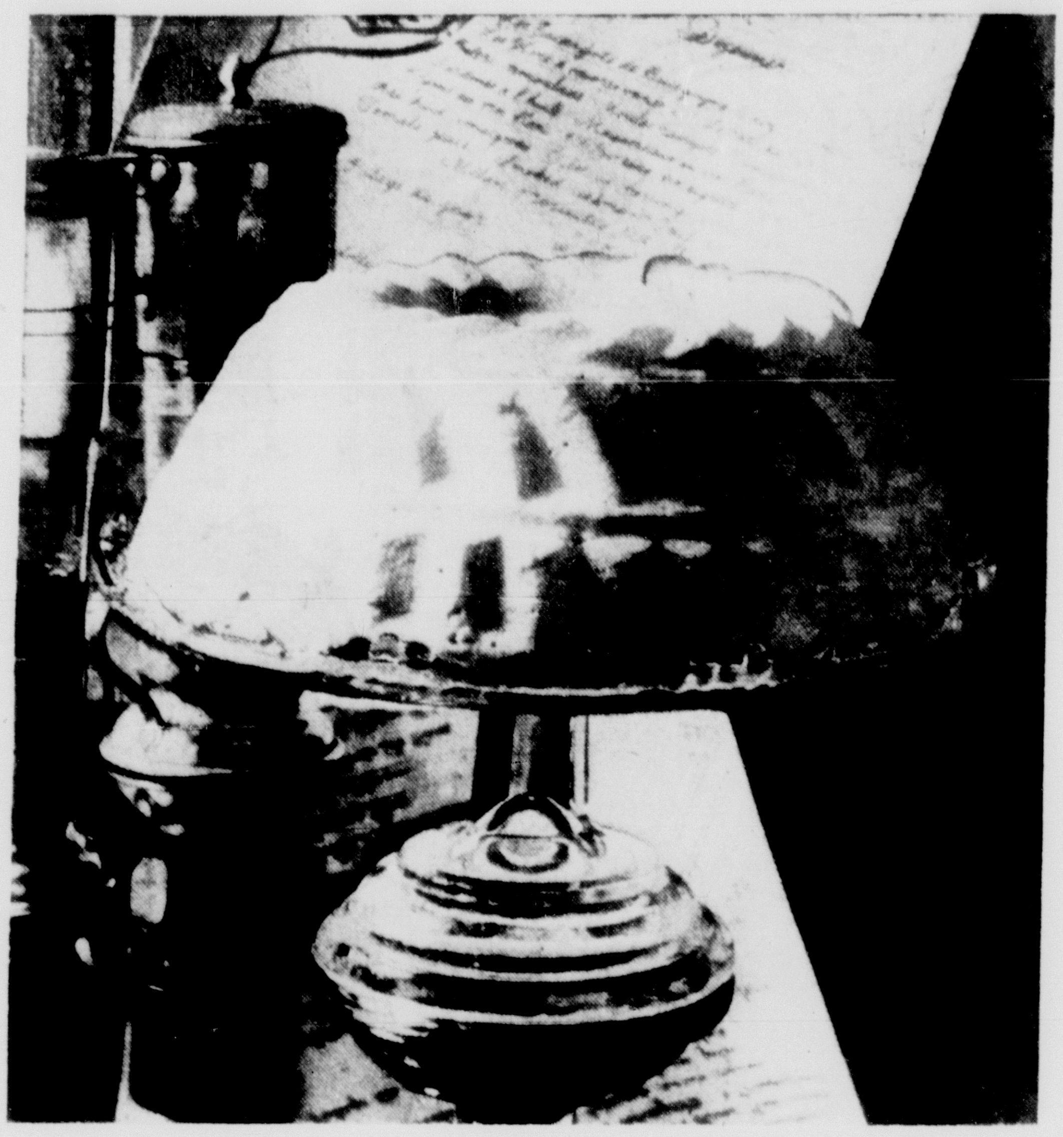
Dessert for Weight Watchers



Mousse With a Continental Air Is Dieters' Delight
. . . smooth, luscious, but only 100 calories per serving

By JEANNE VOLTZ
Herald Homemaking Editor

Desserts are the downfall of many weight watchers.

But some lavish desserts can be adapted to hold-the-waist-line diets. Dieters' Coffee Mousse tastes and looks like pure sin to a dieter. Yet it contains only 100 calories per serving.

Daily Food Guide

Evaporated milk (and a good diet contains some milk) takes the place of heavy cream. Artificial sweetener stands in for sugar.

This dinner costs you only 400 calories.

WEIGHT WATCHERS' DINNER
Broiled Chicken
Steamed Snap Beans
Sliced Tomato with Parsley Sprinkles
Crisp Breadsticks
Dieters' Coffee Mousse

If you prefer to use sugar in the dessert use one-third cup. Add to hot gelatin mixture and stir to dissolve.

DIETERS' COFFEE MOUSSE
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
1 tall can evaporated milk, chilled icy cold
2 tablespoons instant coffee (as it comes from jar)
2 teaspoons liquid sweetener
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sprinkle gelatin on cold water in saucepan to soften. Place over medium heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat. Stir in 1 cup of the evaporated milk, instant coffee, sweetener, salt and vanilla. Chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon.

While gelatin is chilling, pour remaining evaporated milk into refrigerator freezing tray. Freeze until ice crystals form around edges.

Turn into chilled bowl and whip with rotary beater or on high speed of electric mixer until milk is stiff. Fold into gelatin mixture. Turn into a 5-cup mold. Chill until firm. Unmold to serve. Makes 6 servings, about 100 calories each.

Save Lime Rinds For a Garnish

Save lemon or lime halves after squeezing out the juice and cut away squashed-down membrane; slice into thin rings.

Use the lemon rings as pretty garnishes by pulling cooked snap beans or canned asparagus through them.

Festive touch when company's coming!

'What Does a Divorcee Do With Ex-Husband's Rings?

By AMY VANDERBILT

DEAR MISS VANDERBILT:

My husband and I have been separated for 2½ years. I have met a man who has asked me to marry him after I get my divorce.

Amy Vanderbilt

Can I accept his ring now or do I wait until after the divorce? We are both in our thirties.

What do I do with my first set of rings?

—M. R., Hollywood, Fla.

Do not wear a new engagement ring until your divorce is final. No matter what Hollywood does, this is in very bad taste.

Your previous rings are yours, so do what you wish with them.

Sometimes where there are still friendly relations between the divorcing couple, the wife sells the rings and divides the proceeds — but she is not obliged to do this. Sometimes, on the other hand, she has an engagement stone reset in some way.

Or, if she has children, she may save the rings for them.

WHICH IS WHICH?

Canned peas marked Early, June, or Early June are of the smooth skin variety. The ones marked Sweet or Sugar are late maturing and have a natural sweet flavor.

ACHE

'I Know Our Blissful Marriage Will Endure'

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

Not only do I think and tell people I have the best husband in the world—I tell him, too, even the neighbors and clerks in stores who know us — how wonderful he is.

We were married, had absolutely no common interests, totally different backgrounds, but an overwhelming physical attraction. That was 17 years ago.

Today we are still physically attracted, but can look back, and forward. We've had practically no quarrels and those few were in the early years, usually at a cocktail party, and of all ridiculous topics, on the Civil War!

My husband was an alcoholic and had no religion. Ulcers helped cure him, though we both enjoy an occasional cocktail. He has been baptised, goes to church and Holy Communion weekly.

He did this all on his own. Later he said he could never have done it without me, so his silent efforts were more than rewarded.

I did have a nervous breakdown during the alcoholic days and have been in rather poor health since. We have two beautiful adopted children, and devote our time to them.

Our blissful marriage will continue for we've always lived for each other, and now we have the children.

If only the complaining people would look at the good in their mates and remember why they married them, maybe they would find the patience to start over themselves, which may automatically induce their mate to change.

I could write a book on the nice things my husband has done for me and how I kept my composure through alcoholism, but that is not important. What is important is thinking, praying and showing him YOU haven't changed and love him more each day.

FORTUNATE WIFE

Obviously, you two fortunate people deserve each other . . . it's a pleasure to print your letter.

'I'm an Invalid But I'm Loved'

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

I would like to tell you about a wonderful man. We were married three months when I was taken ill. Since that time I have been an invalid.

We have spent everything we had saved and all he has made on specialists, yet the answer is always the same.

We are comparatively young and incapacitation is a hard and lonely way of life. Yet not once has my husband complained. He works in a factory eight hours a day, takes care of me, cleans house, does the laundry, works in the yard and cheers me when I get despondent.

He makes me feel I'm needed and wanted, and most of all, loved dearly.

This isn't a recent thing—he's had seven years of it. Yet his love grows deeper. He's always planning our future, although he hasn't had a vacation, a new car or any of the things most people take for granted.

He's handsome, kind, considerate and loving. I truly believe I have the good fortune to have the "perfect husband."

SINCERELY HAPPY

(Aside to Thankful who can't abide "paragons"—even you must admit we have some wonderful candidates for the "Good Husbands' Club" today).

VALENTINE'S EVE will find members of the Thirty-Niners, social group for single men and women, ages 39 to 59, aboard the Dreamboat for a two and a half hour cruise. The boat will leave at 9 p.m. sharp Friday, from Pier 10, but if you plan to be aboard, be there at 8:30.

The club has other activities in the forthcoming calendar . . . shuffleboard at Manor Park on Feb. 20 and a wiener roast at Crandon Park on Feb. 27. Mrs. Mabel Hill, 2250 SW 21st St., can give you the details.

Mothers, Too, Can Be Cruel

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

I have been reading the letters about gratitude between mothers and daughters. Well, mothers can be cruel, too.

My mother's three sisters left their mother's house and never helped her financially. My mother stayed and worked herself to the bone. She gave every penny to her mother.

When my mother finally married, and my brother and I were born, grandmother disowned my mother.

Then came the depression years. Grandaddy died and mother invited Grandmother to live with us. My own Dad didn't have a job. Grandmother weighed 200 pounds and ate like a horse. She drew a little insurance money and never gave mother a cent.

Instead she sent it to a daughter in Brooklyn whose husband had a job. When mother finally asked her to help with the food bill, she packed up and left.

She finally died in a rest home, blind and lonely. Maybe if she had given more to my mother, who helped her more than all the rest, she would have died happy.

ONE WHO KNOWS

Selfishness, too, has a way of coming back to us . . . a hundredfold.

WHAT CAN marriage counseling do me? Many a reader has asked this question, and tonight at 8, in Grace Methodist Church, 6501 N. Miami Ave., a Family Service consultant will answer it.

Walter Wilson will show a film on counseling and speak During the Marriage Clinic session planned by the Protestant Service Bureau. You're invited.

Instant Dip for Quick Snack
. . . available in three flavors

New Easy Party Dip Is Mixed in a Jiffy

New dip mixes in three popular flavors — onion, garlic-olive, and bleu cheese — are easy to prepare on short notice when guests drop in unexpectedly.

You make them seconds by simply blending the package contents with a fresh dairy product—either cream cheese, sour cream, or cottage cheese. The result is an unusually fine-flavored party snack.

The handy new dip idea is packaged in a "twin-pack" foil envelope, divided in half to allow homemakers to prepare just the right amount for large or small groups.

Sticky Laundry Problem: Glue on Blue Jeans

By JEAN WARDLOW
Herald Staff Writer

Blue ink, blue housewife, blue jeans add up to a problem for Mrs. C.L.S. of Opa-locka.

She writes: "I would like to know if anyone knows how to get glue out of blue jeans. I've tried everything I know."

This could give her youngster a good reply to friends who say, "Your jeans look as if they were glued on," but Mrs. S. is in no mood for gaiety. Out with the glue, please. Can you help?

Saddle Soap Is the Answer

Saddle soap is the answer to Mr. J.M.'s problem of how to keep his briefcase clean. It must be the answer, because so many readers sent it in.

Mrs. J.H.V.A. of Melbourne Beach and Mrs. T.A.W. of Miami both suggested it. And so did Mrs. M.F.M. of Miami—with directions.

"Leather goods merchants and shoemakers usually stock it," began Mrs. M. "Saddles, boots, luggage, briefcases should be soaped and well buffed before ever using to help prevent scuffs. Then an occasional cleaning can keep good leather as lovely as ever even with constant use and abuse."

She adds, "Nearly half a century's use has proved this treatment invaluable to us."

This is a Sunday, Tuesday and Friday column for the Florida homemaker. Hints, questions and answers may be mailed with full name and address to Readers' Exchange, The Miami Herald, Miami, 30. The Herald is not responsible for the safety or efficiency of methods recommended by our readers.

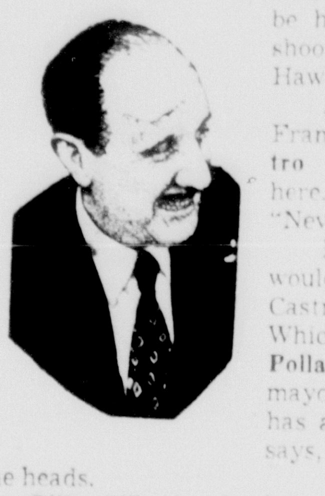
'Hole in Head' May Be Released While Sinatra Is in Miami

SINCAP PRODUCTIONS, that's Frank Sinatra and Frank Capra—are aiming the Miami Beach-made "A Hole in the Head" for a March release, for tax reasons. Sinatra will be working at the Fontainebleau Hotel La Ronde Room early in March. He may be here as early as March 1 if shooting on "Never So Few" in Hawaii permits.



And don't be surprised if Frank looks like one of Fidel Castro "Barbudos" when he gets here. A chin fringe is part of his "Never So Few" characterization.

Don't you think Sinatra would make a much better movie Castro than would Errol Flynn! Which reminds us that Mrs. Paul Pollak, who plays a Miami Beach mayor's wife in the Sinatra movie has a sequined cork. It's for, she says, smart people with holes in the heads.

Frank Sinatra . . . plans?

Clark Gable . . . uneasy

Billy Gilbert . . . a horn

Billy Gilbert, who has earned fame and fortune by just about blowing out his brains as the world's best sneezer, is having horn trouble. His fellow star at the Deauville's "Newcomers of 1928" revue, Rudy Vallee, has a car equipped with safety belt, safety seats and a car horn of arresting tone. Billy ordered one of the horns and now he's having a time finding a mechanic who knows how to install it!

Two New Restaurants Going Up

BUSINESS must be good in the South Florida area. Both Maisel's and Wolfie's are building new restaurants in Fort Lauderdale . . . The Hi Room, next to the Red Carpet, starts a series of amateur talent shows Wednesday night . . . Miamians Jack and Marilyn Nagle are getting nice billing for the staging and choreography on the Lou Walters production at the Tropicana in Las

Amusements

Vegas . . . Last night to see Eartha Kitt at the Eden Roc Cafe Pompeii, where Joe E. Lewis and Eadie Gormye take over Wednesday night. She was never more sizzling than this time out!

Casting tonight at the YWCA Shoestring Theater, 106 SE First Ave., for "The Mad Woman of Chaillot" . . . "An Actor Prepares," by Stanislavsky is used as the textbook in the Acting One course of the adult evening division of Miami Senior High School. Registration for the course is now open.

Tempus Fugits, or Sic Transit Gloria Cine Mundi the Paramount studio stage eight which echoed to Clark Gable's journalistic cries of "Copy!" for city room scenes in "Teacher's Pet" two years ago now has the same Gable acting plutocratic on a set representing a lavish estate for "But Not For Me." The Fourth Estate set, in which 50 amusements editors played themselves, was more comfortable, says Gable . . .

Bennett Unveils New Repertoire

TONY BENNETT has checked into the Diplomat Hotel's Cafe Cristal and, as is usually the case when this ballad belter turns up, they almost have to stack the customers end on end to get them all in. This is by way of cautioning Bennett devotees that they'd better make their reservations with maitre d'hotel Domenic well in advance and not go all the way to the glittering, new hotel to take their chances.

Bennett has put together a new repertoire for his Diplomat debut. He still loosens his tie and straddles his highchair for a reprise of old favorites (If he didn't, he'd run the risk of being torn limb from limb). But there's a greater prevalence of the dramatic-type song in his vocal portfolio.

He sings a new creation by Gordon Jenkins called "Skyscraper Blues" and he does "The Man That Got Away" from Judy Garland's film, "A Star is Born," and one titled (if I got it correctly), "God Bless the Child."

Bennett makes a dramatic vignette of each of these moody ballads. He lights a cigaret, or hunches his shoulders disconsolately or stares radiantly up into a pencil of light. The technique invokes such audience quietude, you could hear a mink drop.

The next minute, of course, he and the brass section are back cracking the place wide open with a "Chicago" or an "Anything Goes."

Bennett is preceded on the bill by comedian Paul Gray. Gray looks like a British first lord of the Admiralty who somehow got into show business during a state of amnesia. And to kick the simile around a little more, those gags Gray deliberately includes in his glossy patter date back to Nelson and the Battle of Trafalgar.

The man is different and delightful. His humor doesn't detonate so much as it vibrates the chuckles.

The show opens with the exuberant and dexterous dance routines of Phil Lawrence and Mitzi. The pair are just the ticket to get any evening off to a fine start.

—JACK ANDERSON

ANGRY MEXICAN is Cesar Romero here in a scene from "Villa," new movie glorification of the bandit-patriot who caused American intervention in Mexico early in the century. The film is playing at the Trail theater.

Nature Class Is Starting

The 10th annual tropical nature workshop, conducted by the University of Miami and sponsored by Tropical Audubon Society, will open Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. with "An Introduction to Florida Birds." Dr. Julian Corrington, chairman of the zoology department, will teach the class.

The course of illustrated lectures and field trips is directed by Kenneth Close, veteran conservationist and wildlife expert.

Further information about the course, offered at a nominal fee, may be obtained by called the UM evening division or Close.

Tenn. Williams Readings Eyed

NEW YORK — (AP) — Jerry Leider, youthful producer who successfully steered Sir John Gielgud's recent one-man cross-country tour, is lining up a similar reading venture for next season. But instead of Shakespeare, the subject matter will be the writings of Tennessee Williams.

Probably Ran Last

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (UPI) — David Ladd will do the title song for "The Sad Horse."

Errol Flynn Sells His Isle Off Jamaica

ERROL FLYNN sold his private island off Jamaica (plus the large resort hotel there) to Washington socialite Perry Boswell . . . The Zsa-Zsa Gabor-Marie McDonald feud has gotten out of control. Somebody's liable to get wounded . . . Jan Desmond, breath-taking show-gel at the Latin Quarter, was an assistant buyer at a big store in Hollywood . . . The Willie Bryants reconciled . . . Maury Sher, inventor of Western Union's Candy-Gram, is one of the main characters in "See Here, Private Hargrove," the wartime best-seller . . . The State Dept and Cadence Records may send the Chordettes, Andy Williams and the Everly Bros. to Russia to woo their teen-agers . . . Sophia Loren's next film, "Black Orchid," includes the exceptional talent of Virginia Vincent . . . Writers! Don't get discouraged. In his first 10 years Somerset Maugham averaged $10 a week.

Errol Flynn ... a deal

Marie MacDonald ... a duel

Zsa Zsa Gabor ... a doll

WE CAN REMEMBER all the way back when Ed Murrow led the pack calling some of us "controversial" commentators . . . Harry Sosnik, conductor of "Your Hit Parade," has one of the old Brevoort Hotel's marble columns as an antique in his Park Avenue living room . . . Eartha Kitt's line: "One of the most sensuous and exciting things in the world is innocence" . . . The town's newest hotspot, the tiny Raintree, has only eight tables . . . "Ambrose," the new hit song, and the oldie, "Now See How You Are," are prackilly twins, note for note . . . Groucho Marx may change his format next season (and timeslot, too) to a panel-type show . . . His editor once said of Mike Berger, the New York Times' ace chronicler of Manhattan sights and sounds (who died at University Hospital): "He not only has no enemies. He has no critics!"

IN THE GALAXY of me-myself-I there is a strange planet called Ham. It is the world of performers, where conceit is almost a conditioned reflex. Such self-esteem can easily be explained. Those who seek approval of others must think highly of themselves . . . The most artistic exponent of hamminess is probably Noel Coward. He has the remarkable ability of praising another performer while taking a bow. As an illustration, there's Coward's comment to Rex Harrison after "My Fair Lady" opened. He generously told Harrison: "After me, you're the best light comedian in the world."

Noel once explained why he is pro-Coward: "My importance to the world is relatively small. On the other hand, my importance to myself is tremendous. I am all I have, to work with, to play with, to suffer and to enjoy."

A name in lights is only a temporary flash, of course. For those who manage to autograph a marquee, however, it is the equivalent of reaching Paradise . . . When Ethel Barrymore first saw her name lighting up the night — she wept. The spectacle caused Ethel Merman to impulsively ejaculate: "It's me! It's me! It's me!" Audrey Hepburn became a star in her initial Broadway show, "Gigi." One week after the opening her name was put in lights. She dashed across the street to have a look, then sighed: "Oh dear, and I've still got to learn how to act."

THE SOURCE of artistic creations is always strange and fascinating. Sometimes it springs from inspiration. More often it is the consequence of that form of tyranny known as hard work. And it can happen like this: Some years ago, actress Ruth Ford was riding in a cab with William Faulkner. Suddenly she said: "Why don't you write a play for me?" The author replied: "All right." Out of that innocuous conversation came Faulkner's "Requiem for a Nun," starring Ruth Ford.

AN ARTIST in every field of endeavor is a perfectionist. He does his best and then strives to do better. The challenge of the impossible is frequently the source of artistic efforts . . . The aforementioned Rex Harrison has scored a massive triumph in "My Fair Lady" on both sides of the Atlantic. Nevertheless, after so many years, Harrison is still polishing his performance. Based on the reactions of the audience, he changes something at every performance. Harrison says: "The writer or director may not think the show has improved since it opened. From an acting point of view I believe it has, and will."

Life Is Struggle -- Against Poverty

'Pather Panchali' Tells Moving Drama of a Family in India

By GEORGE BOURKE
Herald Amusement Editor

IN BRIEF — A made-in-India dramatic documentary about a Bengal family of have-nots.

Movie Review

"Pather Panchali," at the Mayfair and Sunset Theaters, is a film concerned with India or, more specifically, a village in Bengal.

But right at the beginning movie patrons of habit and those who attend for pure escapism should be cautioned that nowhere in its compelling footage is there a counterpart of Errol Flynn, a career military man or a remittance man, or a man of medical talents who has exiled himself from home for reasons of frustrated romance or tragic professional error.

And yet it wants not for drama that will touch deeply if you are one who gives even one thought in a thousand to the have-nots of this world. This is a completely India-made production and its story is told in stark but sensitive manner, with nary a studio prop nor story contrivance to mar its tragic truth.

In fact, there is little story to this first directorial effort of young Satyajit Ray, other than that of life itself.

The principals are a young native of some creative skills but not very provident of the everyday necessities for his family; his wife, who has developed what civilization would call a neurosis from her anxieties; a teenage daughter who is suspected of petty thievery of the things her parents can't give her; a younger son, who is just a kid, similar to those to be found in America, England or Siam, and an aged aunt, the counterpart of every unwanted dependent in households all over the world.

Ray has drawn his drama from their struggles to live and from their petty triumphs — and their deaths. And his climax, instead of the Hollywood assurance of "they lived happily ever after" offers only a more realistic hope that things might be better one day. The title means "Song of the Open Road."

The picture's greatness is in its compelling simplicity and naturalness.

The mores and the manners — such as the fingers' technique of eating and the rather vigorous manner of post-prandial oral hygiene, and the like may displease some but there are many parallel customs in American life which would equally shock and displease a native of Bengal.

The film is expertly photographed in black and white — some of its scenes (such as lily pads disturbed by the wind and insects in flight) being art pieces of arresting beauty.

The cast is superb. But remember — there are no Flynns, no charges of the light brigade (so it wasn't in Bengal!), no Parisian costuming.

Just drama as a people strange to us live it.

Theater Open --By Invitation

NEW YORK — (AP) — A new kind of showcase for experimental work by dramatists, directors and actors is being tried at the off-Broadway Cricket Theater.

The idea was devised by Rhett Cone, operator of the house. Called "theater for the connoisseur," admission is by invitation only.

Let's Go to the Movies . . .

These schedules are published as submitted by the theater managers.

Radio, Not TV, Upsets Nerves of Jo Stafford

By JOE FINNIGAN

Maybe some of them would, but not Jo Stafford.

JO STAFFORD

To Jo, radio is rough even though she's had plenty of experience at it.

"On radio, I used to have real nerves," she confessed, "and, when television came along I thought it was much tougher and would be the end of me."

The popular blonde songbird almost junked the airwaves for something else.

But television doesn't upset her nearly as much as radio.

"In analyzing it I found that in radio you have time to think about yourself but you don't on TV," she explained.

"Television makes more demands on your talent and memory so you're too busy to worry.

"On TV you have to remember the lines but on radio the script is right in front of you," she said.

"This year I'll do about one TV show a month," she says. But, she'd like to do another series with bandleader husband Paul Weston.

"We had a 15-minute program when TV had short ones," she said.

Jo also cuts record albums, and after casting a glance over the field she expressed some concern for the music business.

"The single record business is not so good anymore," she averred. "Most of the people who like me buy my long play albums.

"The kids buy single records but they can't support it like it used to be."

Also, some of the music being recorded these days won't stand the test of time.

"It's kind of a shame but a lot of years are going by and being wasted as far as the output of music is concerned.

"I've always felt that the 'pop' tune was a purely American invention and one of our contributions to music.

"You still hear lots of good music from the 20s and 30s but 10 years from now try and find a standard tune from this era that is still being played.

"You won't find 'Hound Dog'!"

Allen Getting Break

CHAMPION

GOBEL

TV's George Gobel will give way on March 31 to two new half-hour series, Pete Kelly's Blues and a Jimmie Rodgers music show.

NBS-TV is axing Haggis Baggis in April in favor of the Court of Human Relations.

Dennis James has replaced Fred Robbins as emcee of Haggis Baggis for the rest of its run.

NBC-TV will start the Steve Allen show a half hour earlier beginning March 15, getting a 30-minute jump on CBS-TV's Ed Sullivan.

Marge and Gower Champion and Herb Shriner are set as stars of the first CBS-TV Coca Cola spec on March 30.

Perry Como is quite close to signing a deal which would see him take over the Wednesday night NBC-TV Kraft Music Hall next fall.

If Como shifts, his Saturday night slot on NBC-TV may go to either Jack Paar or Dean Martin.

Starting March 30, NBC-TV's Queen For A Day and Truth or Consequences will swap time spots.

Gower Champion will direct George M. Cohan's "45 Minutes From Broadway" set for NBC-TV's Omnibus March 15.

Sonny Fox spelling Bill Cullen on the daytime and nighttime versions of NBC-TV's The Price Is Right for two weeks.

CBS Radio will broadcast Verdi's "Macbeth" when the Met opera tackles it for the first time in its history on Feb. 21.

Tradition Topic

Dr. Ben Stalvey, University of Miami professor of government will address the Miami Ethical Society on "Our American Tradition" at 11 a.m. Sunday at Koubek Center, 2705 SW Third St. This is the third in a series of four lectures on "The Bases of Democracy."

He'll Ask Legislation to Extend Committee's Life

Sen. Johns Seeks to Continue His Investigation of NAACP

By Herald Services

TALLAHASSEE—State Sen. Charley Johns said Monday he will ask the Legislature to extend the life of his investigating committee so it can complete a probe into possible Communist infiltration of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People.

JOHNS

Unless extended another two years the Johns committee dies June 30 Johns said it does not appear that the investigation will be completed before the Legislature convenes April 7 because of numerous court suits testing its powers.

Johns also threw cold water Monday on a request for legislation to enable the Welfare Department to recover money from the estates of welfare recipients. He has opposed a recovery plan through several legislatures.

Chill Greets Textbook Plea

TALLAHASSEE — A legislature group gave a chilly reception Monday to the State Department of Education pitch to restore a 2½-million-dollar cut in free textbook budget requests.

Deputy State School Supt. said the six-million-dollar recommendation of the Cabinet Budget Commission for textbooks for the next two years would leave many school pupils short of books.

Housing Woes Are Outlined

JACKSONVILLE — Florida's three major housing problems are city slums, migrant housing and housing for the elderly, J. E. Baril, chairman of the Florida Development Commission's inter-agency housing committee, said Monday.

One out of five urban houses is sub-standard, the condition is even worse in older Florida cities, Baril said, and not a penny of federal slum clearance money has been spent in this state.

Honduran Rebels Fleeing After Forces Retake City

By PAUL P. KENNEDY
New York Times Service

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras —It appeared virtually certain Monday that government forces had retaken the small barracks city of Santa Barbara, about 150 miles northwest of here, after that city had been held by rebel forces over the weekend.

A presidential house spokesman confirmed that late-afternoon messages were picked up over the radio station, Voz del Junco, announcing the recapture. A voice making the announcement claimed to be that of Maj. Alonso Flores Guerra, of the First Battalion here in the capital. The spokesman said the voice had been verified.

N.Y. Times News Service

The message said 130 rebels were captured and that the bulk of the rebel forces were fleeing westward toward Copan, on the Guatemalan border.

The Voz de Junco radio station in Santa Barbara had announced early Monday morning, "The revolution has begun."

Beginning shortly afterward, the Ministry of War began commandeering private commercial airliners and sending troops from Tegucigalpa to the beleaguered city. During the morning, at least one bomber and two P38 fighter planes of the Honduran Air Force took off in a northwesterly direction.

The later message said the bulk of the rebel troops were fleeing westward toward Copan on the Guatemalan border.

Aside from this there was a complete blackout of information. It appeared certain the government itself had not been able by midday to ascertain the true situation in the northwest.

For several weeks a clandestine radio, presumably located in northern Nicaragua near the Honduran border, has been broadcasting warnings that rebel forces under former Honduran Army Col. Armando Velasquez Cerato would soon invade Honduras and overthrow the administration of President Ramon Villeda Morales.

The slogan of the clandestine radio in those days was, "First the mountains of Honduras, then the valleys and then the capital."

Tegucigalpa itself was calm Monday.

Terminal Work Will Be Resumed

Work on the nearly completed 20th St. Terminal at Miami International Airport will be resumed this morning, contractors reported Monday night after Circuit Judge J. Fritz Gordon granted the Port Authority an injunction against the Plumbers and Steamfitters Union.

Judge Gordon ruled that there is no dispute between the Port Authority and the union and therefore the steamfitters' picket line must be restricted to the fuel pipeline jobs being done by Latex Corp. for two airlines, Eastern and National.

Work on the airport has been stopped for a week because other union workers could not cross the steamfitters picket line.

Gov. Harriman Is In New Delhi

NEW DELHI — (UPI) — Former Gov. Averell Harriman of New York arrived here Monday to see how much progress India had made since his last visit, he said.

Harriman will meet with Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru and other leaders but he said he is here only as a private citizen.

Chiang Plans Rice Stockpile For Invasion

TAIPEI, Formosa — (UPI) — The Nationalist Chinese government is planning to create a huge stockpile of rice needed if an invasion of the Communist mainland occurs, the United Daily News reported.

The report said the plan is to place 168,000 metric tons of rice in an invasion stockpile, enough to feed 1,500,000 persons for six months.

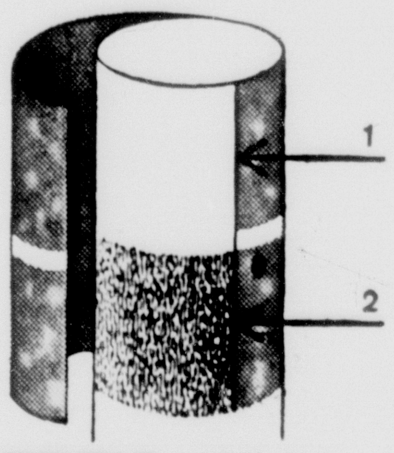
DUAL FILTER DOES IT!

filters as no single filter can!



HERE'S WHY:

1. It combines the efficient filtering action of a pure white outer filter . . .

2. with the additional filtering action of ACTIVATED CHARCOAL in a unique inner filter. The extraordinary purifying ability of Activated Charcoal is widely known to science. It has been definitely proved that it makes the smoke of a cigarette milder and smoother.

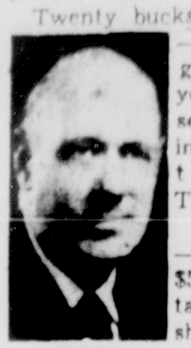
The Town Crier

BY Jack Bell

TWENTY bucks will send a boy or girl to summer camp for two weeks.

Twenty bucks—the same 20—will get your girl friend and yourself good seats for Sleeping Beauty at the Sheridan Theater tonight.



BELL

Twenty bucks—four tickets at $5 each—will take four to the show, and you'll have contributed to the Summer Camp fund, too.

Sleeping Beauty is the most ambitious production Walt Disney ever made. It's everything artists and cameras can do by way of stupendous entertainment. Disney has given the world wonderful film entertainment. Sleeping Beauty is by far the mostes'.

We know you can see the picture cheaper in a few days. We're interested in sending 600 kids to summer camp after school lets out. We hope you are, too. There's not a cent of expense, so far as your dollars are concerned. Florida Theaters is picking up the entire tab, even for ticket printing.

We've given you some great shows during this Florida Theaters-Summer Camp friendship: Raintree County, Oklahoma, Around the World in 80 Days, South Pacific. Now, Sleeping Beauty is in keeping with great productions which can be shown only on the Sheridan huge curved screen.

Told You So

I'm taking a low bow, for predicting that the University of Miami symphony concerts of Sunday and Monday nights would be beyond anything we've every heard here. If you didn't read Doris Reno's review of the Sunday night concert, go get it.

Never before have symphony audiences applauded as they did for Conductor Fabien Sevitzky and Piano Soloist Ernst von Dohnanyi.

Bertha Foster tells us the board of her Musicians Club has made von Dohnanyi an honorary member of the board. It's an honor extended to but only one other, Jean Sibelius, Finnish composer who died about a year ago.

New Theater

Mrs. Nina Leyton, a Miamian living in Vienna, sent me an unusual clipping. A Vienna paper carried a review of Tennessee Williams' latest play, "Period of Adjustment," which was staged for the first time in Coconut Grove Playhouse.

I learn also that Salzburg is going to get a new Festival Theater. The Festival attracts so many thousands of music lovers from all over the world each summer that facilities are far too few.

Varied Lights

Mrs. Elvina O. Van Buskirk of Dania was stopped by a traffic officer who told her she ran a red light. She asked him to go back with her. They retraced her path. The first red light hung in the middle of the street. The second was on the right, hidden by a tree.

The officer dropped the charge. But Mrs. Van Buskirk isn't satisfied. "I could have been hit, or have hit another car," she says. "Let's have a uniform system of lights and traffic laws in this nation."

I've been arguing for just that, ever since cars grew numerous. We've made some progress—not enough. In Miami we even have "no left turn" signs of different colors.

Rattlers Few

Another gloomy note. The West Florida rattlesnake rodeo so far has been a bust. From Chipley we hear they've extended the hunt a week to Feb. 14. Rain almost stopped hunters the first five days, and few rattlers had been found by Saturday.

When we run out of rattlers in Florida it's a sure sign of progress; and that's bad.

Chop Sticks

These Japanese have a way with them. We use a bathing beauty to drum up the pickle business, or canned shrimp. But in the Monday morning mail was an envelope (we'd have a bikini-clad gal deliver it). In it was a pair of chop sticks.

What did they mean? Well, the folks are unveiling the "Toyopet" at Dupont Plaza at 5 today. It's a Japanese motor car. I'll need the chop sticks to get in.

In China . . .

Says Textile World: "Last year while U.S., European and Japanese mills floundered in shrinking markets, Red China mills poured out cheap cotton goods that flooded Southeastern Asia markets and some found their way to the West. The Chinese hope to match U.S. mill production by 1962." Verily the old order changeth.

'Universal Mind'

She 'Tunes In' On Fixed Races But No Winners

(Third of A Series)

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

The Rev. June Holloway, a blonde and pretty pastor at the New Age Church of Truth, claims to know all about fixed horse races.

"I can tune in on the Universal Mind," she confided. "The Universal Mind knows everything. Why, that's what Edison did. He tuned in and learned how to invent things."

June concedes that the vibrations from the Universal Mind don't exactly tell her what horses are going to win.

But vibrations telling her that races are "fixed" comes in real strong, she insists. Before she could explain, her husband changed the subject.

Mrs. Holloway, who advertises herself as a "Divine Healing Instrument," is the happily-married spouse of the Rev. Gilbert Newton Holloway Jr.

In a two-hour, 20 minute interview in the pastor's study, she and her husband talked of many things—"etheric and astral spheres," "cosmic energies," horse races and publicity.

"Oh, he'll give you a good story all right," she said of her husband. "But I want to tell you exactly what happens. The fact is, publicity—one way or the other—is always good.

"Why, after the night Oral Roberts' tent was burned, Oral Roberts was made!"

Rev. Holloway sharply disagreed with his wife.

He made it clear that the "messages" most often come through her, but it was he who interpreted and explained.

Once, when he tried to stop her from talking she chided, "But Daddy, remember I'm the sensitive one."

June Holloway
. . . 'but Daddy'

She didn't know she possessed such great psychic powers until her husband-to-be discovered them.

"Now," he says proudly, "she is one of the six most sensitive women in the country."

The Holloways tape record many of the messages that come from June's "Wonderful Band of Invisible Forces" during services three to five times a week. The Holloways hold a special "Inner Circle" class for their most gifted believers.

In a booklet entitled "Healing Hands," the Rev. Holloway identifies the "august personages" of June's "Seven High Intelligences" that speak through her to the congregation. These are some:

DR. ROBERT RAMSEY, June's principal teacher and an 18th Century alchemystical philosopher and scientist.

"DR. CARR, a colleague of Dr. Ramsey.

"SAMUEL, a Teacher of the Tenth Sphere.

"THE REV. W. STAINTON MOSES, a brillian Anglican clergyman of the 19th Century."

Through the mediums June makes all manner of prophecies.

One medium foretold a day when the congregation would be asked to buy more chairs for the church. The church did ask for more chairs two months later.

When June needs advice on business and financial matters, her mediums thoughtfully consult other spirits.

It was May 19, 1957, that the New Age Church of Truth first gained public attention.

Peter Hurkos, so-called "psychometrist" and colleague of Holloway, flopped down on the floor like a dead man, panted, sweated, and gave detectives sitting on the front row clues to solve the 5-year-old Judith Ann Roberts murder case.

The case is still unsolved.

Behind The Story

The spirits, contacted by the Rev. June Holloway while in trance, foretell the future.

For people who wonder how old prophecies turn out, here are some made back in 1957 for last year:

"South Florida will have a VERY GOOD TOURIST SEASON.

"Our planet is NOT going to be destroyed.

"The outlook for 1958 for the Democratic Party is not good."

Some 'Evidential Conversation'

Cosmic Attunement Depends on Pineal

Quotes from the writings of the Rev. Gilbert Newton Holloway Jr.:

"AUm or OOm affects the pineal gland, near the center of the head, and raises the mind into cosmic attunement."

* * *

"I have spent hours in evidential conversation with people who are no longer 'here' in body, but who are certainly often here in consciousness."

"Ignorant men who despise prophecy often make jokes about crystal ball seeresses, not realizing that it is possible to see future events in a crystal if the mind is properly conditioned."

Miami's Humane Society looked more like the M-G-M lot than a home for capering kitty-cats Monday.

They were knee deep in homeless lions.

They've got two.

One is a seven-month-old female. Her name is Leo. She's ferocious — says Forsman Anderson.

"We got her from Brad Bradford, the animal man at Musa Isle," said Anderson. "He got stuck with her when the Cristiani Circus passed through town and he begged us to take her off his hands."

"She was angry and was breaking out of her cage — we keep her in our garage. We'd like to find a good home for her — outside the county."

The other lion belongs to Frank Telaquin, 1740 NW 77th St. It's a 15-month-old female with no name. Telaquin loves her. She loves Telaquin. But the neighbors are not lion-lovers.

Unable to pay $30-a-week private boarding charges, Telaquin pleaded with the Humane people to take care of good ol' No Name.

"Oh yes" said Anderson. "We also have a leopard named Sophie."

First Act Could Lower Water Rates

Metro Plans Branch To Regulate Utilities

* * * * * *

Water Business Urged on Metro

Metro should get into the water and sewer business as quickly as possible "to protect the health of residents of the area."

That was the most far-reaching recommendation made by county engineering consultants, Rader and Associates, in a report to County Manager O. W. Campbell released Tuesday.

The engineers recommended that:

STEPS BE taken immediately to make overall master plans for sewerage and water systems for the metropolitan area.

BECAUSE these facilities are needed to protect health the county should provide water and sewerage services, by encouraging development of existing systems and by initiating its own program.

The county has relied on municipal systems and privately-financed companies to meet sewer and water requirements. This policy must be changed, the engineers said, for two reasons:

DADE WILL need 400 million dollars in new systems by 1975 (added to existing systems valued at 162.5 million dollars. But private capital can be expected to finance only 100 million dollars of the expansion.

PLANNED extensions of municipal systems will be no more than a comparative trickle—no more than 15 per cent of required expansion.

The engineers also found that, as of Jan. 1, 1958:

Nearly 40,000 Dade families (out of 240,000) are not served by any system.

Nearly 175,000 familes (out of 240,000) live in homes which are not tied in with any sewer system. These non-sewered homes rely on septic tanks and other means of disposal which are, or can be expected to become, unsatisfactory.

Water Rates Are Varied, Report Says

Water rates charged by the 46 private Dade water companies show "a wide variance," the study by county engineering consultants charged.

Carol City Utilities, Inc., $25 deposit, base rate of $2.50 per month for 6,000 gallons.

Dade Utilities Company, $15 deposit, base rate of $2.50 per month for 4,000 gallons.

Key Biscayne Water Co., $40 deposit, base rate of $2.29 per month for 4,500 gallons.

Richmond Utilities, Inc., $10 deposit, base rate of $1.50 per month for 5,250 gallons.

South Dade Utilities, Inc., $35 deposit, base rate of $2.50 per month for 4,000 gallons.

Roadblocks Get Backing

Police Chief Walter Headley got an opinion from an American Bar Association official Monday that his much-criticized roadblocks are probably legal.

James P. Economos, director of the American Bar's traffic court program, said in a letter to Headley:

"Generally speaking, a roadblock is not considered illegal if it is used for:

"(1) Discovering fleeing criminals; (2) stopping fleeing traffic violators, and (3) halting motorists as an incident to the checking of operators' licenses, registration cards or plates, condition of vehicles, load size or equipment."

Fliers Hack Way Out of 'Glades

By AL FINKELSTEIN
Herald Staff Writer

Two young Miami wildlife lovers trudged 20 miles in seven hours Monday to escape the mosquito-bombed Everglades swamp where they crash-landed their light plane.

They emerged footsore, bug-bitten, and cheerful.

Pilot Donald Stephens, 23, of 570 NW 91st St., and his buddy, Fred Butler, 23, of 9486 NW Third Ave., said their 65-horsepower light plane "cut out" Sunday afternoon 70 miles from Miami.

They spiraled safely into the grassy Everglades, then started their motor again and tried to take off. The craft somersaulted and the propeller snapped.

They boys were not injured.

They spent the night being bitten by mosquitoes "as big as a half-dollar."

They kept warm overnight by starting a fire with gunpowder from .22 bullets.

"So help me," said Butler, "we got two sticks, rubbed the powder between them, and we got a flame."

Monday they ripped the compass from their plane, used it as a guide, and headed for civilization.

After tiptoeing, via log, over an alligator-infested canal, they emerged on Highway 29 between Miles City and Deep Lake. A motorist picked them up.

While they slogged through the 'glades a Coast Guard helicopter from Miami, deputies from Collier County Sheriff's department and a band of volunteers from the Florida Civil Air Patrol scoured swampland.

They found the cracked-up plane and the campfire ashes — but not the boys, who were arriving at home about that time.

Quipped Stephens, as he opened the porch door:

"Why all the fuss?"

Butler asked:

"What's for supper?"

Blast Case Pressed

Miami police will seek attempted murder warrants today for a Negro lifeguard who learned to make "Molotov Cocktail" bombs when he was a paratrooper.

The lifeguard, Herbert Leon Brown, 33, of 3624 SW 27th St., is being held without bond in connection with the Sunday gasoline-bombing of a Negro home at 1431 NW 55th St.

Campbell To Outline Proposal

By LEO ADDE
Herald Staff Writer

Eighteen-month-old Metro government's most sweeping plan so far for improving the everyday life of Dade Countians took shape Monday in the offices of top county officials.

The object: creation of a powerful Public Utilities Department to regulate rates and quality of service for water and sewer systems, transit, taxicabs, gas and electricity.

County Manager O. W. Campbell is scheduled to outline the first step in the plan — water and sewer regulation — at Tuesday's Metro Commission meeting.

The first effect of utilities regulation felt by Dade should be reduced water rates, officials said.

"There is no question that some private companies are charging too much," Campbell said.

Campbell will face the commission armed with an engineering consultant's survey showing Dade will need an additional 400-million-dollar investment in water and sewer plants to meet 1975 needs. Private investors can be expected to cover only 100 million dollars of the total.

"This leaves a deficit of 300 million dollars to be met by the municipalities or the metropolitan county government," the engineers conclude.

The report was prepared by Rader and Associates, Miami engineers and architects. One finding indicates the magnitude of the water and sewer job ahead of Metro.

The value of all existing Dade facilities, both publicly and privately owned, is 162.5 million dollars — slightly more than one fourth of the county's total needs for an estimated 1957 population of 2,420,000.

An ordinance setting the legal structure of the Public Utilities Department is now a priority project for County Attorney Darrey A. Davis. Some half dozen other Metro department heads have a hand in supplying data and advice on the proposed law.

"This new department could be in effect and at work by Oct. 1, when the new fiscal year starts," Budget Director Harry Toulmin told The Herald.

An old Metro ordinance based on voluntary regulation of private companies was scrapped by the Commission Jan. 6 as being "ineffective and unenforceable."

The Rader survey, first inventory ever made of the number and location of privately owned systems in Dade, listed 46 water and 20 sewer companies.

Rader found "wide variance in rates charged by water and sewerage utilities for their services." The engineers found fault with the quality of some of the water.

In some cases they charge nearly three times as much for water as municipally owned systems, which have rates as low as 25 cents for 1,000 gallons.

Nagging Inflation Eats His Few Pennies

He Thinks He's Lucky Living on $92 a Month

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

This thing they call inflation is something more than a statistical table.

It is a nagging personal problem to 70-year-old Albert Oosterwyk, whom you encounter under a banyan tree in Miami's Bayfront Park.

LAHEY

"I eat, but not on my social security," says Albert, who came here four years ago from Canton, Ohio, whre he spent most of his life as an automobile mechanic. "My social security is $52 a month, but I'm lucky. I have another $40 a month from savings."

Even so, on a $92 income which Albert regards as opulent, after comparing notes with cronies in the park, inflation is closing in on him, like flood water seeping under a door jam.

Oosterwyk lives in very modest quarters near NE First Ave., and 12th St.

"My rent is $5 a week in the summer and $6 in the winter," he says. "When I first came here it was $3 in the summer and $5 in the winter."

The retired man, who came to this country from the Netherlands 50 years ago, but who still nurses a thick Dutch accent, pulled a package of pipe tobacco from his pocket as we discussed the problem of rising prices.

"This used to be 16 cents, now it's 20 cents," he says. "I get a pack every three days. In a month, that's 40 cents extra that is gone for my pipe."

How long since Albert had a steak?

"The last steak I had was back in Ohio," he muses. And then his memory jogs him.

"Come to think of it," he says, "I did invest in one steak since I came to Miami. But these plates of mine are loose, and that steak was so tough I just had to leave it there. Sure made me mad.

Albert loves pork chops. The high points of his lonely life are the evenings he goes to the Kress or the Davis cafeteria a couple of times a week, and gets a pork chop dinner which he says he can negotiate for something between 80 and 90 cents.

"Actually, I'm fortunate, compared to some of the fellows around the park, who live on $60 a month or less.

"I can buy real butter for my breakfast. I have a hot plate in my room, and I fix eggs and oatmeal, and have this real butter."

Albert is one of more than 61,000 people in Dade County who draw social security checks totaling $3,559,301 a month. The total sounds impressive, but the checks average about $58 per month. Every penny has to be spent with caution, and a man or woman who can buy "real butter," like Albert Oosterwyk, is in the chips.

Most of the oldsters that you encounter in a place like Bayfront Park are rather bitter and resentful toward a world that has not only forgotten them, but that squeezes them unmercifully with every penny increase in the price of the things they buy.

Oosterwyk is unique in his placid acceptance of the world.

"I get along fine," he says. "I keep in shape. I come down here to the library and read the Cleveland Plain Dealer and a lot of books. A couple of times a week I spend a nickel on a Miami paper. The way prices have gone up it's hard, but as I say, I'm lucky."

For Cat's Sake!

Spotting a cat under a car in a Utica, N.Y., parking lot, Gary Lazore, seven, crawled to the "rescue," and got stuck himself. Police cruising the area got him out. The cat, bored with the proceedings, merely yawned, quietly rose and sauntered off.

50-Year Miamian

Bertha Comstock, Reporting Pioneer

Miss Bertha Comstock, 50 years a Miamian and one of the first women reporters in the nation, died here Monday.

The 85-year-old writer and historian came to Miami 50 years ago after a career on the Dayton, Ohio, Daily Journal, where she wrote under a man's name.

In the late 19th century, when Miss Comstock began her newspaper career, women reporters were unheard of, so she wrote under the name of "George K. Roemer" and specialized in covering political rallies.

Miss Comstock came to Miami when she was 35 and settled on a farm in Allapattah with her family. The Comstock school, now located on the property, is named after her family.

She was a member of the Florida Historical Society and at the time of her death was working to get a "Southern cannon" now in front of the Dayton, Ohio, courthouse, removed.

She had records to prove that the cannon is not a Union trophy, but actually came from Havana and was foisted off as a high-priced souvenir by politicians.

Miss Comstock, who lived at 3635 Frantz Rd., Coconut Grove, is survived by three sisters, including Mrs. W. L. Freeland and Mrs. S. S. Marshall, both of Miami, and a brother, R. D. Comstock, Pensacola.

Services will be at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in Van Orsdel's Coral Gables Chapel with burial in Woodlawn Park Cemetery.

Rites Set For Early Resident

Services for Miss Daisy May Carpenter, 87, a Miami resident since the turn of the century, will be at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Combs Northeast chapel, with burial in Woodlawn Park.

Miss Carpenter, of 59 SW Sixth St., had been ill for the past three weeks after she broke her hip in a fall.

She was a sister of the late Miss Hattie H. Carpenter, former associate editor of The Metropolis, now The Miami News, and the first woman principal of Miami High School.

Miss Carpenter came here in 1900 with her mother, four sisters and a brother. They chartered a freight car and left Columbus, Ohio, with the family pony, cat, some chickens and assorted furniture.

For about 20 years the family lived in a large house on S. Bayshore Dr., with a view of the bay from each bedroom. Later, Miss Carpenter and her sister Hattie moved to the smaller home on Sixth St.

When Miss Carpenter first came to this area, she held small classes in dancing for Miami youngsters.

Two nephews, Harry and Stephen Farris, both of Miami, survive.

Mrs. Nora Edith Burns

Mrs. Nora Edith Burns, 80, of 660 SE 2nd Pl., Hialeah, who came here nine years ago from Burlington, Pa., died Monday. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Lorraine Clark, Hialeah, and one grandson. Services and burial will be in Troy, Pa., with local arrangements by Van Orsdel's Hialeah-Miami Springs Mortuary.

Mrs. Maria N. Casonova

Mrs. Maria N. Casonova, 80, of 3075 W. Flagler St., died Monday. She came here 12 years ago from Sheldon, Conn. Rosary services will be at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Tracy Funeral Chapel. Requiem Mass will be at 9:30 a.m. Thursday at St. Peter and Paul Catholic Church, with burial in Woodlawn Park. Surviving are a son, Fred M., Miami; three daughters, including Mrs. A. M. Lopez and Mrs. J. Ygleslas, both of Miami; eight grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Franklin D. Currey

Services for Franklin Dwight Currey, 25, Florida Power & Light Co. lineman, who drowned Thursday, will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Reed Funeral chapel, with burial in Woodlawn Park. He came here five years ago from West Virginia, and lived at 1529 SW Fifth St. Surviving are his wife Alice Roberta; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ercil E. Currey, Miami, and two brothers.

Benjamin Fletcher

Services were held Monday at Riverside Memorial chapel for Benjamin Fletcher, 66, of 2300 SW First St., who died Sunday. He was buried in Mt. Sinai Cemetery. Mr. Fletcher, retired owner of a retail men's store, came here five years ago from New York. He is survived by his wife, Yetta, and a son, Dr. Herbert Fletcher, both of Miami; a brother, a sister and four grandchildren.

Deaths Elsewhere

IGNACE NEWMARK, 70, Polish-born orchestra conductor, at The Hague.

LT. COL. JOHN E. LESTER, 50, retired ordnance officer for the Red River Arsenal at Texarkana, Tex., at Dallas.

JOHN WILDBERG, 55, American play producer who was associated with the original U.S. production of "Porgy and Bess," at London.

DENNARD J. BAILEY, 49, who once was listed among the top 10 aerial gunners of the Pacific Theater in World War II, at Baltimore.

WILLIAM C. REYNOLDS, 76, grandfather of film star Debbie Reynolds, at Fort Worth.

Alfred H. Hoffman

Albert H. Hoffman, 62, of 61 NW 79th St., who came here 11 years ago from Columbus, Ohio, died Monday. Born in Germany, he was a member of the German-American Social Club of Miami. Surviving are h e ist of Miami. Surviving are his wife, Meta; a daughter, Mrs. Annalise Griffin, North Miami Beach; two sons; a brother and two sisters in Germany, and nine grandchildren. Services will be at 3 p.m. Thursday in Lithgow's 150th St. chapel, followed by cremation.

Charles A. Livingston

Charles A. Livingston, 73, of 2509 Anderson Rd., Coral Gables, died Monday. He came here 11 years ago from Garden City, N.Y. where he was a furniture merchant. Surviving are his wife, Marie; a daughter, Mrs. Irving Somerindyke, Miami, and three grandchildren. Services will be at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday at the King Funeral Home, with private burial.

Hotel Workers Call Cuba Strike

HAVANA —(AP)— Restaurant and hotel workers Monday night called a nationwide strike to protest the revolutionary government's handling of the industry's problems — especially the continued closing of Cuba's gambling casinos.

The walkout is due to begin at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Union President Alfredo Rancano said the strike would affect bars, hotels and restaurants. He asserted more than 20,000 workers would join the strike.

PEOPLE WHO CAN'T HANDLE MONEY SHOULDN'T MARRY!
TRUE ☐ FALSE ☐
WHICH IS THE MORE CONSERVATIVE SEX?
MALE ☐ FEMALE ☐
2.10

By S. M. DUVALL and EVELAN M. DUVALL, Ph.Ds

PERHAPS SO, but try to stop them. You may not be able to do anything about their marrying, but you can stop them from marrying YOU. It usually does no good to blame them. They may be quite as unable to help themselves as a legless man is to run. But whether they're to blame or not, they should not be in a position that calls for disciplines and controls that they simply don't have.

2. It depends on what area of life you're thinking of. Men are far more conservative than women in dress. Male clothing never matches the swings in styles that modern women go through. In ideas and attitudes perhaps it is women who are the more conservative—principally because they have so much to conserve in their homes and children. Of course, there are conservatives as well as non-conservatives in both sexes. It is more a matter of individual personality than of sex.

WANTED
OLDER 30' trailer, good body, cash OX 1-7541.

WHY buy a used trailer? When you can buy a brand new one—never lived in—at less than dealer wholesale cost! We are auto dealers — and did sell a lot of House Trailers — but we dont' believe the two businesses go together. Hence we are absolutely liquidating our seven remaining Trailers at hundreds of Dollars under our cost. You can see the actual Factory invoice if you wish. Cash preferred but can offer reasonable terms BUT with Sensible Down payment. These are brand new Knox's, Detroiter's, Melody Homes, Travellite's, eight by ten feet wide, some with Front Kitchens, up to fifty feet, including all colored appliances, and low as $2,850 complete. Displayed only at our Trail and South Miami Stores. Open till ten P.M. closed Sundays.

LIFE WITH LARRY THOMPSON

As a Matter of Record

SOME TIME I am going to get my scrap books in order. I may not have time until I have been pensioned off, but I certainly intend to get around to it.

I am a great believer in scrap books. I keep one for each of the children and one for my wife and me, one of my news stories and one of my columns.

The trouble is that I never get around to pasting anything in these many books.

Scattered through various drawers and on various shelves and in various envelopes are pictures of the children since they were born, along with a few clippings and documents concerning them.

I intend to put these in their books in chronological order, so that they can see their lives, from infancy to the end of the book. I intend to do this, but so far I haven't done it.

FILED IN VARIOUS cabinets, drawers, envelopes and boxes are pictures and clippings and documents that belong in the scrap book for me and my wife.

These include our marriage certificate, a picture of us on our first date, a picture of her and her mother and a Scottie puppy she owned when I was courting her, numerous match book covers and menus from numerous restaurants, photos taken on our vacation in New England several years ago, and assorted other items.

These constitute quite a collection, and when I get them sorted and pasted in should fill a big book.

My own scrap book material consists of piles of old newspapers. Sometimes I am tempted to sell them to whoever collects old papers, but I always resist this temptation.

I keep telling myself that one of these days I will get out the scissors and go through those mountains of papers and cut out all the immortal prose I have written during the past few decades.

Sometimes when I thumb through those browning sheets and read a story with my name on it I wonder why I ever thought it was worth saving.

I find that my prose, unlike the classics, loses its lustre with the passing of time.

When even I, the proud author, realize this I hate to think what future generations would think of the stuff if I ever do get it pasted up for posterity.

That, however, is something I don't need to worry about for awhile. The way it looks now, it will be a considerable time before any of my scrap books are filled.

SHIRLEY FISK is the gal who really runs The Herald's Lend-a-Hand program, while Jack Bell and Jack Kofoed raise the money and get the credit. She starts where they stop, and keeps the books, checks the files, answers the phone, and sees that every worthy applicant is taken care of, and nags and scolds and worries and works until everyone is happy.

Now Shirley tells me that I must put in a plug for Walt Disney's movie, "Sleeping Beauty," at the Sheridan Theater tonight.

It's a benefit for the Lend-a-Hand summer camp, and what you spend to see a truly fine show will enable some deserving kid to feel like a king this summer.

When Shirley tells me to do something, I do it. But I'd be glad to make this pitch, even without her prompting, for the youngsters who enjoy and need that camp.

ON THE SUBJECT of unusual names, John W. Hartsfield, 425 SW 12th Ave., contributes the interesting note that he had a great aunt named Love Rich; a very dear friend named Faith Nunn; and that at his church there is an esteemed parishioner named Faith Certain.

A READER TELLS US that along a country road out West she saw this sign:

Cattle Crossing, Means Go Slow
That Old Bull is Some Cow's Beau.

MY COMMENTS about my hypochondriac tendencies reminded Frances Y. Greene, personnel directress of Pan American Bank, of a song she wrote in 1955. It's a jive piece entitled, "You're Making Me a Hypochondriac." She did both the words and music, and I wish I had talent like that. All I can do is feel sick.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♣	Pass	1 NT.
Pass	3 ♦	Pass	4 ♣
Pass	5 ♣	Pass	Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♥.

Even when a contract appears safely in the bag a touch of caution is indicated, as South found to his dismay in today's hand.

That a contract of three no trump would have brought a greater yield is quite apparent, but South feared that a heart opening might be damaging, so he chose the minor suit game.

West led the king of hearts, and declarer became complacent as the dummy was spread. With the normal 3-2 diamond break the contract would become assured, and in the event that diamonds broke unfavorably there was still the chance that the king of spades would be found with West so that the queen would provide a parking place for one of the losing diamonds.

Declarer, therefore, drew trumps in two rounds and then played the ace and ten of spades. West covered with the jack and East smothered dummy's queen. East returned the ten of diamonds and when diamonds failed to break declarer was obliged to give up two tricks in the suit and was down one on his contract.

Tho declarer was a victim of a bad break in the cards he could nevertheless attribute the disaster to his own lack of caution. Since a 4-1 diamond break was the thing which could prove embarrassing, he should set about to improve his chances if that distribution exists.

A strip play is indicated so that upon winning the ace of hearts declarer should first ruff a heart. He then reenters dummy with a trump, ruffs out the remaining heart and draws the other trumps. He has now set the stage for a favorable lead, and proper technique is to play a low diamond. In the actual case East will win with the ten and, having no more of the suit, will have to lead a spade, permitting dummy to win with the queen. If East should have another diamond and returns it, when West follows the suit will prove to have broken. If West chooses to overtake the ten of diamonds he will be forced to give declarer a trick with any return.

Jack Kofoed Says

Nassau Is Bustling But Relaxation Rules

NASSAU: This little island of New Providence, which is only 20 miles long and seven miles wide, is having the busiest and most prosperous winter season in its history.

During January more than 23,000 tourists checked in, and the likelihood is that even more will clump ashore from planes and ships during the months of February and March.

The island is taking on a new look. New hotels and apartments are springing up, famous old ones like the Fort Montagu Beach and British Colonial have been refurbished at tremendous cost.

Sixteen miles out of town one of the most beautiful places I've ever seen, the Coral Harbour Club, and one of the finest golf courses, Lyford Cay, have come into being. Each will be eventually surrounded with fine homes, costing 15 and 20 thousand pounds (that's right, pounds not dollars) each.

Nassau's Bay Street, once noted for dowdy, but intriguing Gay 90s store fronts, is undergoing a face lifting with modern shops.

THIS TRIP I dissipated only an hour or two in the bustling environs of Bay Street. Stopped in at the Development Board offices to see Carl Livingston, Hank Jones and other old friends (who deserve plaudits for having done so much to put Nassau on the map.

Missed Doris Jones, Hank's ever lovin', who was once the sweetheart of The Miami Herald's city room.

Spent the rest of the time at the far end of the island with Tim Hall, a pal of many years, who's running Coral Harbour.

I've never seen a spot with a more beautiful setting, nor one more tastefully and beautifully done, with antiques that would make your mouth water integrated into a modern setup.

Tim, who's the salt of the earth, and knows more sport celebrities than anybody since Damon Runyon, has operated in many places in Florida, Canada, Bermuda and Colorado, never had anything more charming than this.

THE LYFORD Cay golf course, designed by Robert Trent Jones, is superb. Fairways and greens are velvet, and there are plenty of traps and water to wreck the pride of the par shooter, who becomes swollen with success. Because it is private and exclusive, like Indian Creek, play is by no means heavy, and you breeze around with no annoying waits.

There is another point. Golfers in Nassau observe the etiquette of the game. No slow moving foursome fails to wave on a faster one. I wish that considerate practice would become a habit in Miami.

Lyford Cay is sheer delight, and I hope to play it whenever I visit Nassau. Other reasons for pleasant rounds with Michael Arnaud, the dancing Britisher, who holds fourth at Reginald Nefzger's Fort Montague Beach, with his lovely wife Peggy, were the friendly courtesies of Bill de Coudres, club manager Richard Strickland, and golf pro Jack Kay.

FOR YEARS I've been going to Havana and Nassau several times a year. The former was gay and rowdy, with gambling and night clubs and a general hell-for-leather-and-shoot - the - last buck atmosphere.

The latter was a place for rest and relaxation . . . still is, as a matter of fact, in spite of the stepped up pace of development and modernization.

Part of Nassau's charm has always been a sort of old world flavor as exemplified in aging store fronts, surreys with fringes on top, and ramrod straight Negro police wearing helmets, white tunics and blue trousers with red stripes.

But, even if all these eventually disappear, the relaxing atmosphere of Nassau isn't likely to change. I hope it doesn't, for I like it that way.

Of The Herald Staff

Author of the anti-Communist novel "Doctor Zhivago," Pasternak won the 1958 Nobel Prize in literature for his work. He declined the award, however, after a flood of condemnation from Soviet sources. The $41,420 prize money went back into the Nobel Fund; Pasternak's diploma and medal are held in trust for him. Pasternak says, "It was the work of my life."

U.N. Talkathon

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — (AP) — A tally shows there were 1,974 hours of speeches by U.N. delegates at 928 meetings in 1958. The meetings were in the General Assembly, its committees, and the three councils — security, trusteeship and economic-social.

Little 'Wires' from the Brain

It's How You Think That Influences Vital Organs

Howard's query indicates the attitude of all scientists for he wants to know specifically how positive thinking can improve the secretion of inner organs and glands. That's a natural question. Modern psychosomatic medicine is stressing the fact that the proper mental attitude can serve as a tonic to the body, just as iron tonics and insulin do.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

HOWARD L., 30, is the husband of Myrna, mentioned as neurotic for lack of a baby.

"Dr. Crane, you say that it is rather common for a previously sterile wife to become pregnant after adopting a baby," he began.

"Just how is it possible for the mind to influence the organs and glands of the body?

"Dr. Peale and Oral Roberts both stress the power of positive thinking, but I'm a chemist and I'd like to know the mechanism by which the mind can produce chemical secretions in distant glands."

YOU READERS are aware that tension often produces a peptic ulcer.

Thus, fear or nervous excitement at the mental level will zoom the secretion of hydrochloric acid by the acid glands of the stomach. How?

By the same method that tension causes your muscles to be partially flexed.

Your muscles are not relaxed and flabby when you are emotional.

For the brain is connected with every muscle and also with every gland and organ in the entire human body.

We have two nervous systems. The brain (and spinal cord) permit us to think and react to distant objects or persons. It is called the "conscious" nervous system.

BUT THERE is also another nervous system called the autonomic. It regulates heart beat and breathing rate, blood pressure, sweating, goose pimples, blushing, stomach contractions, etc.

It is normally the "subconscious" system, for we don't need to think consciously 72 times per minute, "Beat, beat, beat, etc." as regards our heart.

HOWARD WANTS to know the mechanism by which the brain can influence the stomach or heart or intestines or even the liver and pancreas.

Well, there are connecting nerve fibers (like wires) at each vertebra which link the brain with the various organs and glands of internal secretion.

In modern medicine we are beginning to realize the fact that positive thinking seems to exert a beneficial tonic to many of the internal organs.

On the contrary, negative thinking and fears can throw a monkey wrench into the smooth functioning of those inner organs and glands.

Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Miami Herald, enclosing a long four cent stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.

Joker Insured Coal Delivery

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — (AP) — A practical joker ordered three truckloads of coal sent to the home of Fred W. Fraker, who heats part of his house with electricity and the rest with oil. This was the result:

One dealer sent a driver in an empty truck to ask where to deliver the coal.

Another telephoned to confirm the order.

The other delivered the coal.

Former Marlin Owners Aiding Veeck in His Bid for White Sox

WHEN SID SALOMON JR., and Elliott Stein of St. Louis moved Syracuse's International League baseball franchise to Miami in 1956 they had Bill Veeck's assistance.

Now they are included in the group backing Veeck financially in his bid for controlling interest of the Chicago White Sox.

SALOMON

"I think Bill will have the deal closed by Feb. 15'," said Salomon Monday after a round of golf at Westview. "Baseball is Veeck's first love, and he has always wanted to go back to Chicago, where his father was general manager of the Cubs."

"Veeck will liven things up. He'll give the White Sox fans a lot of action and the American League certainly needs a shot in the arm."

Salomon is positive that Veeck will retain Al Lopez as manager of the Sox, explaining, "I don't think Bill would make many changes. The White Sox had a pretty good club last year."

May Want Paige as Coach

THERE HAS been talk that, if and when Veeck acquires the White Sox, he'll want Satchel Paige of the Marlins on his pitching staff . . . "I don't think Bill would want Paige as a pitcher, but he may find a place for him on the coaching staff," Salomon said. "I don't think Satchel can pitch big league ball, but Paige has a lot of tricks up his sleeve."

Preferred Horses to Dolls

IT WAS only natural that Patrice Jacobs, pert and pretty brunette, preferred race horses to dolls when she was a child. The 21-year-old daughter of Hirsch Jacobs, famed trainer, has a brother and three uncles in the thoroughbred training business.

"I can't remember when I wasn't handling horses, or hearing about them," said Patrice, who now has five thoroughbreds of her own.

PATRICE JACOBS

Miss Jacobs manages to break even in keeping her stable in the style to which it is accustomed, but she explained, "That's due to my jumper, Basil Bee, winning five straight races."

Patrice named one of her horses for Trainer Jacobs, choosing the name, "Our Dad." He's a real Kentucky Derby prospect, according to Miss Jacobs.

"I have a filly, Marymount Miss, running at Hialeah," Patrice continued. "I chose her name from the college I attended."

Now it's time to get in a commercial for Miss Jacobs, who is touring the country for the Kentucky Club 'Derby Day' contest. The person submitting the winning name for a two-year-old colt sired by Oil Capitol, 1953 Widener winner, will be given the thoroughbred. The Derby Day colt's dam is an outstanding French mare named Byblos. Details concerning the contest are available at any tobacco store.

Arcaro Got His Wish in '42

LITTLE STORIES about big people and events:

—Optimists still think Hialeah may make up lost ground in the final 20 days of its meeting, which started Monday. During the first half, the track's attendance of 345,959 was off 5.2 per cent and the wagering of $31,113,843 was off 2.8 per cent. One reason things should pickup is that Joe E. Lewis is in town.

ARCARO

—Eddie Arcaro, due here today, once won a Widener (1942) in which he expressed hope, "the best horse doesn't win." The field, which Arcaro termed one of the best ever in a race, included Alsab, Market Wise, Challedon, Attention and Our Boots, Arcaro was to have ridden War Relic, but he was scratched. John Gaver decided to enter The Rhymer and it was not until the three-eighths pole that Arcaro became aware his horse had a chance. Eddie and The Rhymer came from seventh place to beat Best Seller at the wire. The Rhymer paid $32.80.

RIGNEY

—Fate plays a part in the winning of any sports championship, and the automobile injuries suffered by Manager Bill Rigney could hamper his Giants. Fans hope that Bill will be recovered in time to direct spring training, which may have to be started by his aides.

Madala Cheered by His 'Boys'

MADALA

Signed by all who worked for Madala the card was enscribed, "to a good boss, fine gentleman and true friend."

It was no surprise to discover Madala is not bitter toward the man who shot him. Said Madala, "It couldn't have been anything personal. Why, I don't know the man."

Madala, who hopes to get back to Hialeah to see the Flamingo in person, is thankful he suffered no crippling injuries from the wounds.

"I was just lucky that the bullet which went through my right hand, didn't touch a nerve, artery or muscle," said Madala. "I was very fortunate."

This is a reminder that Madala is a man of fine character. His many friends hope he realizes his desire to be back at Hialeah soon.

Sees Big Year

OBC Elects Lynch Prexy

By JIMMY BURNS
Herald Sports Editor

Some idea of how he intends woking at his new assignment was given Monday by S. A. Lynch Jr., financier, shortly after his election as president of the Orange Bowl Committee.

"I'll be in the office in the morning at 10 o'clock," Lynch informer Ernie Seiler, executive vice president of the group which stages the annual New Year's Day football game and attendant festival.

Lynch also revealed he will have monthly meetings of the OCB the year 'round. All of this indicates that Lynch, an OBC member since 1935, intends seeing that everything possible is done to keep the organization trying to improve upon its past successful efforts.

Named to serve as officers with Lynch were:

Jess Yarborough, realtor and former county commissioner; Ben Benjamin, businessman, and C. Jackson Baldwin, insurance man, vice presidents; John Ring, CPA and Florida State racing commission chairman, treasurer, and Dr. A. F. Kasper, secretary.

Lynch, whose father was one of the pioneer developers of Miami, was born at Asheville, N.C. Nov. 13, 1908. He came to Miami in 1935 and has been active here since, with the exception of Navy service during World War II.

Lynch's family came to Miami in 1914. The new OBC president attended North Carolina University, where he engaged in track and tennis. He later was a graduate student in Harvard's business school.

During his Atlanta days, Lynch played quarterback and left halfback on a sandlot and high school football teams. He was a left-handed passer, but punted with his right foot.

Sailing has been Lynch's main sports interest, a hobby shared by his wife and their four children, Stephen III, now a 17-year-old member of the Andover track team, Patrick, 13, and twin daughters Linda and Andreas, 16, both ice skaters.

Contract With Big 8 2-Way Pact--Lynch

The Orange Bowl Committee considers its contract with the Big Eight a two-way pact, S. A. Lynch, newly elected OBC president said Monday.

"I am presuming the Big Eight will honor its contract to send its champion to the Orange Bowl football game in alternate years," Lynch said.

Lynch declared this was not the time to comment on the controversy raised by Oklahoma in threatening to ask the Big Eight to amend the contract to excuse the Sooners from playing here the final year of the pact, 1961.

"I hope we will have a good Big Eight team playing against the best one we can find outside," said Lynch.

Ring Side? Center Seat? You Betcha!

Mrs. Dorothy McGlynn, 1023 Fifth St., found the boodle — last Friday's wrestling receipts—at Lincoln Rd. and 16th St.

She returned it to Dundee, turned down a reward, but made one request.

"To see a fight — I never have."

Dundee happily wrote her out a pass.

Cobb Quits UM As Grid Staff Shakeup Grows

By LUTHER EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

Turnover in personnel on the University of Miami's football coaching staff continued Monday when Assistant Coach Don Cobb resigned to enter insurance business.

Cobb is the third member of the varsity's seven-coach staff to leave since the Hurricanes completed their disastrous 2-8 season in December.

The 33-year-old Cobb, former halfback and linebacker at UM, follows in the departing footsteps of Bob Blaik and George Trogdon.

Blaik, offensive backfield coach, quit last month to accept an assistant's position at the University of Oklahoma. Linebacker tutor George Trogdon decided to retire because of pressure of other business interests.

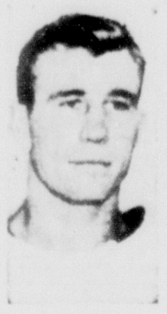
The staff's shakeup started with Head Mentor Andy Gustafson promoting Walt Kichefski, longtime end coach, to the position of assistant head coach.

Only other holdovers when spring practice starts March 14 will be Gene Ellenson, line coach, and Armand Vari, who worked last season — his first at the UM — with guards and centers.

Since Blaik left for Oklahoma, Gustafson has hired Henry (Hank) Stram, well-regarded Notre Dame backfield coach who got the ax as a Christmas present along with Terry Brennan.

With confirmation of Cobb's mutual agreement resignation, expected for more than a month, Gustafson renewed his efforts to find another backfield aide.

"I have interviewed quite a few," he said, "but have not found the man I want. Rather than rush my choice and possibly make a mistake, I'm continuing to look carefully."



COBB

Gustafson reiterated that he also is on the market for another line-coaching aide but said, "We could get along without one if we have to."

Said Cobb, who worked with Miami's backfield defense — a keen disappointment on pass defense last season:

"I like coaching, but I feel the insurance business offers me more opportunity.

"I decided if I was going to make the move, I should do it while I was still young."

Cobb, father of two boys, was backfield coach at Ocala High School for five years after being graduated from UM in 1949.

He served at Miami as an assistant backfield coach under Perry Moss; then was shifted to head freshman coach and, last season, returned to varsity status.

Stram, who also has coached at Purdue and Southern Methodist, arrived Monday "anxious to get to work."

With the nation's 1-2 teams of last season — Lousiana State and Auburn — among UM's formidable foes for 1959, it's obvious there is much work to be done.

No Post-Leap Measurement

Thomas' 7-Foot Jump Out?

By Herald Wire Services

John Thomas' seven-foot high jump — the first in history indoors — may be tossed out of the window, Amateur Athletic Union chief Dan Ferris indicated Monday.

"There's no doubt about it," said Ferris. "The height was not measured after the jump as required by the rules." (It was measured before, however).

Thomas, 17-year-old Boston University freshman, made his record leap in the Millrose Games Jan. 31. Chances are good he may go even higher before the AAU Rules Committee meets in Miami to pass on records next December.

But if he doesn't . . .

"I don't blame the officials," said Thomas, "but I am disappointed. I'll be out to do my best again Saturday at New York."

Ferris said he noticed the post-jump measurement was not made and told officials to do it. But Charlie Dumas (the world's first outdoors seven-footer) was getting ready to jump.

"I told him to wait," said Ferris, "but he said, 'I can't. I have to jump when I'm still warm.'"

Dumas jumped . . . and knocked over the crossbar.

Coach Named

COLORADO Thursday reached into the Big Ten for a replacement for fired football coach Dal Ward, tapping young Everett (Sonny) Grandelius, a Michigan State assistant.

Grandelius, who set a Spartan ground-gaining record of 1,023 yards in 1950, will receive a four-year contract at $14,000 per year. It also was reported he asked and was granted authority to select five assistants, none so far named.

Ward, whose firing brought widespread criticism to Colorado, is under consideration for the director of athletics post at the University of Wichita.

Comeback

FORMER Lightweight Champion Paddy DeMarco's comeback campaign runs into tough Johnny Gonsalves in Oakland, Calif. tonight. Gonsalves, who has split two previous decisions with DeMarco, is favored . . . Tulane Grid Coach Andy Pilney said his star quarterback, Richie Petitbon, would make a mistake by signing a professional contract now. Petitbon, who has another year of eligibility, was the No. 2 draft choice of the Chicago Bears and is reportedly ready to turn pro.

This Is Basketball?

No Clock, No Time Limit, Officials Soundproofed

MANHATTAN, Kan. —(AP)— A basketball game, played under experimental rules, was completed in 63 minutes Monday instead of the usual 90 minutes.

Coach Tex Winter had reserves of his Kansas State squad play the game to test his theories on how to stop stalling and improve officiating.

There was no time clock. The first half ended when one team reached 25 points. The game, originally planned to end at 50 points, was played on until one team got 60 points.

The 63 minutes included time-outs and halftime intermission. The first half took 18 minutes and the second half 30 minutes of playing time. Present rules call for 20-minute halves, excluding time-outs.

The score at the half was 25-13, at the finish it was 60-38.

Winter said his ideas of officiating would need further experimentation.

He proposes having two officials work from soundproof booths about half-way up in the stands at mid-court, one on each side. A third official would be on the floor.

Because this was a first test, the two isolated officials, Kite Thomas and Dougal Russell, were seated in the same radio booth at the top of the stands on one side.

Thomas and Russell agreed they were too far from the floor. During one scramble under a basket Thomas remarked:

"Whether they hacked his arms or not, I couldn't tell."

"You can't hear that slap on the arms," Russell said.

Thomas and Russell called a total of 21 personal fouls, and 10 minor violations. John (Hoot) Gibson, working on the floor, whistled down five fouls and four minor infractions.

"I'd have to see something like this over all the season," said Winter, "and then we might not even know what we thought about it.

"We can only learn by trial and error, and the officials have to make an adjustment, too. It's possible it would be better to have two officials on the floor and one above."

Musial Signs 2nd Straight $100,000 Pact

Stan (The Man) Musial, youngest 38-year-old in baseball, Monday signed his second straight $100,000 contract with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Musial, whose first baseball contract 21 years ago called for $65 a month, is the highest-paid player in National League history. His salary now is second only to the $125,000 annually paid to Boston's Ted Williams.

Relaxed and confident, Musial said he was fully recovered from a lame leg which hampered him through the last half of the 1958 season. But he admitted he must make some concession to age.

Both Stan and Card Manager Solly Hemus want to steer The Man away from strength-sapping day games after night contests. A move is also underway to return Musial to the outfield from first base.

Last year Musial batted about 100 points below his season average in day games following night contests. For all day game, he hit only .297 — 80 points less than his night game figure.

Musial, headed for his 17th full season with the Cards, started last season with a sizzling hitting streak. He batted .477 through the 23 games he needed to reach the 3,000-hit career mark, then attempted to play both ends of a doubleheader and went into a severe slump.

He pulled a muscle in his left thigh July 17, and never fully recovered, finishing with a .337 average, third in the league.

"I'll be in there in the batting title race next season," Musial predicted.

Starting Early for '59

'I Just Wasn't Ready' In 1958--Don Drysdale

By EDDIE STORIN
Herald Sports Writer

Don Drysdale, sharpening his golf game for the Baseball Players Tournament starting Thursday, gave the lowdown on what happened to Don Drysdale.

"I wasn't ready when the season began," said the Los Angeles Dodgers 22-year-old right-hander. "I was late reporting for spring training because of that six-month Army stint. Got behind in my conditioning and never caught up."

In 1957, Drysdale was the talk of baseball. At 20 he had won 17 games and posted a neat 2.69 earned run average. And big things were predicted.

"I couldn't do anything right at the start," moaned Drysdale. "At one stage my record was 1-7.

"Until last winter I had always worked out during the off-season to keep my arm in shape. That way I didn't have to press during the training period.

"When I'm right, six or eight warm-ups and I'm ready. But last year I was taking 25 . . . then my arm tired easily."

Drysdale, an ambitious cuss — who is said to have the "killer instinct" on the mound, took steps this year to make sure he had no more slow starts.

"I've been working three days a week at the Coliseum all winter," he revealed. "My arm feels great and I'm looking forward to a fast start.

"If I can pick up where I left off last September (Drysdale won 11 of his last 14 games to finish with a 12-13 mark) I'll be okay."

DRYSDALE and his Monday golfing partners — Clem Labine and Don Bessent — have much in common. Not only do they all pitch for the Dodgers, but each is seeking a comeback of sorts.

Labine, the National League's most feared relief pitcher when the Dodgers were winning one pennant after another, had to settle for a 6-6 record last summer and his ERA ballooned to 4.15.

"No," said the 32-year-old Rhode Islander, "I can't use the Coliseum as an excuse. My right hand wasn't right after I got hit by a line drive in June, but it feels fine now.

"Heck, they say a relief pitcher is supposed to get better as he gets older . . . and I'm getting older," Clem smiled.

BESSENT, best remembered for his phenomenal eight straight victories after being recalled from St. Paul midway of the 1955 season, had arm trouble much of last season.

"I'm eager to get started," said the Jacksonville native. "This is an important year for me."

THE THREESOME was more enthused over the Dodgers chances in the 1959 pennant race, then their individual chances in the upcoming golf tournament.

"None of us are contenders," cracked Labine, who last year had Alvin Dark three-up before bowing out on the 19th hole. "I was shooting much better golf last year than I am now."

Kentucky Upset, 66-58

STARKVILLE, Miss. —(UPI) — Mississippi State made a mighty bid for its first Southeastern Conference championship Monday night with a 66-58 win over defending NCAA champion Kentucky, the nation's top rated team.

Bailey Howell, a 6-7 senior who Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp three years ago termed the nation's best center, scored 27 points to lead the 15th ranked Maroons to their 31st straight home win.

Nearly 5,000 cowbell clanging state students closed out the final 15 seconds shouting in unison, "We are number one."

Auburn Rips Gators, 93-71

AUBURN, Ala. —(AP)— Three Auburn veterans paced the Tigers to their 28th consecutive victory Monday night, trouncing the University of Florida, 93-71.

Jimmy Lee led the Tigers with 21 points, followed by Henry Hart with 18 and Rex Frederick with 16.

Celebration-Seeking Chico Medina
. . . meets Ike Vaughn in Beach birthday 'party' tonight

In Beach Battle Tonight

Vaughn 8-5 to Spoil Medina's Birthday

By MEL DERRICK
Herald Sports Writer

He's 8-5 not to enjoy it.

Medina, making his second United States — and Beach— start since running out of opponents in his native South America, tackles traveling Ike Vaughn, an adopted Miamian, in the 10-round main event.

"I've never seen Medina fight," says the 64-year-old ex-fighter.

Fisse, impressed by Medina's record — 61 knockouts in 75 fights against three decision wins and 11 losses — took over the Caracas crusher three months ago.

"He looks great in the gym," said Fisse. "His record shows he can do the job in the ring.

"And I'm looking forward to seeing him do it."

Vaughn's record, not nearly as sparkling as Medina's, was posted against better-known opposition. The Cincinnati smoothie has won seven of nine since a December, 1957 operation (to remove scar tissue from around his eyes) and a three-month layoff. His overall record is 30 wins in 39 fights.

He beat Timmie Jefferson, a hot West Coast prospect, in his last fight, a preliminary to the Virgil Akins-Don Jordan welterweight championship go.

"Working with Akins (in pre-fight training) really helped Ike," says Manager Pat O'Malley. "He moves much faster . . . and he's in terrific shape."

Medina's condition is a matter of some question.

"He has a tendency to eat too much," admits Fisse.

"But he's in fine mental condition. All day Monday, he was going around singing 'Happy birthday to me' and showing me the jab he was going to use on Vaughn."

Another top foreign knockout artist and an ex-champion head tonight's "under card" starting at 8:45.

Charley Pavlis, former Hungarian underground fighter who swapped his rifle for gloves, makes his Beach debut in the 10-round heavyweight semi-windup against Jacksonville's Willie Mack. Pavlis, unbeaten in 17 bouts, has won 16 by knockout.

Other bouts tonight pit Charley Titone with Ray Estepa in a six-round welterweight rematch of a previous draw, and Bobby Shaw with Silky Shelton in a four-round welter hassle.

Hialeah Greets Arcaro; Near-Spill Chills Bill

HARTACK

Eddie Arcaro makes his 1959 lebut at Hialeah today, but rack officials Monday were till trying to line up compeion for First Landing in his inial appearance of the year Vednesday.

There is a seven-furlong race n the book for First Landing Vednesday, but so far only hree three-year-olds have been nentioned as being interested n tackling the two-year-old hampion of 1958.

They are Octopus, Master Palynch, and Easy Spur.

If the field is too small for agering purposes, First Landng's tuneup for the $100,000 'lamingo will be run as an xhibition.

A WARM round of applause om 18,240 fans greeted Bobby ssery on his return to Hialeah londay, but the track's leadg rider had to settle for secd in the featured sixth race. Eric Guerin booted in Alsvin the six-furlong sprint with ssery finishing a fast-closing cond on the favored Austin. Ussery was rushed to the spital last Thursday with a inful kidney ailment. He was leased Sunday and took only o mounts on Monday's proam.

Austin was making only the hird appearance of his career, ut the crowd backed him own to 6-5 favoritism.

The gelding broke well, but ced greenly until the stretch hen he closed strongly to miss tching Alsvin by only threerts of a length.

Alsvin required 1:11 4-5 for e distance and returned 20.

Ussery also finished second his other mount, Sonny Dan. the ninth.

BILL HARTACK opened a ree-length lead in the stretch th the 4-1 Innishowen in the hth event on the turf and peared a sure winner.

However, as Innishowen came to a section where the high hedge veers away leaving a low hedge to mark the course, the horse apparently thought it was a turn and jumped across the small hedge.

Those who viewed pictures of the race marveled at how Hartack managed to avoid a spill and perhaps serious injuries.

Innishowen ran through the hedge back onto the track and crossed the wire third but was disqualified for leaving the course.

Washington, benefitting from Innishowen's detour, won the race and returned $16.60.

Take Care In Selecting Tackle Box

One of the toughest problems facing salt water anglers is the selection of a tackle box which will adequately hold his equipment and at the same time offer at least a fair promise of longevity in the face of metal-devouring brine.

DUNAWAY

Naturally, the choice of a proper tackle box is most confusing for the beginner, or for the angler switching for the first time from freshwater activities to sea fishing. But finding a reasonable tackle box is still such a challenging task that some veterans have long since given up hope, and are content to tote their tackle in canvas bags.

In buying a tackle box, the first consideration is size. For the sake of easy carrying and stowing, you should get one just big enough to accommodate your gear — or to meet planned requirements for the future. That's a snap. Tackle boxes come in every size under the sun.

But then you have to decide on construction, and there is no clear-cut advice to offer. We can, however, consider some of the most-used materials with their advantages and drawbacks.

Steel, Aluminum Out for Salt Water

STEEL: Check this one off quick—unless you don't mind discarding a box and outfitting another at regular intervals.

ALUMINUM: This is a perfect choice for strictly freshwater use, because it won't rust. Salt water, however, will dissolve aluminum faster than it will rust steel.

FISHING
with Vic Dunaway

WOOD: For years, wooden boxes were the only acceptable container around salt spray. Wood licks the corrosion problem, but it has other limitations.

First, wooden boxes are likely to be expensive. Also, I have yet to see one with enough divided trays to suit the average angler. On the other hand, if you need a really big box you have no place else to turn, and the cost situation can be solved by a do-it-yourself project.

PLASTICS AND FIBREGLAS: Synthetic materials can solve the problem for the ordinary angler. But be careful in your selection. Some plastics are brittle and will shatter at the least impact, so try to pick one that's tough and slightly resilient. Hardware is also an important consideration and will be discussed later. Anglers with a lot of gear are not likely to find a plastic box large enough.

Hardware Must Be of Equal Quality

NO MATTER HOW corrosion resistant a box is itself, it will be of little use if the hardware can't stand up. I once went to great trouble to procure a stainless steel box by mail order, then a couple of months later the handle pulled off. Both brackets and rivets were of ordinary aluminum.

Another thing I have had poor luck with is the full-length, piano type hinge. Even though such a hinge is of non-corrosive metal it has a tendency to gather salt water deposits in unreachable places. These deposits eventually stiffen the hinge and cause it to break or "spring."

Now I always look for two or three individual hinges, made of brass or other suitable metal.

Most likely your tackle-toting requirements will fall somewhere in the size range of plastic boxes. If not, you'll need one of the large wooden boxes.

But as far as I'm concerned, the "ideal" hasn't been manufactured yet.

Low Grades Ground Top Gator Vaulters

GAINESVILLE — (UPI) — Grade deficiencies have dealt the University of Florida's athletic program another blow — this time to the track team.

Coach Percy Beard announced Monday that his best pole vaulters, Henry Wadsworth and John Pennel, both of Coral Gables will be inelgible this spring because of poor grades.

Wadsworth, Southeastern Conference freshman champion who consistently tops the 14 foot mark, would have been eligible for the varsity this season. Pennel is a freshman who won the high school pole vault championship last year and set the Florida Relays high school division record at 13 feet, 4¼ inches.

Just last Saturday, football Coach Bob Woodruff announced that four of his varsity performers were ineligible to take part in spring drills because of academic deficiencies. They were Fullbacks Clive Yates, Sonny Giles and Jon MacBeth and Guard Vic Miranda.

Gables Takes on Stings; Jackson Faces Edison

Coral Gables invades Miami High and Miami Jackson plays at Miami Edison in tonight's high school basketball headliners.

South Broward, victim of 61 points by Hialeah's Bernie Butts Friday night, has the dubious pleasure of trying to stop North Miami's Tom Baxley in the Pioneers' gym.

Baxley is the city's second most proficient scorer with 429 points and a 26.8 average. Hialeah treks to Fort Lauderdale where Butts will attempt to improve on his 450 points and 30-point scoring average.

Other games involving local teams tonight will send improving South Dade to Southwest in a key Gold Coast Conference struggle, Miami Beach to St. Patrick's and Curley against Tech at Jackson's gym.

The upstate schedule calls for Pahokee to play at Lake Worth, Cocoa at Fort Pierce in an important northern division Suncoast Conference spat, Okeechobee at Pine Crest, McArthur at Central Catholic, Stuart at Vero Beach, Titusville at Melbourne, Pompano Beach at Clewiston and Seacrest at Belle Glade.

Ronnie Poh and Charlie Key, the county's third and ninth top scorers, will lead Edison against the slumping Jackson Generals. Edison won the first meeting, 42-40.

Coral Gables will attempt to avenge a 61-59 defeat tonight. Both the Cavaliers and Miami High Stingarees are vastly improved over that early season meeting.

Daytona Car Zooms Oval At 171 mph

DAYTONA BEACH — (AP) — Marshall Teague, Daytona Beach Race Track driver, Monday drove a car on the new speedway here faster than any car has ever been driven on a closed American track, NASCAR officials said.

He drove a Sumar Special, a speedway type car, 171 miles an hour in an exhibition. The car had the wrong gear in it at that.

The correct gear—one made for the type of track here, a brand new 2½-mile raceway — will be installed today and another run made.

The 29-year-old Chicago driver's time was the fastest for stock cars so far for two laps around the 2½-mile banked racing track.

Glenn (Fireball) Roberts of Daytona Beach who won the pole position on the basis of the fastest time for sedans on the opening day of the time trials had a speed of 140.58.

Bob Wellborn of Greensboro, N. C., in a 1959 Chevrolet Impala was second in Monday's sedan qualifying with a speed of 140.12. John Beauchamp of Harlan, Iowa, driving a 1959 Thunderbird was third at 139.27. In all 12 sedans qualified.

Ken Rush of High Point, N. C. drove a 1959 Mercury convertible at 124.68 mph for the fastest time in that class. His time, however, was below that of Glen Wood of Stuart, Va., who hit 128.81 on opening day.

So far 17 sedans and five convertibles have qualified for the two NASCAR races Feb. 20. The first 20 finishers in each race will qualify for the 500-mile NASCAR International Sweepstakes Feb. 22.

Qualifying runs will continue Saturday and Sunday.

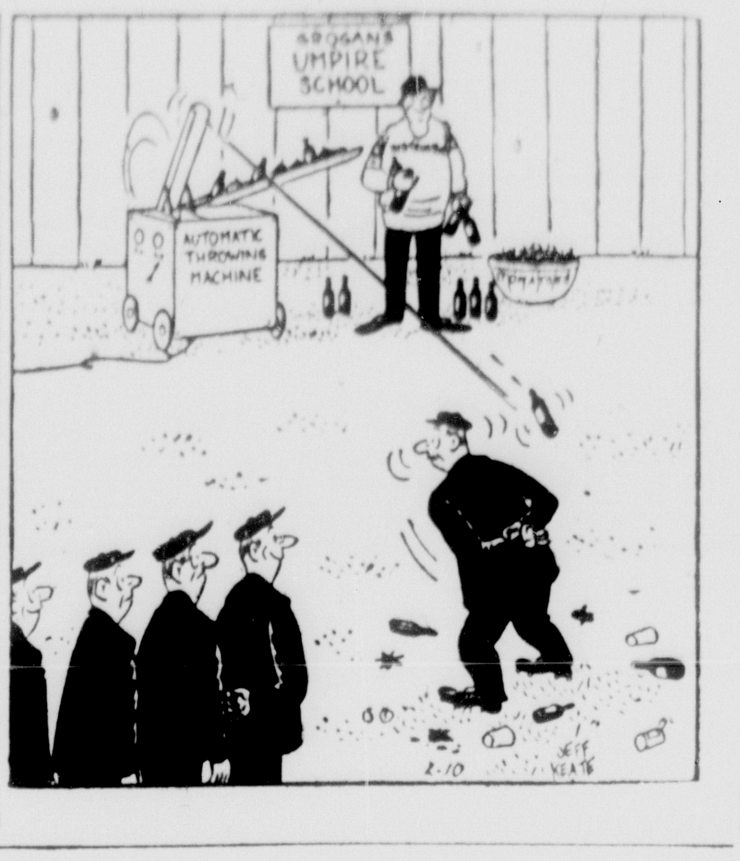
Other qualifiers in sedans, their cars and average speeds:
Ralph Moody, 1959 Thunderbird, 138.95.
Charley Griffith, 1957 Pontiac, 135.62.
Roscoe Thompson, 1957 Chevrolet, 131.
Elmo Langley, 1957 Ford, 129.20.
Joe Johnson, 1957 Chevrolet, 125.10.
Bob Said, 1957 Chevrolet, 124.94.
Speedy Thompson, 1957 Chevrolet, 123.51.
Joe Eubanks, 1958 Ford, 120.77.
Carl Pyler, 1957 Ford, 116.55.
Other qualifiers in convertibles:
Billy Carden, 1957 Mercury, 123.35.
Larry Frank, 1958 Ford, 121.80.



Saturday at Gables

Jax U. Next for UM

The University of Miami basketball team, which has regained the national major college scoring lead, resumes practice today in preparation for Jacksonville University Saturday night in the Coral Gables High gym.

Coach Bruce Hale gave his squad the weekend off after a rigorous slate in which five games were played in seven days, four on the road. The Hurricanes won four, losing only to Stetson. The Hatters sunk a fabulous 36 free throws in 43 tries to take the decision.

Miami regained the national major college scoring lead last week even before the Stetson and Rollins games. Those games brought Miami's average even higher, to 85.5 points, while Cincinnati, in second place, lost a little ground.

Miami's 13-7 record gives the Hurricanes a chance to have their finest record since the 1946-47 team finished at 20-7.

Saturday's game with Jacksonville figures to be close. The Dolphins were edged, 64-62, in the final six seconds at Jacksonville when the teams met there this year. Last year, Miami barely edged Jacksonville here 89-87 and lost 86-72 at Jacksonville.

32 Distance Dogs Open Hollywood Stake Chase

With several record-breaking greyhounds in the starting field, 32 racers from seven tracks move through opening round eliminations in the $10,000 Hollywood Kennel Club Silver Anniversary Stake tonight.

The four trials will be run over the 3-8 mile marathon course and at the end of the night 16 dogs will be left in contention. A total of seven marathon races in all will be staged on tonight's 10-event card.

During schooling spins at Hollywood in preparation for the marathon stake, American Derby Champion Feldcrest, of St. Petersburg, sliced 1-10 of a second off the 3-8 mile track record set 10 years ago — a mark of 38 7-10th seconds.

Lou Rock, another St. Pete dog, equalled the track record, while Texas Yellow Rose, still another St. Petersburg greyhound, missed the mark by only 1-10 of a second.

A number of other greyhounds, including Go Super, the Phoenix Derby champion, and Diplomat of Flagler came close to the time racked up by Rio Grande Rose.

All of these powerful racer, however, are expected to have a tough time with Hollywood's brilliant marathon star, Bud Jack, who hasn't been beaten at the Broward oval in 3-8 mile races and has racked up 10 triumphs this season.

Bud Jack tonight runs with the No. 1 blanket in the 10th race elimination and meets Rio Grande Rose and the Sanford-Orlando star, Cri Tears.

Feldcrest meets Lou Rock and Go Super among other stars in the ninth, while Texas Yellow Rose and Diplomat clash in the eighth race.

The other trial is booked seventh and is headed by Madame Harmony, Barracuda and Warmed Over.

Pretty Pam In '59 Debut

Pretty Pam, holder of two track records at the Miami Beach Kennel Club, makes her 1959 debut in tonight's eighth race over the O. P. Smith course. Pretty Pam won three schooling races last week.

In her first official start, Pretty Pam faces rivals which have been active during the current meeting. Among them will be National Beauty, Irish Mix, Space Command and Scrounger, the latter making his first Grade A start.

Locoweed $22.30, 12.10, 7.20; Roman Spark 12.50, 6.50; Jet Fuel 3.50.

OWNERS: 1. Greentree Stable; 2. Mrs. L. Morris; 3. Mrs. W. Gilroy; 4. I. Bieber; 5. Copalan Stable; 6. E. Dolce; 7. Mrs. S. Young; 8. D. E. Loveman; 9. B. A. Dario; 10. Hept Stable; 11. Mrs. F. W. Hooper.

LOCOWEED attained command on the turn and was under mild urging to increase his advantage and hold sway. ROMAN SPARK trailed along the backstretch and made up considerable ground to wear down the others. JET FUEL could not keep pace. JUDGE BANDEL held a clear advantage after three furlongs and weakened.

SCRATCHES: Secret File, Dobbie, Tom's Ace, Merrybrook, Ala Roman.

Alsvin $9.20, 4.00, 3.20; Austin 3.30, 3.20; Greek Discovery 4.70.

WINNER SELECTED BY: McLaughlin, Ulbig, Consensus.

OWNERS: 1. Mrs. J. B. Paul; 2. Mrs. A. A. Bigelow; 3. C. M. Kline; 4. Mrs. G. Foster; 5. Fronenberger & Zee; 6. W. M. Wickham; 7. Spring Hill Farm; 8. T. W. Baker Jr.; 9. F. W. Hooper; 10. F. A. Sherman.

ALSVIN raced closest to the pace, wore down WHATS REQUIRED to attain a good lead inside the furlong pole and was roused to last over AUSTIN. The latter dropped back suddenly before completing a quarter, was slow to respond on the turn, then was taken outside and finished with a rush. GREEK DISCOVERY rallied only mildly.

SCRATCHES: Admiral's Watch, Crafty Sailor, Remo, First National, Dandy Ron, Dark Look.

WASHINGTON remained along the inside while a bit close on the first turn, made an unsuccessful attempt to attain command on the final turn, then continued on gamely for the victory. FOUR FATHOMS, forced very wide on the first turn, held on determinedly after making an effort to follow INNISHOWEN through the hedge. TOQUE failed to reach the leaders. INNISHOWEN set the pace under rating, held a clear advantage while going easily until about 70 yards from the finish, then went through the inside hedge and left the course.

MISTER JIVE, on the outside while dueling with SONNY DAN, showed a fine late response for the victory. SONNY DAN was hard pressed for command, held on gamely after having been displaced and gave way only in the final strides. HOOP BAND loomed a threat and hung. BACKBONE lacked sufficient speed to move through along the inside down the backstretch, then failed to enter contention.

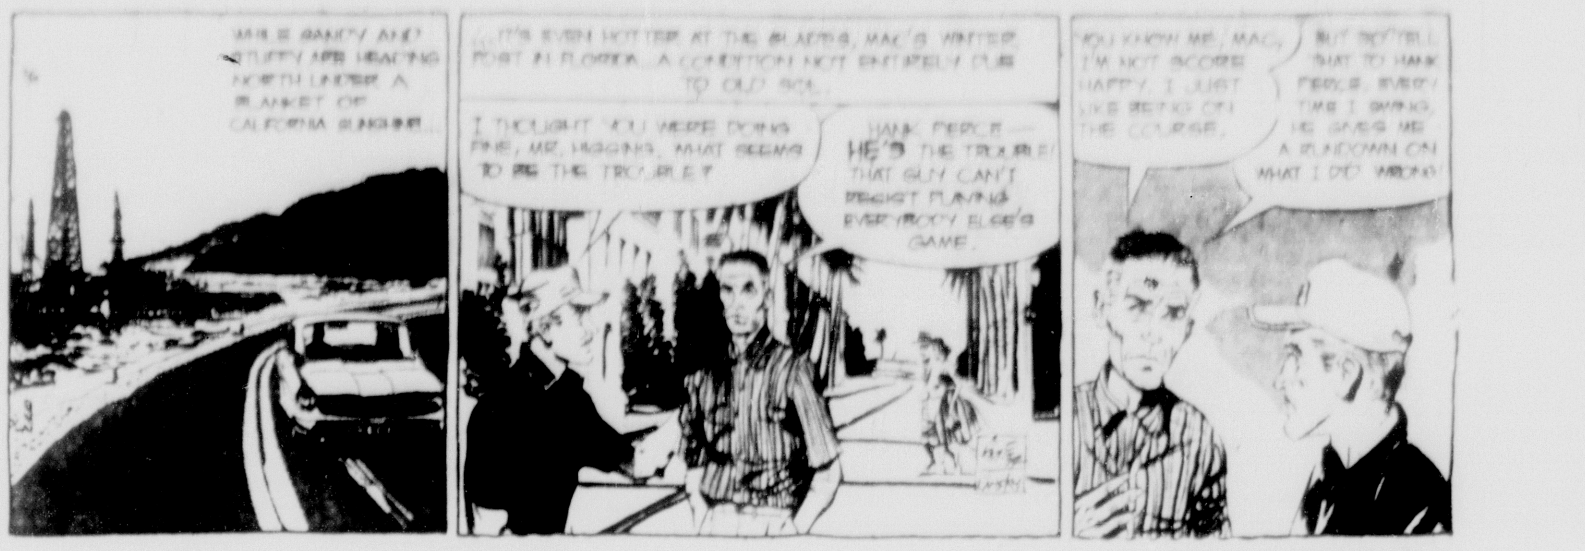
MAC DIVOT



WHILE SANDY AND STUFFY ARE HEADING NORTH UNDER A BLANKET OF CALIFORNIA SUNSHINE...
...IT'S EVEN HOTTER AT THE BLADES, MAC'S WINTER POST IN FLORIDA...A CONDITION NOT ENTIRELY DUE TO OLD SOL.
I THOUGHT YOU WERE DOING FINE, MR. HIGGINS. WHAT SEEMS TO BE THE TROUBLE?
HANK PIERCE — HE'S THE TROUBLE! THAT GUY CAN'T RESIST PLAYING EVERYBODY ELSE'S GAME.
YOU KNOW ME, MAC, I'M NOT SCORE HAPPY. I JUST LIKE BEING ON THE COURSE.
BUT TRY TELL THAT TO HANK PIERCE. EVERY TIME I SWING, HE GIVES ME A RUNDOWN ON WHAT I DID WRONG!

Marlins Get Bill Rozich

The Baltimore Orioles Monday assigned the contract of First Baseman Bill Rezich to the Miami Marlins.

Rezich was with Paris, Texas in the Sooner State League in 1957, where he batted .368 (11 homers and 78 RBIs) before breaking an ankle. He was out most of the 1958 season.

50-Year Transition

The Big Change In Wall Street: 'Respectability'

By JAMES RUSSELL
Herald Business Editor

The biggest change to come over the stocks and bonds business in the last 50 years is "respectability."

This observation comes from a man who has been a prominent figure in the business for 57 years—Edward Allen Pierce.

He's the Pierce of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, the largest U.S. stock brokerage firm.

The firm opened its third Greater Miami office Monday in the new First National Bank Building. Pierce, still active at the age of 85, came down from New York for the opening.

"WHEN I STARTED out in the business," said Pierce, "Wall Street wasn't respectable. It was regarded more as a racket than a business. I don't mean that it was crooked or anything like that. It was just more of an avocation than a vocation."

Now, the whole picture is changed Pierce said. Ten million Americans own common stock today and the field of stockholders runs the gamut from elevator operators and truck drivers to university presidents and multi-millionaires.

Edward Pierce and Matthew Smith
. . . helped open 3rd Merrill Lynch office here

What is in the future for stock ownership and the brokerage business?

Pierce sees a bright future for both. But he senses a need, too.

"WHAT'S NEEDED," he said, "is more education of the public to what stock ownership is and is not."

To illustrate this, Pierce told the story of a man who confidently bought stock some years back in the Canton Co., thinking it was a tea firm in the Far East. He found out three years later that it was a local railroad in Maryland.

"Fortunately," he said, "the railroad had prospered and his stock had grown in value."

Merrill Lynch and other brokerage firms have been engaged for several years in a campaign to educate the public in the why's and wherefore's of stock ownership.

Is it paying off?

"Absolutely," said Pierce. "A good indication is the success of the monthly investment plan."

THOUSANDS of persons buy stock through the MIP by paying as little as $40 every three months.

Matthew J. Smith is manager of the new office of Merrill Lynch here.

"Miami now ranks right behind New York and Los Angeles in the number of offices our firm has in any metropolitan area," Smith said.

For Self-Employed

Set-Aside Deduction Given Second Look

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A bill according special income tax benefits to professional and other self-employed individuals who establish their own old-age retirement fund was approved Monday by the House Ways and Means Committee.

An identical bill, denounced by its critics as a tax windfall for special groups, was passed by the House in the closing days of the last session but died in the Senate.

It was reapproved by the Ways and Means Committee along with a package of nine other minor revenue and tariff measures passing the House last Congress but falling short of final enactment before adjournment.

The retirement fund bill would allow doctors, lawyers and other self-employed taxpayers of like nature to defer payment of taxes on income up to $2,500 a year which they put away for old-age retirement purposes.

A lifetime limit of $50,000 is fixed on the total amount of the pension fund, with retirement to be no earlier than age 65 or later than age 70.

A larger annual set-aside is allowed individuals 50 years of age or more, who get a late start under the proposed law. The $50,000 limit would still apply, however.

Individuals setting aside income for pension purposes would be permitted to deduct the set-aside from their taxable income. The tax would be deferred until they begin drawing pension upon retirement.

January's Auto Sales Are Above Last Year

DETROIT — New car sales in January were 12.6 per cent above the total for the same month a year ago, when sales had begun to lag badly. But last month's total was well below that reported by dealers for January, 1957.

Sales of 428,000 new cars last month compared with 380,000 reported sold in January, 1958, were at an annual rate of slightly more than five million. This would be considerably ahead of the 4,500,000 cars sold last year but far behind 1957's 5,900,000.

The figures on January sales were reported by Ward's Automotive Report, which said that the daily selling rate for the month was 16,458, compared with 14,615 last year. The January, 1957, selling rate was 18,840 units per day.

Meanwhile, several auto divisions issued optimistic sales reports that gave a rosy hue to some of the uncertainty still prevailing about 1959 auto prospects.

New Bank Open for Business
. . . this was scene few minutes after opening

A Ribbon Is Cut; A Bank Is Open

Mrs. Edna A. Lindblom cut a ribbon with a pair of goldplated scissors Monday and the new First National Bank building was officially opened.

Mrs. Lindblom, an assistant vice president, was chosen to do the ribbon-cutting because of her long service with the bank. She's been there 43 years.

The bank opened on time at 9:30 a.m. after a busy weekend in which the whole operation was moved from its old Flagler St. location.

Ralph W. Crum, the First National's president, served as master of ceremonies for the dedication ceremonies, attended by several hundred guests.

Speakers included Metro Commission Chairman Walter Weiss, State Treasurer J. Edwin Larson, and the bank's board chairman, Comer J. Kimball.

The main lobby of the bank looked like a florist's shop. Flowers sent by well-wishers from all over the nation and parts of Latin America were on display.

The bank itself is housed on the first four stories of the 18-story skyscraper building. In the stories above will be offices.

Although most of the office space is rented, only a small part was ready for opening Monday. On the fifth floor, a new office of the Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith stock brokerage firm opened at the same time the bank began operating.

Ohio Company Buys Ruffe Firm

F. C. Russell Co. of Colombiana, Ohio, has bought all the common stock of Ruffe, Inc., of Miami, a 500-thousand-dollar dye cast firm.

The Ruffe firm has recently been engaged as a prime contractor for the Navy and Air Force.

Senate Subcommittee OKs Merger Notification Bill

Dow Jones, AP, UPI

The Senate anti-trust subcommittee approved a bill which would require corporations to notify the government before merging.

The measure would require that any merger in which both corporations have a book value in excess of 10 million dollars be reported to the government 60 days prior to the actual merger.

The subcommittee also approved a bill which would give the Federal Trade Commission authority to issue final cease and desist orders in anti-trust cases.

This would require defendants to prove to the federal courts that the order should not have been issued.

PITTSBURGH STEEL CO. and Sharon Steel Corp. called off merger discussions with the announcement that "it did not appear probable that a satisfactory basis for merger could be reached."

Credit Cards Reach the Explosive Stage

Here's What It Costs to Say 'Charge It'

By SYLVIA PORTER
Political Analyst

What's the built-in cost of credit cards to you — a typical American consumer who already has joined or soon expects to join an all-purpose credit card club in order to have the privilege of saying "charge it" at thousands of stores, restaurants, hotels, motels, auto rental services, florists, etc., across the country and the Western world?

Sylvia Porter

Although credit cards have been in use for at least a quarter-century, only in the past several months has the credit card movement reached the explosive stage.

THE DINERS' CLUB now claims a membership of 800,000 and provides charge-account privileges at around 20,000 service associates in this nation and 76 other countries.

The American Express Co.'s credit organization, in existence only since last October, already claims a membership of 500,000 and provides charge-account privileges at 28,000 associates here and abroad. The Hilton Hotels Corp. is entering the field with a major "Carte Blanche" card. All sorts of special cards — for skiers, yachters, etc.— are being issued.

This is the new angle — the extension of credit card privileges beyond the businessman and corporation to the average citizen.

This issuance of cards at a fee to the holder is what raises the question of the real cost of the service to the consumer — and the giants in the field have clearly stated their hopes of extending the cards to millions, have indicated they foresee a day when housewives the nation over will carry credit cards for general use.

WHAT, THEN, are some of the costs? A first objective effort to find out has just been made by the 23-year-old, nonprofit Consumers Union. Its conclusions will be disclosed in a few weeks in the March issue of its magazine "Consumer Reports."

An obvious cost, of course, is the annual fee for membership in the credit card clubs— $5 for a Diners' Club card, $6 for an American Express or Hilton Hotels card.

For a businessman, this is a modest fee to pay for the advantages of one bill, once a month, for all expenditures, for reduced bookkeeping costs, for accurate income-tax records. And assuming he or she uses the card properly, a consumer may find it a fairly modest fee, too.

BUT IN ADDITION to this fee to you, the credit card companies charge their service associates commissions against the business the associates get from card holders and presumably the associates — restaurants, shops, hotels, all the rest — recover the commissions somehow.

As an illustration, in the case of restaurants, the commission runs around 7 per cent. Restaurants can recover this 7 per cent either through raising their prices or through increased business from new customers or through freer spending by the card holders.

If the solution is higher prices for meals, the card holder is definitely paying. Consumer Reports says that on the West Coast and in some Midwest areas, restaurant associations are "considering the possibility of adding a 5 per cent surcharge to every credit-card customer's bill."

IF THE SOLUTION is freer spending by card holders — and the estimate is a credit customer spends 15 to 35 per cent more than the cash customer — then, suggests Consumer Reports, the thoughtful consumer well might weigh carefully what he is gaining— particularly since "A card provides for no more than a 30-day stay against the reality of cash. If the card holder fails to pay up promptly at the end of the month, his card is cancelled.

The whole tone of the report is one of caution, but even Consumers Union implies its expectation that many more Americans will "wish to join in the new excitement that now surrounds this potentially explosive credit toy."

If you're among them, remember credit is a service and any service costs money. Join happily if you wish, but know what the privilege of saying "charge it" really is doing to your bills.

Its Arvida Ruling Useful, Says SEC

By STAN JOHNSON
Herald Business Writer

The Securities and Exchange Commission said Monday that its action in temporarily blocking a stock offering by the Arvida Corp. had served a good purpose.

The agency has been critized in New York financial circles for holding up the 27.5-million-dollar stock sale last December.

The SEC had accused Arvida's underwriters, Carl M. Loeb, Rhoades & Co. and Dominick & Dominick, of unlawfully releasing publicity about the impending sale before the stock was registered.

Comparision of the September publicity with the final prospectus of Arvida "illustrates the wisdom of the Congressional prohibition against pre-filing publicity," the Commission observed.

"Wholly omitted from the release and withheld from reporters were the essential financial facts of capitalization, indebtedness and operating results which are so material to any informed investment decision.

"From the publicity, investors could, and no doubt many did, derive the impression that the risk and financing requirements of this real estate venture had been substantially satisfied by (Arvida's chairman, Arthur Vining Davis) and that the public was being invited to participate in reaping the fruits through early development.

In determining not to impose any penalty on Arvida's underwriters, the Commission said it took into account their reputation and the fact that they had never before been the subject of disciplinary proceedings.

"These proceedings and the judgment of the court in the injunctive action . . . have served to place registrants and the securties industry upon unmistakable notice of their obligations in the field of publicity and forcibly to direct the attention of registrants to the consequences of improper practices in this area," the Commission said.

Vacation or no...
Most investors we know like to keep tabs on the market—the day-to-day progress of their investment programs.
That's why we'd like to remind you that all the help we can give you—facts, facilities, and service—is as close as a phone.
For the latest prices on any stocks, bonds, or commodities of interest to you . . .
For up-to-the-minute news and opinion from markets everywhere . . .
For opinion—if you want it—from a seasoned Account Executive, backed by one of the biggest and best research departments in the business...
For fast execution of any buy or sell orders . . .
Just call—
UNion 5-5711, FRanklin 7-1451 or FRanklin 7-3501
We will be happy to handle your orders on a "give-up" basis, if your own broker doesn't have an office here in town.
Remember—vacation or no—helping investors is always our business.

Drop Is Worst In 4 Months

NEW YORK — (AP) — The stock market Monday had its steepest decline since last November and ran its current series of setbacks to four straight.

An estimated 3.6 billion dollars in quoted values was erased from stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Prices declined on a broad front including most major sections of the market. Blue chips were hit hard in waves of selling.

It was the first time since last April — when the sustained climb to record highs got under way — that the market has declined in four consecutive sessions. In recent months it has always rallied on the fourth day after three daily setbacks.

Leading stocks were down from fractions to two points or so. Some of the higher priced issues lost more. A few stocks bucked the downtrend.

Of 1,234 issues traded, 895 fell and 199 rose. There were 13 new highs for 1958-'59 and nine new lows.

Volume was 3,130,000 shares compared with 3,010,000 on Friday.

American Motors was the most active stock, off 1 at 32 3-8 on 79,800 shares. Second was Studebaker-Packard, off ½ at 13 on 56,100 shares. Third was General Motors off 1¼ at 45¼ on 43,300 shares.

N.Y. Butter & Eggs

Eggs, steady to firm. Demand improved. Mediums continued short of trade needs. Receipts 24,600 cases of 30 dozen each.

Wholesale selling prices in cents per dozen: Extras (minimum 65 per cent A quality, includes midwestern): Large 48½-50 lbs.: White 36-38, brown 36½-37½, mixed colors 36-37½. Mediums (minimum 60 per cent A): White 35½-36; mixed color 35-36. Extras (minimum 55 per cent A): Checks 34-35. Standards 35-35½.

Potato Market

CHICAGO — (UPI) — Potatoes (old and new): Total U.S. shipments (weekend) 1,026; arrivals and track unavailable; supplies moderate; demand good; market steady to slightly stronger.

Track sales: (100 lbs. U.S. 1A unless otherwise stated) Idaho russets 3.55, bakers 3.75; Minnesota - North Dakota red river valley pontiacs 2.15-2.25.

First 1959 BUY-POINT Expected Soon

Sometime within the next 30 to 60 days we expect a market correction . . . followed by a surge to new high levels in many stocks. This will be, in our opinion, the last good buy-point in certain low-priced issues that you will see in a long time.

Big Gains in Low-Priced Issues

Since the beginning of this bull market some spectacular profits have been made in low-priced issues. For example:

Stock	1958 Low	Recent Price	% Gain
Amer. Motors	8	41½	418%
Checker Motors	4¾	17	258%
Emerson Radio	4⅛	15¼	269%
Minute Maid	4⅞	18⅞	287%
Rexall Drug	8⅛	35⅛	332%

The fast-developing 1959 business prosperity should trigger many more gains like these in certain low-priced issues. To prepare you for this exceptional opportunity we have selected 14 big-profit candidates in a new Spear Report: "14 LOW-PRICED STOCKS TO SWITCH INTO FOR LARGE PROFITS IN THE PERIOD JUST AHEAD." Just $1 will bring you a copy of this Report. We will also include 2 current issues of the weekly Spear Market Letter. (New readers.) Send $1 today to Box S-49

7 STOCKS LIKELY TO TRIPLE?

Our Editors have newly analyzed an extraordinary list of 66 growth stocks—each picked by one or more professional analysts as likely to triple in the next 3 years. After intensive study, we now recommend 7 of these 66 stocks. All 7 are featured in our new Special Report. It is titled: "7 New Growth Stocks Most Likely to Triple in the Next 3 Years". These 7 stocks remind us of outstanding profit-makers like Thiokol Chemical (8¼ to 70¾ in rocket fuels). And stocks like Ventures, Ltd. (4 to 42¾ in mining and oil). Two of these 7 stocks are special "atomic" stocks. One is in guided missiles. One is in electronic controls. Another is in "stereo" sound. A copy of our new Report featuring these "7 Stocks to Triple" is yours as a bonus now when you send just $1 (new readers only) to try our weekly advisory service, "The Growth Stock Letter" for the next two weeks. Mail this ad with your name and address and $1 today to Dept. ST-62.

Try Little Off-Beat Dealings

By CARROLL RIGHTER
Tuesday, Feb. 10, 1959

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Spend part of this day maneuvering and angling secretly — by going to see those persons who are most expert and experienced in your own line of endeavor.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Since you are inspired and most enthusiastic now to take those steps forward in your career, make it a point to contact relatives and financiers, friends who can give you the support you need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) All your energy applied in the right direction in the business or creative world today will produce the desired results. Confer with most influential and enlightened persons.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) This is the finest day in which to start pulling yourself out of the dull-doldrum existence in which you have rested too long already. Mingle with persons you admire.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Put into operation early whatever good ideas and suggestions have recently been given you by bankers, experts, associates, et al. Get your credit up higher, also.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) It is possible now to know what your exact relative position is with all associates and other vital persons in your life, but you must converse with them at length to reach this point.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Morning brings an opportunity to confer with fellow workers or partners on matters of politics, policy or efficiency which are important at this time. Work and win.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Sit back a while today and plan how you can better balance your time so that you can have better and more soul-satisfying recreation, hobbies. Be sure to combine business with pleasure.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Personal and family affairs should be the first things on the agenda throughout the day and evening now. Also, get those long-term new ventures started.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A day for planned activity, bustling about shopping, keeping appointments, attending to home or office detail and chores, reading, research, etc. Be practical, poised.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Spend best part of day working out most vital business and monetary affairs. Forget all thought of the unimportant or amusing. Set up a better bookkeeping system. Tonight then is free for any treatments that will improve health.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) A day for thinking in terms of self almost entirely. First, concentrate on how to have a more pleasing appearance, then off to those persons or places where you can tangibly improve your standing.

Pea Soup Fog Adds To Peril

New England At Coldest

CHICAGO —(UPI)— The Midwest slipped and slithered on a mammoth sheet of ice Monday.

When Midwesterners weren't cracking their shins and breaking their bones on the glazed sidewalks, they were groping through dense, zero-visibility fog.

From Kansas to Ohio, freezing rain and drizzle laid down an ice cover which crippled cities, closed schools, and made driving a daredevil feat. Warm Gulf air created the pea-soup fog.

The East was scheduled to hit the skids during the night. Meanwhile, New England froze in its coldest weather of the season — a 34-below reading at Newport, Vt.

Colorado battled not only ice and fog, but snows up to 16 inches deep which closed one mountain pass and packed all the others with snow. Travel without chains was impossible over the Sierra Mountains from Reno, Nev., to California.

The ice belt stretched from Kansas through parts of Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. Travel was so dangerous that the weather bureau urged: "All except urgent travel should be abandoned . . ."

Illinois had already counted three traffic deaths blamed on the ice and Iowa one.

Chicago, Detroit, Kansas City and St. Louis were among the larger Midwest population centers afflicted by the ice storm.

During Probe of Fatal Crash

Rules Tightened Up On Electra Landings

NEW YORK —(AP)— The federal government Monday limited bad weather landings by the new Electra jet-prop airliners. The safety restrictions —expected to be only temporary—followed last weeks East River crash that cost 65 lives.

Nationally, for the time being, the cloud ceilings for such flights were raised 600 feet and visibility requirements doubled. This is intended to give pilots more leeway in landings when they come off instruments and into open weather.

"We're happy to cooperate," said a spokesman for American Airlines, whose Electra Flight 320 crashed into the river Tuesday night when it undershot LaGuardia Field. There were only eight survivors of the disaster.

American is hopeful that the restrictions — which also apply to Electra jet-props flown by Eastern Airlines—wil be short-lived. Eastern, in directing compliance with the restrictions, spoke of "a temporary restriction of not more than three days."

The new safety limits were set by the Federal Aviation Agency, the new over-all government regulatory agency for commercial air operations. The FAA said:

"The restrictions are temporary, voluntary on the part of the airlines, and the airlines have accepted the restrictions so that the order is in force now."

The FAA is directing the intensive investigation now under way into the Feb. 3 East River crash. Thus far, there has been no indication as to why the plane plunged into the river in bad weather just short of LaGuardia.

If it eventually is determined that weather was not a factor in the disaster, the new restrictions presumably will be softened or removed. The FAA said they will remain in effect while the probe is going on.

Flight 320, inbound from Chicago, began its landing on instruments, with a ceiling of between 300 and 400 feet and visibility of about two miles. The federally regulated limits at the time were a 400 feet ceiling and one mile visibility.

Under the new restrictions, the ceiling must be at least 1,000 feet and visibility two miles. If the limits are less than that, the plane must circle the airport until the weather improves, or go on to another field that meets the limitations.

Eastern Airlines was the first to put the 68-passenger Lockheed Electra into service early this year. American put them on its Chicago-New York run Jan. 23. Eleven other lines have the plane on order.

Lockheed officials said they would have no immediate comment on the FAA order.

The East River crash was the first involving the new $1,700,000 planes.

Prayer for Today

U.S. Academies Have Own Prayer

Lent begins on Wednesday, and in the spirit of the holy season The Herald is running daily excerpts throughout Lent from Columnist Jim Bishop's book, "Go With God." Here is the third installment:

By JIM BISHOP

West Point Prayer

Go With God

This prayer is regularly used at Sunday services of the United States Military Academy at West Point. Another prayer has been used similarly at all chapel services at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis.

O GOD, our father, Thou Searcher of men's hearts, help us to draw near to Thee in sincerity and truth. May our religion be filled with gladness and may our worship of Thee be natural.

Strengthen and increase our admiration for honest dealing and clean thinking, and suffer not our hatred of hypocrisy and pretense ever to diminish. Encourage us in our endeavor to live about the common level of life. Make us to choose the harder right instead of the easier wrong, and never to be content with a half-truth when the whole can be won. Endow us with courage that is born of loyalty to all that is noble and worthy, that scorns compromise with vice and injustice and knows no fear when truth and right are in jeopardy. Guard us against flippancy and irreverence in the sacred things of life . . . Help us, in our work and in our play, to keep ourselves physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight. All of which we ask in the name of the Great Friend and Master of men. Amen.

Says It Proves Value of Law

SEC Finds Moral In Arvida Case

By RICHARD E. MOONEY
New York Times Service

N. Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The Securities and Exchange Commission Monday handed down its final word on the Arvida case, saying it had put the securities industry on "unmistakable notice" about its limited right to publicize upcoming securities offerings.

Arvida is the name of a corporation formed last year to finance and develop the extensive Florida real estate holdings of Arthur Vining Davis, 91-year-old former head of the Aluminum Corp. of America.

It became a case for the SEC when two Wall Street firms — Carl M. Loeb, Rhoades and Co. and Dominick and Dominick — issued information about a proposed issue of Arvida stock to the press before any registration statement for the stock had been filed with the commission. The two firms were underwriters of the issue.

The SEC took them to court in September and won an injunction against them on Dec. 12, but imposed no penalties. The commission issued its final opinion and findings Monday.

It said that this was "no mere technical controversy" about the time and manner of publicity. "On the contrary, (it) vitally concerns the basic principle of the Securities Act (of 1933)."

That principle is that the health of the financial markets requires that when new issues are sold there must be "full disclosure of material facts" under the standards and procedures set by the law.

"Securities are distributed in this country by a complex and sensitive machinery geared to accomplish nationwide distribution of large quantities of securities with great speed," the commission said.

The SEC said that a comparison of the pre-registration Arvida publicity with the company's final prospectus for its stock "illustrates the wisdom of the congressional prohibition against pre-filing publicity."

"Wholly omitted from the (press) release and withheld from reporters were the essential financial facts of capitalization, indebtedness and operating results which are so material to any informed investment decision," it said.

U.S. Dares Soviet to Air Tape

Russians Keeping It From People

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The State Department challenged Moscow Monday to tell the Russian people about a U.S. tape recording which this country cited as proof that Red pilots shot down an unarmed American plane last September.

Department Press Officer Lincoln White said Soviet officials who branded the recording a fake "can yell foul and fake until they are blue in the face, but the facts speak for themselves." He reaffirmed the authenticity of the tape.

The department Thursday made public a tape recording which it said showed Soviet fighter pilots deliberately shot down a U.S. Air Force transport with 17 men aboard after it strayed across the Soviet Armenian border.

The Russians returned bodies of six airmen but have never accounted for the remaining 11. Moscow denied responsibility for the tragedy, claiming the plane crashed after apparently becoming disabled.

On Saturday, Moscow denounced the recording as a fabrication and "clumsy farce." White, ovbiously angered by the Russian allegations, noted that these Soviet charges were aired by Moscow radio — in languages other than Russian.

Charging that the Kremlin had "studiously avoided" informing the Russian people of the facts, White called on Soviet officials to tell their people about the U.S. tape recording in language they could understand.

He recalled that Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy wanted to play the tape on Nov. 13 for Russian Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov and the Russian embassy's air attache. But White said they "studiously avoided hearing it."

Murphy, at his meeting with Menshikov, handed a transcript of the recording in Russian to the Soviet envoy. Menshikov said then he would tell his government about it.

However, White said the U.S. still was waiting for a reply.

White said U.S. officials did not offer to play the tape for Deputy Soviet Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan when he was here recently. But he said he was sure Mikoyan knew about it because Menshikov had promised to relay the information to Moscow.

U.S. Steel Probe Being Prepared

NEW YORK —(AP)— The Journal American said Monday that the Justice Department is preparing to subpena the records of U.S. Steel Corp. in connection with an antitrust investigation.

An article by Leslie Gould, financial editor, said "a grand jury investigation, similar to that just launched against General Motors Corp., is to be made, with two main objectives:

"1—A regional divestment of U.S. Steel's mills where the company has a major share of the steel market.

"2—An end to the present system of pricing."

The Journal said this is part of the Justice Department's new drive against bigness in business, "particularly where the enterprises are successful."

"The anti-trust campaign is bigger than any ever attempted in the past, including the days of Theodore Roosevelt," The Journal said.

U. S. Steel had no immediate comment.

Last week Assistant U. S. Attorney Victor Hansen said the Justice Department is gathering information on General Motors for presentation to a grand jury in New York. He also said data on "bigness" in the steel industry is being compiled for a grand jury in San Francisco but did not specify any individual steel firm.

Hansen said the campaign is directed at "undue concentration" in the steel and auto industries.

States to Match Federal Funds

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The Eisenhower administration Monday proposed a new program of aid to communities and colleges which cannot afford needed new construction.

The long-range air program would cost the federal government an estimated 2½ billion dollars over a 25-year period. Details of draft bills were outlined by Secretary Arthur S. Flemming to newsmen.

He said the plan was "consistent with the fiscal policies of this administration." He said it could be handled within the framework of President Eisenhower's narrowly balanced 77-billion-dollar 1960 budget and will require no cash payments in fiscal 1960.

Under the proposed program for elementary and high school construction, the federal government would agree to pay principal and interest on new school construction bonds on a 50-50 matching basis with the states.

Flemming said the maximum annual federal payment on elementary and high school bonds would be 85 million dollars and the aggregate potential cost would be about two billion dollars over approximately 25 years.

The program, Flemming said, would be available only to communities which lack the resources to finance their own classroom needs.

The plan would be in effect for new construction started in the next five years. Flemming said it would cover up to three billion dollars worth of construction of elementary and high school buildings.

Under the program for college classrooms and housing, the federal government would put up an annual payment of 25 million dollars to retire debts. The aggregate federal cost would be 500 million dollars over 25 years.

The federal government would annually advance half of the funds required by needy local school districts to pay the principal and interest charges on bonds issued by the districts to finance school construction projects, if the states in which such districts are located undertake to put up the remaining half of the payments.

Car Lights Faded and We Rose Into Darkness

Up, Up and Away!

Rosemary Mudie, the lone woman member of the daring expedition in the balloon "The Small World," the year's most thrilling true adventure story, today brings her first-person narrative to the take-off. This is the first publication of the full account of the perilous venture.

By ROSEMARY MUDIE

The take-off of our balloon from Tenerife Island in our attempt to span the Atlantic was a nightmare come to life.

We had picked the Canary Islands, which lie about 60 miles off the African coast, as the best launching place on the advice of meteorologists. It was a sheer coincidence that from this same island Columbus set out in 1492 on his first voyage to the New World, but we thought it augured well for our own expedition.

El Globo, as the natives called "The Small World," was the No. 1 topic of conversation among the islanders. From the moment of our first appearance there we had a swarm of well-wishers and helpers around our launching site on Playa de la Tejita beach, near the tiny fishing town of El Medano.

A huge ground sheet had been spread out so that the balloon would not be punctured by sharp bits of debris and then the deflated 46-foot canopy itself was spread on top of it. The net was in place over it and firmly anchored with sand bags. Nearby in an orderly pile were the 690 cylinders of hydrogen gas for the four hour inflation job. Now we were waiting on the weather.

The sea trip down from Southampton was on a ship that obviously was more accustomed to carrying bananas than balloons. We were grateful for the free ride they gave us for though we were dealing with a lighter-than-air vehicle, our equipment weighed 45 tons!

The Hairdresser Does His Share

After all the launching preparations were completed, I decided that there was still one thing for me to do personally — I had my hair done.

It turned out to be quite an experience for the shop became crowded with people who wanted to see the woman who was going on "El Globo." I was told later that some of them were comparing me with Manolete, the Spanish bullfighter, as the arch-symbol of bravery, which was the purest nonsense.

When the hairdresser was finished, he refused to accept any money, indicating that this was his contribution to our flight. Little did I reckon that it would be five weeks before I could have my hair done again and that three of those weeks would be spent at sea in an open boat. I left his shop knowing how a celebrity feels, and I must say that I enjoyed it.

"All right, boys and girls, we're going this time!" Bushy Eiloart said. It was just after one a.m. Thursday morning, Dec. 11, when our now-qualified balloon pilot made this decision.

We welcomed the decision

Allies Agreed on Steps If Reds Blockade Berlin

Resolved To Remain, Dulles Says

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said Monday the Western Allies had reached general agreement on steps they would take if Russia imposed a new blockade around Berlin.

Dulles reaffirmed the West's decision to stay in Berlin following his return from Europe. He conferred there with British, French and West German leaders on the Soviet's threat to turn over their section of Berlin to the East German Communists on May 27.

The secretary, who planned to report to President Eisenhower almost immediately, said, "we are willing to talk with the Soviets in a sincere effort to reach agreements" on the German problem. But he said the West was determined to maintain access to Berlin.

"We do not accept the substitution of East Germans for the Soviet Union in its responsibilities toward Berlin and its obligations to us," Dulles said upon his arrival at the Washington airport.

"We are resolved that our position in, and access to, West Berlin shall be preserved. We are in general agreement as to the procedures we shall follow if physical means are invoked to interfere with our rights in this respect."

Dulles did not say what "procedures" the West would follow if the Soviets decided, as they did in 1949, to deny the West access to Berlin. The old German capital is isolated more than 100 miles inside Communist East Germany.

Shortly before Dulles' arrival, Britain announced its complete support for his earlier statement that the West would make no concessions to the Russians without counter proposals from Moscow.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the Russians bore the responsibility for deciding whether there was to be risk of war over Berlin.

Dulles had said as he boarded his plane in Bonn that the Western Allies would be "firm and united for our rights." He did not rule out a conciliatory attitude by the West but excluded any "concessions for which there is no counterpart."

We'll Be Squeezed, Berlin Mayor Says

WASHINGTON —(AP)— West Berlin's Mayor Willy Brandt said Monday his city would be "squeezed like a lemon" by the Russians should the West accept the Soviet ultimatum and withdraw its troops.

Brandt and his wife were interviewed on a television program while they had breakfast in West German Ambassador Wilhelm Grewe's residence.

The West Berlin mayor reiterated his opinion that eventually a lasting settlement could be worked out between East and West should the two parties find a basis of "common interest."

Pupil-Pay New Angle By Faubus

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — (UPI) — Gov. Orval Faubus revealed Monday the latest gambit in his fight against integration — a proposed state law to give state money to students who don't want to attend integrated schools.

Faubus said a bill to make such a law will be introduced this week in the Legislature. He predicted it can not be overturned by any court.

Faubus said that under the plan, any student could receive a direct grant from the state for educational purposes. The money could be spent for public or private schools.

The governor closed Little Rock's four public high schools Sept. 12 to block court-ordered integration. They have never opened.

Faubus said his plan will help private schools particularly but said it does not mean abolition of the public school system, since the tuition can be used by the student in any other school district.

Race will not be mentioned in the measure.

The governor said he does not think the courts can touch the proposed law.

"It's just carrying a little bit further the rights of an individual," Faubus said. 'All students have constitutional rights — not just members of one race or group, although the present Supreme Court seems interested in only one race."

Faubus said he personally would not restrict use of the money, which means it could go to church-supported schools.

"Of course, there will be a requirement that the money can go only to accredited schools," Faubus said.

The amount of tuition a student could draw from the state might vary according to local costs of educating children, Faubus said.

"It could help Little Rock should the schools be opened on a compulsory basis."

Chou Back Home

TOKYO — (UPI) — Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai and his official party returned to Peiping Monday from Moscow, where they attended the 21st Congress of the Soviet Communist Party, the New China news agency reported.

The Winds Grew, Foiled Takeoff

"I've just read the latest meteorological report," he continued, "and it shows light to medium northeasterly winds constant for more than 500 miles west. We better take advantage of it."

But to our bitter disappointment it was not to be so. The wind grew in violence and shifted so we had to abandon the plans for takeoff. By now we were all becoming a bit irritable and peevish. This was the second night we had stood by at action stations only to be forced to scrub the takeoff. The tension and lack of sleep were beginning to take their toll of our nerves.

We wouldn't have been so disappointed then if we had been able to be sure that just 24 hours later we would be successfully airborne and off on our adventure. By eight o'clock that evening, we realized with growing excitement that the wind was dropping and if it continued we would have a chance to get off.

Bushy ordered that the balloon be inflated but at nine o'clock the work stopped because the wind had not dropped. We had reached the point where it was dangerous to inflate any more. My husband Colin and I went back to our tent to catch a nap while Bushy and his son Tim elected to sleep in the care of "The Small World."

Autos' Headlights Showed the Way

At 11 o'clock we were awakened by the whine of the gas cylinders inflating the balloon again. We realized that Wing Commander Ralph Booth, the head of our launching crew and the former captain of the dirigible R-100, had decided we might be able to make it after all.

Even then, as we approached the balloon, they were fixing the load ring, from which our car was suspended, to the neck of the canopy.

Wearing our blue two-piece flying suits, we four climbed aboard the car. The autos, which were formed in a semicircle about us, had turned on their headlamps to give us light to work by for it was a pitch-black night.

Speed would be needed in untying the sandbags from the balloon net as the wind hadn't dropped as much as we had hoped. Unfortunately, our launching crew was a multilingual one made up of our friends from England and the Spanish volunteers from the island.

Bushy was running around the car giving instructions about the launching bags and shouting out in exasperation every once in a while: "Tell them in Spanish somebody, tell them in Spanish!"

Colin and I were methodically lining up the materials that we might have to throw overboard on a strict priority basis while Tim was making the electrical connections and checking the radios.

Across the Beach, Up, and a Bounce!

The balloon had reached full inflation and Commander Booth shouted: "All right, let them go, let them go." He could scarcely be heard above the excited jabber of Spanish voices. Suddenly the car began to drag across the sand under the prodding of the turbulent gusts of wind.

It bumped, reared and teeter-tottered across the sand as we fought down the panic that was building up within us. I had a horrified feeling that the bottom of the boat was being ground off by the lava-like stones on the black and gold beach.

Though it was difficult for us to maintain our footing, Colin and I were tossing over some of the calcium hydride — with which we had planned to make hydrogen if necessary — and still "The Small World" grated across the sand.

People were running alongside the car and Bushy, ever gallant even under stress, leaned out to kiss his secretary and another girl goodby. Some of the Spaniards were holding on to the rope too long. Now the launchers were stringing out behind us on the sand as we were pulled inexorably toward the sea. Booth was shouting, "More ballast off, Colin, more ballast!"

Suddenly we lurched into the air only to crash down onto the sea and then bounce on the waves several times. I had the horrible feeling that we would never get up.

Car Horns Tooted, People Applauded

It was Bushy who revived our spirits by saying: "Thank God, that's over with. At least we're not going to be torn to pieces on the sand. Now we've got a chance."

It was 1:07 a.m. December 12th, Canary Island time.

Then we began to rise. We were still oscillating and slapping the ocean but each time there was a longer pause between bounces. My final memory was of seeing Peter Elstob, our business representative, silhouetted against the fading car lights. And then I realized that all the car horns were being tooted and that the people on the ground were clapping their hands.

I was suddenly conscious of the intense darkness and wondered if the people could see us.

"Give them a blast on your bugle, Colin," I said, "so that they will know we're all right. They probably think we've gone down in the sea."

Colin did and then Tim had a go at it and all at once we found ourselves laughing.

We had done it! We were headed toward America.

Our wild dream was turning into an incredible adventure. But our jubilation was to be short-lived.

FBI Opens 'Camp' in Americana

FBI agents set up an office in Bal Harbour's plush Americana Hotel Monday to track down clues to Sunday night's $400,000 gem robbery.

But late Monday, despite the questioning of dozens of hotel employes, it appeared that the 20 federal agents would be camped in their swank "grill room" for some time to come.

Meanwhile, the New York victims—Mr. and Mrs. Leon Greenebaum and Mrs. Arthur Cole — apparently somewhat less concerned about the theft, departed for a luxury apartment in Palm Beach.

After a day of fingerprint dusting and record checking, FBI men could only say, "There is nothing, and nothing we can give out."

Bal Harbour police were in the same boat: "The job was done by either a gem expert or a lucky amateur," said one officer. That narrowed the field down to just about everybody.

In New York, Columnist Walter Winchell said he got a tip on the huge haul even before it was reported to police. Winchell passed his information along to The Herald.

Two Fliers Walk Out Of Glades

The Coast Guard called off a search of the swamp lands by the Civil Air Patrol and a Coast Guard helicopter when the wife of one of the men reported the fliers had arrived home safely.

They were identified as Fred Butler, the pilot, and David Stephens, both of Miami. Apparently they ripped the plane's compass out of the wreckage and used it to find their way to a highway, where they flagged down a passing truck.

Mrs. Stephens reported that both men were in good condition despite the Sunday plane crash and a night in the Everglades.

Stephens lives at 570 NW 91st St. Butler's address was listed as NW Third Ave. and 95th St.

A CAP search located the wreckage of the airplane about 55 miles northwest of Hollywood near the Big Cypress Seminole Indian Reservation.

The Coast Guard said the two men apparently walked home through rough country, cattle grazing land, marshes and wooded hammocks.

Wings Getting Iced, Airplane Radioes

An air and sea search was under way Monday for a private twin-engine plane that radioed ice was forming on its wings over the Atlantic Ocean, 200 miles east of Savannah, Ga.

Coast Guard and Air Force planes from Miami joined in hunting for the twin-engine Bonanza piloted by a Mr. Buckley of 208 Concord St., Harvardstown, Pa. It was not known if other persons were aboard.

The Coast Guard said the plane was en route from Fort Lauderdale to Philadelphia when Buckley reported ice on his wings. His distress call was picked up by a National Airlines pilot.

New Charges Hit Harris Following Police Break-In

Elmer M. (Bucky) Harris, much-troubled ex-president of the Ludman Corp., faced 11 more state and federal charges Monday after police broke down his apartment door to end a two-hour siege.

The state filed four criminal charges and the U.S. filed seven counts of "transporting fraudulent checks."

The state charges allege "unlawful converting" of sales tax money, by the corporation and Harris individually, writing a fraudulent check to the state comptroller, and two grand larceny charges — details unspecified — from Palm Beach County. Bonds on these total $4,000.

The new federal charges allege transportation of seven checks between Miami and Chicago. The arrest on this followed the state arrest, and added another $5,000 to the bond totals.

An attorney for the troubled financier, in arguing for a lower federal bond Monday, said all of the troubles stem from the tangled financial affairs of the Ludlum Corp.

Detective H. O. Smith of the Metropolitan police, who headed the process servers, reported the door-smashing became necessary when Harris and two friends refused to open the Harris door at the Bay Harbor Island apartment, 1075 101st St.

In his written report, the detective said he and a group of Miami Shores police pounded on the door Friday night at intervals from 10:40 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Then, Smith said, the manager of the apartment, Harry Siegel, came home. When the lawmen asked him for a pass key they reported the manager replied:

"Break it down. I'd rather pay for a new door than have trouble with him. He's suing the Americana Hotel now for $1,000,000."

The reference is to a suit started by Harris after he was acquitted of an earlier charge of "bouncing" a check at that hotel.

Smith finally kicked in the door, made the arrest, and Harris called in a bondsman with a total of $4,000.

Two of the new charges concern the alleged withholding of sales taxes from the state. One, against the corporation and Harris, charges that $7,571.45 was withheld and that the officers "unlawfully converted it to their own use."

The other one in which the office of Comptroller Ray Green also makes the accusation, charges a $2,712 check was written by Harris for sales tax payments when "he well knew such check did not have sufficient funds" behind it.

The remaining charges were made on a warrant from Palm Beach County. Deputies said it was sent back immediately after it had been served and that no details of these charges are available here.

Smith's report concluded with a statement that, in keeping with an earlier request from an FBI agent, he called that agency immediately after making the arrest. That call obviously touched off the new federal charges.

Told You So

I'm taking a low bow, for predicting that the University of Miami symphony concerts of Sunday and Monday nights would be beyond anything we've every heard here. If you didn't read Doris Reno's review of the Sunday night concert, go get it.

Never before have symphony audiences applauded as they did for Conductor Fabien Sevitzky and Piano Soloist Ernst von Dohnanyi.

Bertha Foster tells us the board of her Musicians Club has made von Dohnanyi an honorary member of the board. It's an honor extended to but only one other, Jean Sibelius, Finnish composer who died about a year ago.

National Summary

In the wake of a disturbance over the Rockies, clearing skies provided sunshine over southern California and parts of Arizona while another surge of moisture overspread the Pacific northwest.

Snow extended from Washington State into the mountains of northern California with rains along the coast, occasionally reaching heavy intensity along the northern California shoreline.

In addition to the severe ice storm, heavy snows are forecast for parts of the upper plains and Mississippi Valley and locally heavy accumulations are likely in the Colorado mountains.

Warnings include prospects for four inches or more in parts of Nebraska, Iowa and Wisconsin, and heavy snowfall may develop in South Dakota and southern Minnesota.

Mild temperatures with widespread cloudiness and rain will cover broad areas of the east.

Showers or thunderstorms are anticipated from the southern plains eastward into the Mississippi, Ohio and Tennessee Valleys as well as the Gulf states.

Scattered snows remain in the outlook for most of the west and may be locally heavy in the California mountains as rain moves southward through the state.

State Housing Ills Pinpointed

JACKSONVILLE—(AP)—Florida has three housing problems, J. E. Baril, chairman of the Florida Development Commission's interagency housing committee, said Monday.

The problems are city slums, migrant housing and housing for the elderly, he said in a talk at the annual conference of county health officers with the State Board of Health.

One out of five urban houses in Florida is substandard, Baril said, and this condition is even worse in the older cities. The problem, he said, is six times greater for Negroes than for whites.

He reported that in 1950 in Florida cities one of four houses or dwelling units had no heat, one of 10 no kitchen sink, three of 10 no toilet and-or bath.

Baril said public apathy is to blame. He listed education as the best means of solving the problem but said it would take 50 years at the present rate of progress to eliminate the slums.

Not a penny of federal slum clearance money has been spent in Florida, he said. Although taxpayers of the state have paid in about 30 million dollars.

"This has been our own fault," he said. "According to our State Supreme Court, the Florida constitution forbids use of public powers and funds to acquire privately owned property, even though it is a slum, if the intent is to make the area available to private parties for private redevelopment, even though such redevelopment conforms to a public community plan."

Only an amendment to the state constitution will correct this situation, Baril said.

"Nor have we done much in a practical way to require slum property owners to bring their holdings up to reasonable standards," he said.

Baril said the state has 450,000 residents age 65 and over and their special housing needs are not met by the standard speculation building of today—intended for the average family.

Three-fourths of the elderly residents are living on social security or some other low income, he said, and this creates an economic problem.

Baril said the solution to the migrant housing problem will require federal aid. He estimated 30,000 migrant farmworkers are in Florida during the winter harvest.

The health officers will continue their conference through Wednesday. Two new buildings in the State Board of Health's headquarters group will be dedicated as a feature of today's program.

Brother Charged in Beheading

By DAN BROWN
Cocoa Bureau Chief

The sister, Mrs. Minnie C. Cornell of 408 Willard St., was decapitated with a butcher knife in the pre-dawn Sunday attack.

Sheriff Jimmy Dunn said the 50-year-old Williams confessed to the crime late Sunday.

The killing came at the end of a lengthy argument about a man who was a friend of Mrs. Cornell. Williams, who had a long record of drunkeness arrests, was drunk, said Deputy Tillman McHenry, who arrested him.

The blood-drenched Williams made no attempt to escape after the killing. He told several conflicting stories when arrested.

Although the sheriff's department accused Williams of first degree murder, the charge is subject to review by the spring Grand Jury, which will convene in March.

Mrs. Cornell, who had lived with Williams for 25 years, had been separated from her husband for two years. The husband had not been located Monday.

Services for the victim will be at 4 p.m. today at the Wylie Funeral Home, with burial in the Old Cocoa Cemetery.

In addition to her husband and Shelly Williams, Mrs. Cornell is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Myrtle Pylmel of Cocoa; two other brothers, including Euell Williams of Apopka; five sisters, including Mrs. Janie Pettman and Mrs. Lillie Owens of Fort Pierce, Mrs. Earon Hardzog of Chipley, and Mrs. Lizzie Rathel of Tampa; and eight grandchildren.

UF Enrolls 2nd Negro As Student

GAINESVILLE — (UPI) — Mrs. Daphne Duval, 53-year-old teacher, became the second Negro to enroll in the University of Florida graduate school Monday.

Mrs. Duval, who teaches at the Negro high school here, will take a single graduate course, "professional service," which meets one evening a week.

The university announced last week she had qualified for entrance in the college of education graduate school. She registered for the course by mail and meets her first class tonight.

George Starke Jr., law student from Sanford-Orlando, was the first Negro to enroll after a U.S. court order in June to desegregate the graduate schools.

Starke satisfactorily completed his first semester work and is now beginning his second semester. Not a single incident was reported after his enrollment, and college officials said they did not expect any now.

Charles Prall Dies at 83

Charles Pratt, 83, who for of avocado and lime groves in Homestead, died Monday.

PRATT

He had been a Miami resident since 1929 when he started operation of the Homestead groves. He also had about 300 acres of undeveloped woodland in the same area.

For several years he was president of the Avocado and Lime Growers Association. He retired from the groves in 1949.

Surviving are his wife, Agnes; two sons, Dr. Kenneth and John C., both of Toronto; a daughter, Mrs. A. P. Power, Calgary, Alberta, Canada; a brother and a sister.

Services will be Wednesday.

Yo, Ho, Ho--Shiver Our Timbers--and All That
. . . one of Gaspar's pirates and his lassies plot invasion

Jose Gaspar's Buccaneers Merrily 'Plunder' Tampa

TAMPA —(AP)— Jose Gaspar's cutlass-swinging pirates "sacked" the City of Tampa Monday and opened a treasure chest of fun, frolic and festivity.

Pirate hordes swept ashore from their black-hulled, cannonading attack ship after a brief skirmish with an outgunned defense fleet in Tampa Bay.

The gaily-garbed buccaneers found the city wonderous-eyed, weak and willing. Capitulation came swiftly, and the annual week-long extravaganza known as the Gasparilla Pirate Festival was underway.

After the successful landing, Gaspar and his 350-man man force marched triumphantly through downtown streets in a dazzling Gasparilla victory parade. The pirates are Tampa businessmen, except during this day each year.

For two and one-half hours, brilliant spectacle moved past the thousands who lined the route, filled office windows, craned from ladders, hung from poles.

Even the weatherman surrendered to Gaspar. Bright sun shone through partly cloudy skies and by mid-afternoon the temperature was in the low 80s.

A live pink elephant was a favorite. The pastel pachyderm, colored with a pink-tainted whitewash, bore the skull and crossbones on his flanks.

Thirty high stepping bands added to the carnival spirit.

Among dignataries in the parade were Gov. LeRoy Collins, U.S. Rep. William C. Cramer, Mayors Nick Nuccio of Tampa and John Burroughs of St. Petersburg and the King and queen of Gasparilla along with their royal court.

The parade ended at the state fairgrounds, where Nuccio officially surrendered the city to the plundering pirates.

The buccaneers will rule supreme for the rest of the week — which will be filled with parties, balls, more parades, fireworks and general merriment.

Gaspar and his salty freebooters set the fuse this morning when they rode their flag-draped assault ship—the Jose Gasparilla—into the heart of the city at the head of a flotilla of some 300 small craft.

The Ybor City navy, two U.S. Navy vessels and a Coast Guard ship challenged the pirates in Tampa Bay, but the cagey Gaspar quickly routed them and his ship moved up the Hillsborough River to the center of town.

The pirates were so confident during the mock battle that a circus performer walked a tight rope between two of the masts on the Jose Gasparilla while cannons boomed about him.

Thousands of balloons filled the air to signal Gaspar's arrival.

The theme of Gasparilla is built around the legends of Joes Gaspar, an 18th century Spanish buccaneer who reportedly invaded Tampa 150 years ago. This is the 55th year the city has commemorated the event, with businessmen donning the costumes of Ye Mystic Krewe.

Senate Approves Use Of Citrus Red No. 2

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The Senate Monday passed and sent to the House a bill to permit, for the next two years, use of a coal tar coloring for oranges.

The Labor and Public Welfare Committee said this would permit continuance of the longtime practice of coloring Florida and Texas oranges.

"Such coloring is necessary because fully mature fruit from those areas, in many instances, may be greenish and non-uniform in color," the committee's report said.

The bill would allow use, until Sept. 1, 1961, of a coal tar color, known as cirtus red No. 2. The report said this was a safer substance than a color, F.D.&C. red No. 32, which has been removed from the list of colors for use in foods.

The measure was sponsored by Sen. Spessard L. Holland (D., Fla.), who said it had the support of the Pure Food and Drug Administration.

The committee said that, in 1955, the administration developed evidence F.D.&C. red No. 32 was capable of causing harm to laboratory animals. But Congress permitted temporary use of F.D. & C. red No. 32 after being advised it would not cause any damage to public health.

The new color, citrus red No. 2, has a toxicity level considerably lower than that of the older coloring, the committee's report said.

Citrus red No. 2 can harm animals, the report said, "but in the quantities necessary to color the skin of oranges it is without hazard to man."

The bill extends the period for use of F.D.&C. red No. 32 to May 11, 1959, because it will take about 60 days to manufacture and distribute the new coloring, the committee said.

Provisions of the measure will expire Sept. 1, 1961. The committee said Congress could use this two-year period to develop general legislation on the subject.

Golden Gets 10 Years In Shootings

PENSACOLA —(UPI)— Ed Golden Jr., 23, of Milton, was sentenced Monday to two concurrent 10-year prison terms for assault with intent to commit second degree murder, and for shooting into the home of his girl friend in June.

Golden will begin the 10-years in state prison in May, when he completes a six-month sentence in Escambia County prison camp for assault and battery against Mrs. Pearce Jernigan, mother of the girl.

The sentences Monday by Court of Record Judge Ernest E. Mason were for wounding the girl's father and for shooting into the Jernigan home.

Golden was acquitted of murder in the fatal shooting of Deputy Sheriff Len Burton Adams and acquitted of assault with intent to commit first degree murder in the wounding of Deputy Leslie Brock.

In two sidelights to the shooting trials, F. M. Billings of Pensacola was sentenced to 30 days in jail for contacting a member of the jury panel and attempting to influence a favorable verdict.

And Ed Golden Sr., father of the youth, has been charged with contempt, the same charge Billings was convicted of, for allegedly conspiring in contacting a juror.

Johns Seeking More Time for NAACP Probe

Blames Numerous Court Suits

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Sen. Charley Johns said Monday he will ask the Legislature to extend the life of his investigating committee so it can complete a probe into possible Communist infiltration of the NAACP.

Johns, of Starke, said it does not appear the committee will have a chance to finish the investigation before the Legislature convenes April 7 because of numerous court suits testing its powers.

Unless extended another two years, the Johns committee dies June 30.

"I think the NAACP is trying to tire us out in court," Johns declared, "but they are not going to do it."

Committee hearings in Miami were halted when several witnesses refused to testify or produce NAACP records. The Supreme Court has twice ruled on suits challenging the committee's powers, and the NAACP now has taken the fight to federal district court in Miami.

The Supreme Court upheld legality of the committee and its authority to bring contempt proceedings against witnesses who refuse to testify.

In another ruling, the court said the NAACP cannot be required to turn over its rank and file membership rolls, but the committee has a right to know if suspected Communists are members of the race organization and NAACP officials can be required to give this information under oath.

The court said the Legislature has the right to explore the membership of any organization suspected of being the victim of surreptitious infiltration by subversives and witnesses must answer any question pertinent to this inquiry.

Johns said the committee was all set to resume public hearings in Miami when suit was filed before Federal Judge Emmett Choate.

Johns said he has nothing to report on the committee's investigation into alleged homosexuality at the University of Florida. He said the committee has not yet filed a report with University President J. Wayne Reitz.

The senator said the committee will meet in the near future to discuss recommendations it will make to the 1959 Legislature, but no date or location has been set.

A WINGED WHALE, (water-winged, that is), is the latest addition to the Miami Seaquarium. The 8-foot, 200-pound pilot whale was saved from sharks at Jupiter Inlet Saturday. Although apparently ill, doses of penicillin and vitamins seemed to help. The water wings were to keep it afloat where it could breath until well enough to swim. The sea mammal was named Kirky, after Palm Beach County Sheriff John Kirk, who first spotted her floudering in the shallows.

Head-on Collision Kills 4

3 Students Die In 'TV' Accident

By Herald Wire Services

A charge from a 7,200-volt power line killing three university students and a head-on collision of two cars taking the lives of four persons were among the accidents over the weekend accounted for 16 deaths in the state.

The dead in the accident at the University of Florida were Robert L. Melrose, 25, of Orlando; his wife, Jamie Ruth, 21; and John B. Robertson, 25, of Gainesville. Robertson's wife, Gloria, was shocked and burned. Her condition was reported critical at a hospital.

The Alachua County sheriff's office reported the accident occurred when the television aerial they were holding toppled over, striking the power line.

The collision killing four was near Kenansville on U.S. 441, about 55 miles south of Orlando. Six persons also were injured in the accident caused, state troopers said, when one of the cars veered six feet over the highway centerline.

The dead were listed as Leroy Ward, 43, of Vero Beach, driver of one of the cars; his wife Theresa; his sister, Mrs. Curtis Kirkland, of West Hollywood; and James R. Joyner, 20, driver of the other car. The police said it was Joyner's machine that crossed the centerline.

Victims of other accidents Sunday were:

Charles C. Baldwin, 24, of Belle Glade, killed in South Miami by a hit and run driver; Earnest A. Meyer, 67, of Scarsdale, N. Y., drowned while bathing in the surf at Palm Beach; Harold E. Brackett, 41, a trailer park operator at Jupiter, drowned in Jupiter Inlet Sunday when his outboard motorboat capsized.

A man and woman suffocated in a motor court near Bonifay Saturday night. Sheriff Cletus Andrews indentified them as Robert Max Bradley and Joyce Roberts, both of Samson, Ala. He said a heater apparently exhausted oxygen in their quarters.

Others killed were: Ralph Correa Jr., 34, of Tampa, Saturday; Norman Jackson Hudnall, 25, of West Palm Beach, Saturday; and Paul Bird, 57, of Butler, Ga., Friday night.

Griscom Services Arranged

TALLAHASSEE —(UPI)— Funeral arrangements were being made for Col. Lloyd C. Griscom, Tallahassee newspaper publisher and former diplomat, who died Sunday after a stroke.

Griscom, 86, was stricken while visiting a sister, Miss Frances Griscom, in a hospital at nearby Thomasville, Ga.

He has owned Tallahassee's only daily newspaper, the Democrat, for 30 years, and served as ambassador to Italy and Brazil, and minister to Japan and Persia.

In World War I, he was liaison officer between American and British forces and was decorated by Gen. George Pershing and King George V of Britain.

He is survived by his wife, Audrey, two sons, Lloyd and Bronson, both of Syosset, N.Y., and his sister.

Daytona's Loss

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— The state beverage director's office reported Monday it cut $15,000 from Daytona Beach's December cigarette tax distribution to balance off an over-remittance made earlier.

The city received only $10,189 for December instead of more than $25,000 to which it would be entitled.

Grass Fire Kills

OCALA — (AP) — Harry C. Ficken, 65, part-time court bailiff, died Sunday of burns received when he was trapped in a grass fire Saturday.

A group of neighbors helping Ficken burn off a lot he owned, saw him become a flaming torch but were powerless to help. Witnesses said a gust of wind whipped flames around him and when he tried to walk through the blaze his clothing caught fire.

Strike Ends

TAMPA —(AP)— Bread moved off production lines at three Tampa area bakeries Monday after settlement of a week-long strike.

Production resumed at Holsum and Ward bakeries in Tampa and Bell Baking Co. in St. Petersburg after agreement was reached with local 204, United Brewery Workers Union.

Nearly 200 driver-salesmen and transport drivers struck last Monday when contract negotiations broke down. The walkout idled 300 other workers.

Canada Tod Politely:

'No Chain Gangs in Florida'

By JOHN McDERMOTT
Herald Staff Writer

Is Florida still a "chain gang" state?

That is the impression being spread across Canada.

The furor stems from Florida's efforts to secure the return of a 20-year-old fugitive now in custody in Toronto.

The youth is Kenneth William Brymer who was convicted in Citrus County in 1955 for breaking into a filling station and stealing $160 and some guns.

He drew a stiff 20-year sentence.

The mass-circulation Toronto Star indicates Florida's prison routines are medieval.

R. O. Culver, director of Florida's division of corrections, takes a sharp difference with the newspaper's insinuations.

"Years ago that might have been ture," he said. "But not today. We have no chain gangs and the methods used in our prisons for handling inmates is in keeping with the best-run prisons in the country."

Brymer reportedly was arrested in Ontario within two months after breaking out of a Florida road gang in 1957.

He came from a broken home — his mother and father are divorced and his father was arraigned in an Ontario court two weeks ago on a false pretenses charge.

Brymer, himself, had his first run-in with the law when he was only 11. He was convicted on a minor count then.

But his cause has been taken up by a group of Toronto University students and the Toronto Daily Star.

Fourteen students picketed the U.S. Consulate there carrying banners labeling Florida a "chain gang state" and also attacking John Foster Dulles, the U.S. Secretary of State.

As for the 20-year sentence — which the Toronto students felt was medieval — Culver pointed out that, under Florida law, any convincted criminal on such a charge is eligiblie for parole after serving only six months.

"If Brymer had stayed, he would be more than eligible now," he said. "But he was a bad one from the time we got him."

Midwest Slips, Slides on a Giant Ice Sheet

Pea Soup Fog Adds To Peril

New England At Coldest

CHICAGO —(UPI)— The Midwest slipped and slithered on a mammoth sheet of ice Monday.

When Midwesterners weren't cracking their shins and breaking their bones on the glazed sidewalks, they were groping through dense, zero-visibility fog.

From Kansas to Ohio, freezing rain and drizzle laid down an ice cover which crippled cities, closed schools, and made driving a daredevil feat. Warm Gulf air created the pea-soup fog.

The East was scheduled to hit the skids Monday night. Meanwhile, New England froze in its coldest weather of the season — a 34-below reading at Newport, Vt.

Colorado battled not only ice and fog, but snows up to 16 inches deep which closed one mountain pass and packed all the others with snow. Travel without chains was impossible over the Sierra Mountains from Reno, Nev., to California.

The ice belt stretched from Kansas through parts of Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. Travel was so dangerous that the weather bureau urged: "All except urgent travel should be abandoned . . ."

Illinois had already counted three traffic deaths blamed on the ice and Iowa one.

Chicago, Detroit, Kansas City and St. Louis were among the larger Midwest population centers afflicted by the ice storm.

Tampa Sun Downs 22

Tampa —(AP) —A hot sun which shot temperatures into the mid-80s felled at least 22 persons at Monday's Gasparilla invasion parade.

Ambulances had a busy day moving the heat victims from downtown to Tampa hospitals. Five of those stricken were marchers in high school bands. They were among the more than 600,000 spectators who lined the parade route.

The scores of attractive girls decorating the floats came well-prepared. Most were in bathing suits or scanty costumes.

Another casualty of the festivity was a member of the crew on the pirate invasion ship, Jose Gasparilla. The unnamed buccaneer fell into the Hillsborough River when he attempted to make a gallant jump to shore. He was pulled intact, but soggy, from the water.

We're Still Hot Stuff

$250,000 Lost In 2nd Gem Grab

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

Two "gentlemen" gunmen efficiently ransacked a downtown Miami diamond importer's office of $250,000 in jewels Monday afternoon, then fled in a crowded elevator eight floors to the safety of jammed sidewalks.

The record holdup operation took 15 minutes, and was the second largest gem haul in Greater Miami in 24 hours. A room prowler snatched $400,000 in gems from an eighth-floor Americana Hotel suite Sunday.

According to the victims' story, one of the gunmen, who bought a $1,800 ring from Levinson last Friday for cash, entered the office first.

Moments later at 5:20 p.m., a nattily dressed accomplice, about 30, busted into the three-room suite wielding a .45 caliber automatic.

"All right, get on the floor!" he said. "Lie face down. This is a holdup.

"Now, nobody is going to get hurt. Just don't move."

The other robber, the one posing as a customer, then pulled a gun.

"Is there a buzzer in here?" he asked.

Nobody said anything.

One by one, the gunmen made the victims sit up with their hands over their eyes, and then bound them with adhesive, the victims told police.

The jewels, lying in sample boxes in an open safe, were mostly diamonds — some mounted and some not.

Two buyers for the company returned from New York City only Jan. 31 with a new supply for the winter tourist season.

The holdup men, both wearing suits and ties, brought a

Collins Met Johnson in Race Huddle

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — The governor's office disclosed Monday LeRoy Collins had a face-to-face meeting with Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas a week ago on Collins' plan that Congress set up a federal-state commission to deal with the school racial crisis.

William Durden, executive assistant to the governor, said Collins flew to Washington in response to a phone call from Johnson.

Durden confirmed that the Collins' plan was the subject of their discussions, but said any details of the Collins-Johnson meeting must come from Collins or the Texas senator.

Both Collins and Johnson, the Senate majority leader, are regarded as moderates on the racial question. Johnson was a non-signer of the Southern Manifesto of 1956 which all Florida congressmen and senators except Rep. Dante Fascell of Miami signed.

Recently, Collins told his news conference he had written Johnson about his plan and asked an opportunity to discuss it with him. Johnson telephoned Collins about two weeks ago and the Washington conference on Jan. 31 resulted.

Collins has proposed that Congress provide for a commission from each state, appointed by the president with approval of the governor of the state.

2½-Billion Aid Offered Schools

WASHINGTON — UPI) — The Eisenhower administration Monday proposed a new program of aid to communities and colleges which cannot afford needed new construction.

The long-range aid program would cost the federal government an estimated 2½ billion dollars over a 25-year period. Details of draft bills were outlined to newsmen by Secretary Arthur S. Flemming of the Health, Welfare and Education Department.

He said the plan was "consistent with the fiscal policies of this administration." He said it could be handled within the framework of President Eisenhower's narrowly balanced 77-billion-dollar 1960 budget and will require no cash payments in fiscal 1960.

Under the proposed program for elementary and high school construction, the federal government would agree to pay principal and interest on new school construction bonds on a 50-50 matching basis with the states.

Flemming said the maximum annual federal payment on elementary and high school bonds would be 85 million dollars and the aggregate potential cost would be about two billion dollars over approximately 25 years.

The program, Flemming said, would be available only to communities which lack the resources to finance their own classroom needs.

The plan would be in effect for new construction started in the next five years. Flemming said it would cover up to three billion dollars worth of construction of elementary and high school buildings.

Under the program for college classrooms and housing, the federal government would put up an annual payment of 25 million dollars to retire debts.

The federal government would annually advance half of the funds required by needy local school districts to pay the principal and interest charges on bonds issued by the districts to finance school construction projects, if the states in which such districts are located undertake to put up the remaining half of the payments.

Sparks Fly At Housing Project

EAU GALLIE — Construction of a 24-unit public housing project between Sunset Hills and Sunwood Park has aroused the ire of residents of those two north Eau Gallie subdivisions.

The public housing project, which will be open to both colored and white families, is being constructed by the Brevard County Housing Authority, an arm of the federal government.

Claiming that the low-cost development devaluates their homes, residents of two neighboring subdivisions have sent petitions to Eau Gallie officials in an attempt to have them step into the picture on their side. A city building permit has been issued, however.

Howard W. Yawn of Eau Gallie also plans on protesting the low-cost project location "as an agent of John Frances, builder and developer of Sunset Hills."

Yawn said residents of the two developments sent one petition to city hall, asking that the city halt construction on the low-cost homes. A second petition, he said, asks the city not to change zoning to permit the project.

"On Fe. 24, 1958, the city adopted a new zoning code," Yawn said, "changing the project site from multiple construction to single family. And title company records show that the housing authority did not accept title for the land until May, 1958."

This same zoning issue was brought up by an individual resident two weeks ago, and the city council asked City Attorney Charles A. Williams to investigate. Councilman William M. Woodson said then that a legal technicality was involved because the housing authority first asked for permission to build on the site back in 1951.

City Manager Clark Maxwell also explained that zoning of the low-cost home site was accidently changed.

Cloud Ceiling Raised

U.S. Restricts Electra Landings

NEW YORK —(AP)— The federal government Monday limited bad weather landings by the new Electra jet-prop airliners. The safety restrictions —expected to be only temporary — followed last week's East River crash that cost 65 lives.

Nationally, for the time being, the cloud ceilings for such flights were raised 600 feet and visibility requirements doubled. This is intended to give pilots more leeway in landings when they come off instruments and into open weather.

"We're happy to cooperate," said a spokesman for American Airlines, whose Electra Flight 320 crashed into the river Tuesday night when it undershot LaGuardia Field. There were only eight survivors of the disaster.

American is hopeful that the restrictions — which also apply to Electra jet-props flown by Eastern Airlines— will be short-lived. Eastern, in directing compliance with the restrictions, spoke of "a temporary restriction of not more than three days."

The new safety limits were set by the Federal Aviation Agency, the new over-all government-regulatory agency for commercial air operations. The FAA said:

"The restrictions are temporary, voluntary on the part of the airlines, and the airlines have accepted the restrictions so that the order is in force now."

The FAA is directing the intensive investigation now under way into the Feb. 3 East River crash. Thus far, there has been no indication as to why the plane plunged into the river in bad weather just short of LaGuardia.

If it eventually is determined that weather was not a factor in the disaster, the new restrictions presumably will be softened or removed. The FAA said they will remain in effect while the probe is going on.

Flight 320, inbound from Chicago, began its landing on instruments, with a ceiling of between 300 and 400 feet and visibility of about two miles. The federally regulated limits

Herter Is Left In Charge

Secretary Needs Hernia Operation

By FELIX BELAIR JR.
The New York Times Service

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles took an indefinite leave of absence Monday to have an operation for a hernia condition and to complete his recovery from an intestinal disorder.

In a letter to President Eisenhower, which was made public immediately by the White House, the secretary asked permission to turn over his duties to Undersecretary C. Douglas Dillon "for a short time."

The secretary told the President in his letter that he "would expect, after a few weeks, to resume fully the duties of the office." James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, added to this that "there is no sign whatsoever of anything malignant" in connection with the secretary's decision to undergo surgery at this time.

Dulles underwent a successful operation for a cancerous colon lesion in December 1956. Last December he was again hospitalized with diverticulitis, an inflammation of the colon, but his doctors reported that there had been no recurrence of the malignancy at that time.

Secretary Dulles' letter to the President read:

"I should like your permission to turn over to Undersecretary Herter, or in his absence, to Undersecretary Dillon, the duties of secretary of state for a short period.

"My doctors advise that I should have an operation for a recently developed hernia; and I have not wholly thrown off the effects of the inflammation of the colon which occurred last December.

"I should accordingly like to devote a few weeks to physical recuperation, and also have some time when, free from other responsibilities, I could concentrate on the complicated and grave problems raised by the Soviet threats regarding Berlin and the Allied response thereto.

"I would be available for consultation with you and my associates and would expect, after a few weeks, to resume fully the duties of the office.

"I regret the circumstances which lead me to ask for this

Car Lights Faded and We Rose Into Darkness

By ROSEMARY MUDIE

Up, Up and Away!

Rosemary Mudie, the lone woman member of the daring expedition in the balloon "The Small World," the year's most thrilling true adventure story, today brings her first-person narrative to the take-off. This is the first publication of the full account of the perilous venture.

The take-off of our balloon from Tenerife Island in our attempt to span the Atlantic was a nightmare come to life.

We had picked the Canary Islands, which lie about 60 miles off the African coast, as the best launching place on the advice of meteorologists. It was a sheer coincidence that from this same island Columbus set out in 1492 on his first voyage to the New World, but we thought it augured well for our own expedition.

El Globo, as the natives called "The Small World," was the No. 1 topic of conversation among the islanders. From the moment of our first appearance there we had a swarm of well-wishers and helpers around our launching site on Playa de la Tejita beach, near the tiny fishing town of El Medano.

A huge ground sheet had been spread out so that the balloon would not be punctured by sharp bits of debris and then the deflated 46-foot canopy itself was spread on top of it. The net was in place over it and firmly anchored with sand bags. Nearby in an orderly pile were the 690 cylinders of hydrogen gas for the four hour inflation job. Now we were waiting on the weather.

The sea trip down from Southampton was on a ship that obviously was more accustomed to carrying bananas than balloons. We were grateful for the free ride they gave us for though we were dealing with a lighter-than-air vehicle, our equipment weighed 45 tons!

The Hairdresser Does His Share

After all the launching preparations were completed, I decided that there was still one thing for me to do personally — I had my hair done.

It turned out to be quite an experience for the shop became crowded with people who wanted to see the woman who was going on "El Globo." I was told later that some of them were comparing me with Manolete, the Spanish bullfighter, as the arch-symbol of bravery, which was the purest nonsense.

When the hairdresser was finished, he refused to accept any money, indicating that this was his contribution to our flight. Little did I reckon that it would be five weeks before I could have my hair done again and that three of those weeks would be spent at sea in an open boat. I left his shop knowing how a celebrity feels, and I must say that I enjoyed it.

"All right, boys and girls, we're going this time!" Bushy Eiloart said. It was just after one a.m. Thursday morning, Dec. 11, when our now-qualified balloon pilot made this decision.

A

We welcomed the decision after the more than a week of parties mixed with the long wait for the right weather. A beacon was lit on a nearby hill to call the volunteer motorists

Midwest Slips, Slides on a Giant Ice Sheet

Pea Soup Fog Adds To Peril

New England At Coldest

CHICAGO —(UPI)— The Midwest slipped and slithered on a mammoth sheet of ice Monday.

When Midwesterners weren't cracking their shins and breaking their bones on the glazed sidewalks, they were groping through dense, zero-visibility fog.

From Kansas to Ohio, freezing rain and drizzle laid down an ice cover which crippled cities, closed schools, and made driving a daredevil feat. Warm Gulf air created the pea-soup fog.

The East was scheduled to hit the skids Monday night. Meanwhile, New England froze in its coldest weather of the season — a 34-below reading at Newport, Vt.

Colorado battled not only ice and fog, but snows up to 16 inches deep which closed one mountain pass and packed all the others with snow. Travel without chains was impossible over the Sierra Mountains from Reno, Nev., to California.

The ice belt stretched from Kansas through parts of Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. Travel was so dangerous that the weather bureau urged: "All except urgent travel should be abandoned . . ."

Illinois had already counted three traffic deaths blamed on the ice and Iowa one.

Chicago, Detroit, Kansas City and St. Louis were among the larger Midwest population centers afflicted by the ice storm.

Tampa Sun Downs 22

Ambulances had a busy day moving the heat victims from downtown to Tampa hospitals. Five of those stricken were marchers in high school bands. They were among the more than 600,000 spectators who lined the parade route.

The scores of attractive girls decorating the floats came well-prepared. Most were in bathing suits or scanty costumes.

Another casualty of the festivity was a member of the crew on the pirate invasion ship, Jose Gasparilla. The unnamed buccaneer fell into the Hillsborough River when he attempted to make a gallant jump to shore. He was pulled intact, but soggy, from the water.

$250,000 Lost In 2nd Gem Grab

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

Two "gentlemen" gunmen efficiently ransacked a downtown Miami diamond importer's office of $250,000 in jewels Monday afternoon, then fled in a crowded elevator eight floors to the safety of jammed sidewalks.

The record holdup operation took 15 minutes, and was the second largest gem haul in Greater Miami in 24 hours. A room prowler snatched $400,000 in gems from an eighth-floor Americana Hotel suite Sunday.

According to the victims' story, one of the gunmen, who bought a $1,800 ring from Levinson last Friday for cash, entered the office first.

Moments later at 5:20 p.m., a nattily dressed accomplice, about 30, busted into the three-room suite wielding a .45 caliber automatic.

"All right, get on the floor!" he said. "Lie face down. This is a holdup.

"Now, nobody is going to get hurt. Just don't move."

The other robber, the one posing as a customer, then pulled a gun.

"Is there a buzzer in here?" he asked.

Nobody said anything.

One by one, the gunmen made the victims sit up with their hands over their eyes, and then bound them with adhesive, the victims told police.

The jewels, lying in sample boxes in an open safe, were mostly diamonds — some mounted and some not.

Two buyers for the company returned from New York City only Jan. 31 with a new supply for the winter tourist season.

The holdup men, both wearing suits and ties, brought a

Collins Met Johnson in Race Huddle

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— The governor's office disclosed Monday LeRoy Collins had a face-to-face meeting with Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas a week ago on Collins' plan that Congress set up a federal-state commission to deal with the school racial crisis.

William Durden, executive assistant to the governor, said Collins flew to Washington in response to a phone call from Johnson.

Durden confirmed that the Collins' plan was the subject of their discussions, but said any details of the Collins-Johnson meeting must come from Collins or the Texas senator.

Both Collins and Johnson, the Senate majority leader, are regarded as moderates on the racial question. Johnson was a non-signer of the Southern Manifesto of 1956 which all Florida congressmen and senators except Rep. Dante Fascell of Miami signed.

Recently, Collins told his news conference he had written Johnson about his plan and asked an opportunity to discuss it with him. Johnson telephoned Collins about two weeks ago and the Washington conference on Jan. 31 resulted.

Collins has proposed that Congress provide for a commission from each state, appointed by the president with approval of the governor of the state.

2½-Billion Aid Offered Schools

WASHINGTON — UPI) — The Eisenhower administration Monday proposed a new program of aid to communities and colleges which cannot afford needed new construction.

The long-range aid program would cost the federal government an estimated 2½ billion dollars over a 25-year period. Details of draft bills were outlined to newsmen by Secretary Arthur S. Flemming of the Health, Welfare and Education Department.

He said the plan was "consistent with the fiscal policies of this administration." He said it could be handled within the framework of President Eisenhower's narrowly balanced 77-billion-dollar 1960 budget and will require no cash payments in fiscal 1960.

Under the proposed program for elementary and high school construction, the federal government would agree to pay principal and interest on new school construction bonds on a 50-50 matching basis with the states.

Flemming said the maximum annual federal payment on elementary and high school bonds would be 85 million dollars and the aggregate potential cost would be about two billion dollars over approximately 25 years.

The program, Flemming said, would be available only to communities which lack the resources to finance their own classroom needs.

The plan would be in effect for new construction started in the next five years. Flemming said it would cover up to three billion dollars worth of construction of elementary and high school buildings.

Under the program for college classrooms and housing, the federal government would put up an annual payment of 25 million dollars to retire debts.

The federal government would annually advance half of the funds required by needy local school districts to pay the principal and interest charges on bonds issued by the districts to finance school construction projects, if the states in which such districts are located undertake to put up the remaining half of the payments.

Sparks Fly At Housing Project

Melbourne Bureau Chief

EAU GALLIE — Construction of a 24-unit public housing project between Sunset Hills and Sunwood Park has aroused the ire of residents of those two north Eau Gallie subdivisions.

The public housing project, which will be open to both colored and white families, is being constructed by the Brevard County Housing Authority, an arm of the federal government.

Claiming that the low-cost development devaluates their homes, residents of two neighboring subdivisions have sent petitions to Eau Gallie officials in an attempt to have them step into the picture on their side. A city building permit has been issued, however.

Howard W. Yawn of Eau Gallie also plans on protesting the low-cost project location "as an agent of John Frances, builder and developer of Sunset Hills."

Yawn said residents of the two developments sent one petition to city hall, asking that the city halt construction on the low-cost homes. A second petition, he said, asks the city not to change zoning to permit the project.

"On Fe. 24, 1958, the city adopted a new zoning code," Yawn said, "changing the project site from multiple construction to single family. And title company records show that the housing authority did not accept title for the land until May, 1958."

This same zoning issue was brought up by an individual resident two weeks ago, and the city council asked City Attorney Charles A. Williams to investigate. Councilman William M. Woodson said then that a legal technicality was involved because the housing authority first asked for permission to build on the site back in 1951.

City Manager Clark Maxwell also explained that zoning of the low-cost home site was accidently changed.

Cloud Ceiling Raised

U.S. Restricts Electra Landings

NEW YORK —(AP)— The federal government Monday limited bad weather landings by the new Electra jet-prop airliners. The safety restrictions —expected to be only temporary — followed last week's East River crash that cost 65 lives.

Nationally, for the time being, the cloud ceilings for such flights were raised 600 feet and visibility requirements doubled. This is intended to give pilots more leeway in landings when they come off instruments and into open weather.

"We're happy to cooperate," said a spokesman for American Airlines, whose Electra Flight 320 crashed into the river Tuesday night when it undershot LaGuardia Field. There were only eight survivors of the disaster.

American is hopeful that the restrictions — which also apply to Electra jet-props flown by Eastern Airlines— will be short-lived. Eastern, in directing compliance with the restrictions, spoke of "a temporary restriction of not more than three days."

The new safety limits were set by the Federal Aviation Agency, the new over-all government regulatory agency for commercial air operations. The FAA said:

"The restrictions are temporary, voluntary on the part of the airlines, and the airlines have accepted the restrictions so that the order is in force now."

The FAA is directing the intensive investigation now under way into the Feb. 3 East River crash. Thus far, there has been no indication as to why the plane plunged into the river in bad weather just short of LaGuardia.

If it eventually is determined that weather was not a factor in the disaster, the new restrictions presumably will be softened or removed. The FAA said they will remain in effect while the probe is going on.

Flight 320, inbound from Chicago, began its landing on instruments, with a ceiling of between 300 and 400 feet and visibility of about two miles. The federally regulated limits

Herter Is Left In Charge

Secretary Needs Hernia Operation

By FELIX BELAIR JR.
The New York Times Service

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles took an indefinite leave of absence Monday to have an operation for a hernia condition and to complete his recovery from an intestinal disorder.

In a letter to President Eisenhower, which was made public immediately by the White House, the secretary asked permission to turn over his duties to Undersecretary C. Douglas Dillon "for a short time."

The secretary told the President in his letter that he "would expect, after a few weeks, to resume fully the duties of the office." James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, added to this that "there is no sign whatsoever of anything malignant" in connection with the secretary's decision to undergo surgery at this time.

Dulles underwent a successful operation for a cancerous colon lesion in December 1956. Last December he was again hospitalized with diverticulitis, an inflammation of the colon, but his doctors reported that there had been no recurrence of the malignancy at that time.

Secretary Dulles' letter to the President read:

"I should like your permission to turn over to Undersecretary Herter, or in his absence, to Undersecretary Dillon, the duties of secretary of state for a short period.

"My doctors advise that I should have an operation for a recently developed hernia; and I have not wholly thrown off the effects of the inflammation of the colon which occurred last December.

"I should accordingly like to devote a few weeks to physical recuperation, and also have some time when, free from other responsibilities, I could concentrate on the complicated and grave problems raised by the Soviet threats regarding Berlin and the Allied response thereto.

"I would be available for consultation with you and my associates and would expect, after a few weeks, to resume fully the duties of the office.

"I regret the circumstances which lead me to ask for this

Car Lights Faded and We Rose Into Darkness

By ROSEMARY MUDIE

The take-off of our balloon from Tenerife Island in our attempt to span the Atlantic was a nightmare come to life.

We had picked the Canary Islands, which lie about 60 miles off the African coast, as the best launching place on the advice of meteorologists. It was a sheer coincidence that from this same island Columbus set out in 1492 on his first voyage to the New World, but we thought it augured well for our own expedition.

El Globo, as the natives called "The Small World," was the No. 1 topic of conversation among the islanders. From the moment of our first appearance there we had a swarm of well-wishers and helpers around our launching site on Playa de la Tejita beach, near the tiny fishing town of El Medano.

Up, Up and Away!

Rosemary Mudie, the lone woman member of the daring expedition in the balloon "The Small World," the year's most thrilling true adventure story, today brings her first-person narrative to the take-off. This is the first publication of the full account of the perilous venture.

A huge ground sheet had been spread out so that the balloon would not be punctured by sharp bits of debris and then the deflated 46-foot canopy itself was spread on top of it. The net was in place over it and firmly anchored with sand bags. Nearby in an orderly pile were the 690 cylinders of hydrogen gas for the four hour inflation job. Now we were waiting on the weather.

The sea trip down from Southampton was on a ship that obviously was more accustomed to carrying bananas than balloons. We were grateful for the free ride they gave us for though we were dealing with a lighter-than-air vehicle, our equipment weighed 45 tons!

The Hairdresser Does His Share

After all the launching preparations were completed, I decided that there was still one thing for me to do personally — I had my hair done.

It turned out to be quite an experience for the shop became crowded with people who wanted to see the woman who was going on "El Globo." I was told later that some of them were comparing me with Manolete, the Spanish bullfighter, as the arch-symbol of bravery, which was the purest nonsense.

When the hairdresser was finished, he refused to accept any money, indicating that this was his contribution to our flight. Little did I reckon that it would be five weeks before I could have my hair done again and that three of those weeks would be spent at sea in an open boat. I left his shop knowing how a celebrity feels, and I must say that I enjoyed it.

"All right, boys and girls, we're going this time!" Bushy Eiloart said. It was just after one a.m. Thursday morning, Dec. 11, when our now-qualified balloon pilot made this decision.

Florida Official Accepted Printers' Favors

By JOHN BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE—A top employee of the Florida Department of Agriculture said Monday that he has accepted favors from printers, but said they had not influenced his handling of printing bids for the department.

Jack Shoemaker, director of the department's bureau of immigration, which distributes several publications on Florida, said he received some free personal photographic work from Granger Studio and Printing Co. of Tallahassee after the firm got a state job.

And he said he was a guest at several fishing parties aboard the boat of Charles Rosenberg, president of Rose Printing Co., Tallahassee, and other firms.

Shoemaker explained that he asked Granger to submit a bill for personal family photographs made for him but that he never received the bill.

He said the had been invited by the Rose Printing Co. sales manager to go on fishing trips and "considered it personal business since it was on my own time."

Forrest Granger of the printing firm said he couldn't recall any conversation about a bill and considered the matter closed when the estimated 17 dollars worth of photos was delivered. He said his small firm does only a small amount of state business.

Of $319,000 spent by the agriculture department, Rose Co. and affiliates got $100,000 of business. They got $61,000 of the $130,000 worth of printing business supervised by Shoemaker.

Shoemaker handled publication of the agriculture department's 71-page biennial report recently which cost $1.31 a page. Rose got the bid for the color-splashed job.

Shoemaker said he called for the use of color, in spite of added cost, because he felt it would make the report more attractive. He ordered 1,000 copies.

Shoemaker said he heard rumors "that some printers were getting together on prices" before submitting bids on state jobs, but he said he didn't hear them identified.

He said he submits a standard bid form to five printers for sealed bids on jobs for the immigration bureau. In many cases, he said, bidding is limited to Tallahassee printers because of deadline and proofreading problems.

The immigration bureau is mainly charged with supplying information on Florida agriculture and promoting various phases of the industry.

A legislative committee headed by Sen. Tom Adams of Orange Park recently asserted that some bureau publications duplicate promotional projects of the Florida Development Commission.

Some out-of-town printers have complained they aren't getting a fair shake from state agencies in the doling out of printing jobs.

Rep. John E. Mathews Jr. of Jacksonville has called for a legislative probe of printing costs and for legislation to put printing under supervision of the state purchasing commission.

Gov. LeRoy Collins has said he will support Mathews and will make another attempt to put printing under central purchasing. His effort to do so in the 1957 legislative session was unsuccessful.

Honduran Rebels Put To Flight

By PAUL P. KENNEDY
The New York Times Service

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — It appeared virtually certain Monday that government forces had retaken the small barracks city of Santa Barbara, about 150 miles northwest of here, after that city had been held by rebel forces over the weekend.

A presidential house spokesman confirmed that late-afternoon messages were picked up over the radio station, Voz del Junco, announcing the recapture. A voice making the announcement claimed to be that of Maj. Alonso Flores Guerra, of the First Battalion here in the capital. The spokesman said the voice had been verified.

N.Y. Times News Service

The message said 130 rebels were captured and that the bulk of the rebel forces were fleeing westward toward Copan, on the Guatemalan border.

The Voz de Junco radio station in Santa Barbara had announced early Monday morning, "The revolution has begun."

Beginning shortly afterward, the Ministry of War began commandeering private commercial airliners and sending troops from Tegucigalpa to the beleaguered city. During the morning, at least one bomber and two P38 fighter planes of the Honduran Air Force took off in a northwesterly direction.

The later message said the bulk of the rebel troops were fleeing westward toward Copan on the Guatemalan border.

Aside from this there was a complete blackout of information. It appeared certain the government itself had not been able by midday to ascertain the true situation in the northwest.

For several weeks a clandestine radio, presumably located in northern Nicaragua near the Honduran border, has been broadcasting warnings that rebel forces under former Honduran Army Col. Armando Velasquez Cerato would soon invade Honduras and overthrow the administration of President Ramon Villeda Morales.

The slogan of the clandestine radio in those days was, "First the mountains of Honduras, then the valleys and then the capital."

Tegucigalpa itself was calm Monday.

respite, but I have full confidence, as I know you have, in my associates in the Department of State."

Faithfully yours,
John Foster Dulles"

Dulles, who will be 71 on Feb. 25, returned to Washington only Monday morning from talks in London, Paris and Bonn on the position of the Western powers should the Soviet Union make good its threat to terminate the four-power occupation agreement on Berlin.

He called at the executive mansion to report to the President on the talks and to inform him of his decision to undergo an operation. About half an hour after the two men had been closeted in the President's oval study on the second floor, Hagerty was called over from the executive office.

Hagerty acknowledged that it was somewhat unusual for a cabinet officer to submit a letter in asking to be away from his desk for a few weeks, but he added:

"Rather than make a mystery of it, we are putting it on the record."

Restrictions On Electra

at the time were a 400 feet ceiling and one mile visibility.

Under the new restrictions, the ceiling must be at least 1,000 feet and visibility two miles. If the limits are less than that, the plane must circle the airport until the weather improves, or go on to another field that meets the limitations.

Eastern Airlines was the first to put the 68-passenger Lockheed Electra into service early this year. American put them on its Chicago-New York run Jan. 23. Eleven other lines have the plane on order.

Lockheed officials said they would have no immediate comment on the FAA order.

The Winds Grew, Foiled Takeoff

"I've just read the latest meteorological report," he continued, "and it shows light to medium northeasterly winds constant for more than 500 miles west. We better take advantage of it."

But to our bitter disappointment it was not to be so. The wind grew in violence and shifted so we had to abandon the plans for takeoff. By now we were all becoming a bit irritable and peevish. This was the second night we had stood by at action stations only to be forced to scrub the takeoff. The tension and lack of sleep were beginning to take their toll of our nerves.

We wouldn't have been so disappointed then if we had been able to be sure that just 24 hours later we would be successfully airborne and off on our adventure. By eight o'clock that evening, we realized with growing excitement that the wind was dropping and if it continued we would have a chance to get off.

Bushy ordered that the balloon be inflated but at nine o'clock the work stopped because the wind had not dropped. We had reached the point where it was dangerous to inflate any more. My husband Colin and I went back to our tent to catch a nap while Bushy and his son Tim elected to sleep in the care of "The Small World."

Autos' Headlights Showed the Way

At 11 o'clock we were awakened by the whine of the gas cylinders inflating the balloon again. We realized that Wing Commander Ralph Booth, the head of our launching crew and the former captain of the dirigible R-100, had decided we might be able to make it after all.

Even then, as we approached the balloon, they were fixing the load ring, from which our car was suspended, to the neck of the canopy.

Wearing our blue two-piece flying suits, we four climbed aboard the car. The autos, which were formed in a semicircle about us, had turned on their headlamps to give us light to work by for it was a pitch-black night.

Speed would be needed in untying the sandbags from the balloon net as the wind hadn't dropped as much as we had hoped. Unfortunately, our launching crew was a multilingual one made up of our friends from England and the Spanish volunteers from the island.

Bushy was running around the car giving instructions about the launching bags and shouting out in exasperation every once in a while: "Tell them in Spanish somebody, tell them in Spanish!"

Colin and I were methodically lining up the materials that we might have to throw overboard on a strict priority basis while Tim was making the electrical connections and checking the radios.

Across the Beach, Up, and a Bounce!

The balloon had reached full inflation and Commander Booth shouted: "All right, let them go, let them go." He could scarcely be heard above the excited jabber of Spanish voices. Suddenly the car began to drag across the sand under the prodding of the turbulent gusts of wind.

It bumped, reared and teeter-tottered across the sand as we fought down the panic that was building up within us. I had a horrified feeling that the bottom of the boat was being ground off by the lava-like stones on the black and gold beach.

Though it was difficult for us to maintain our footing, Colin and I were tossing over some of the calcium hydride — with which we had planned to make hydrogen if necessary — and still "The Small World" grated across the sand.

People were running alongside the car and Bushy, ever gallant even under stress, leaned out to kiss his secretary and another girl goodby. Some of the Spaniards were holding on to the rope too long. Now the launchers were stringing out behind us on the sand as we were pulled inexorably toward the sea. Booth was shouting, "More ballast off, Colin, more ballast!"

Suddenly we lurched into the air only to crash down onto the sea and then bounce on the waves several times. I had the horrible feeling that we would never get up.

Car Horns Tooted, People Applauded

It was Bushy who revived our spirits by saying: "Thank God, that's over with. At least we're not going to be torn to pieces on the sand. Now we've got a chance."

It was 1:07 a.m. December 12th, Canary Island time.

Then we began to rise. We were still oscillating and slapping the ocean but each time there was a longer pause between bounces. My final memory was of seeing Peter Elstob, our business representative, silhouetted against the fading car lights. And then I realized that all the car horns were being tooted and that the people on the ground were clapping their hands.

I was suddenly conscious of the intense darkness and wondered if the people could see us.

"Give them a blast on your bugle, Colin," I said, "so that they will know we're all right. They probably think we've gone down in the sea."

Colin did and then Tim had a go at it and all at once we found ourselves laughing.

We had done it! We were headed toward America.

Our wild dream was turning into an incredible adventure. But our jubilation was to be short-lived.

2 Fliers Walk Out of Glades

The Coast Guard called off a search of the swamp lands by the Civil Air Patrol and a Coast Guard helicopter when the wife of one of the men reported the fliers had arrived home safely.

They were identified as Fred Butler, the pilot, and David Stephens, both of Miami. Apparently they ripped the plane's compass out of the wreckage and used it to find their way to a highway, where they flagged down a passing truck.

Mrs. Stephens reported that both men were in good condition despite the Sunday plane crash and a night in the Everglades.

Stephens lives at 570 NW 91st St. Butler's address was listed as NW Third Ave. and 95th St.

A CAP search located the wreckage of the airplane about 55 miles northwest of Hollywood near the Big Cypress Seminole Indian Reservation.

The Coast Guard said the two men apparently walked home through rough country, cattle grazing land, marshes and wooded hammocks.

All Agreed: Dulles

Red Blockade Would Find Allies Ready

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said Monday the Western Allies had reached general agreement on steps they would take if Russia imposed a new blockade around Berlin.

Dulles reaffirmed the West's decision to stay in Berlin following his return from Europe. He conferred there with British, French and West German leaders on the Soviet's threat to turn over their section of Berlin to the East German Communists on May 27.

The secretary, who planned to report to President Eisenhower almost immediately, said, "we are willing to talk with the Soviets in a sincere effort to reach agreements" on the German problem. But he said the West was determined to maintain access to Berlin.

"We do not accept the substitution of East Germans for the Soviet Union in its responsibilities toward Berlin and its obligations to us," Dulles said upon his arrival at the Washington airport.

"We are resolved that our position in, and access to, West Berlin shall be preserved. We are in general agreement as to the procedures we shall follow if physical means are invoked to interfere with our rights in this respect."

Dulles did not say what "procedures" the West would follow if the Soviets decided, as they did in 1949, to deny the West access to Berlin. The old German capital is isolated more than 100 miles inside Communist East Germany.

Shortly before Dulles' arrival, Britain announced its complete support for his earlier statement that the West would make no concessions to the Russians without counter proposals from Moscow.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the Russians bore the responsibility for deciding whether there was to be risk of war over Berlin.

Dulles had said as he boarded his plane in Bonn that the Western Allies would be "firm and united for our rights." He did not rule out a conciliatory attitude by the West but excluded any "concessions for which there is no counterpart."

We'll Be Squeezed, Berlin Mayor Says

WASHINGTON —(P)— West Berlin's Mayor Willy Brandt said Monday his city would be "squeezed like a lemon" by the Russians should the West accept the Soviet ultimatum and withdraw its troops.

Brandt and his wife were interviewed on a television program while they had breakfast in West German Ambassador Wilhelm Grewe's residence.

sack with them to carry the loot.

They politely inquired of each victim as they taped him whether or not personal rings were insured.

"Mine aren't," said Irving Getz, a Miami jeweler who said he just happened to be there visiting. So they didn't take his.

Jack M. Werst, one of the four firm officers, said he thought they wouldn't take his rings if they knew they could be traced. So he told them his were insured. They took them.

It took the bandits about 15 minutes to loot the entire office. They also took several thousand dollars in cash.

As they started out one of two entrances into the hallway, one called sharply to the other, "Stop! Take off those white gloves."

Besides Al Levinson and Wertz, two other company officers robbed were Stanley Bud Levinson, son of Al, and Joseph Bickel.

Bud Levinson estimated the loss at a wholesale price of more than $250,000.

"That's close to half a million retail," he said.

A secretary, usually in the front office, already had left for the day, carrying some packages to be mailed. That room was vacant.

Between the first and second offices of the suite is a small bullet-proof glass peep-hole. The door there, however, was unlocked.

In the third room the two Levinsons were talking to their "customer" when the second gunman barged in.

Directly across the hall from the diamond import firm is the office of the Costa Rican consul general, Dr. Gonozalo J. Gallgos. He wasn't in.

The jewel merchants said it took them about a minute to free themselves after the bandits left. It was too late when they shouted for help.

Police theorize the holdup men possibly walked down one or two flights of stairs, then took an elevator.

They timed their escape durnig the peak of the rush hour. Apparently nobody noticed them leaving.

WESTERN CARIBBEAN — East and southeast winds at 10 to 20 miles an hour north portion and northeast and east winds at 20 to 30 miles an hour south portion. Partly cloudy with few scattered showers.

SMALL BOAT BULLETIN — Southeasterly winds at 10 to 20 miles an hour. Seas mostly moderate and the inland waters slightly choppy. Partly cloudy with a few widely scattered and brief showers in the early morning.

National Summary

In the wake of a disturbance over the Rockies, clearing skies provided sunshine over southern California and parts of Arizona while another surge of moisture overspread the Pacific northwest.

Snow extended from Washington State into the mountains of northern California with rains along the coast, occasionally reaching heavy intensity, along the northern California shoreline.

In addition to the severe ice storm, heavy snows are forecast for parts of the upper plains and Mississippi Valley and locally heavy accumulations are likely in the Colorado mountains.

Warnings include prospects for four inches or more in parts of Nebraska, Iowa and Wisconsin, and heavy snowfall may develop in South Dakota and southern Minnesota.

Mild temperatures with widespread cloudiness and rain will cover broad areas of the east.

Showers or thunderstorms are anticipated from the southern plains eastward into the Mississippi, Ohio and Tennessee Valleys as well as the Gulf states.

Scattered snows remain in the outlook for most of the west and may be locally heavy in the California mountains as rain moves southward through the state.

Help Given To All

By DAN BROWN
Cocoa Bureau Chief

COCOA — Their divorced mother was in jail for forgery, so Capt. Verona Hall took the four children in.

She took care of the three girls (10, 9 and 7) and a boy, 3, until a court gave their father custody of them 12 days later.

BROWN

"They were good children, too," says the captain, "and that little boy was very cute."

Taking care of children in trouble is not unusual for Capt. Verona Hall and her husband, Capt. Vern Hall. They have cared for seven since they opened Cocoa's first Salvation Army shelter last August.

Home For Them

"THE FIRST was a 16-year-old California girl who 'ran away' with a boy," says Capt. Verona. The couple got as far as Melbourne, where the girl was stranded when the boy was picked up on a California criminal charge and extradited.

"She was with us for a week, and she was a good girl . . . I got to talk to her a lot while she helped around the house . . . she had learned her lesson."

After the 16-year-old and the four children of the forger, Capt. Verona opened her home to a 3-year-old girl who had been stranded when her divorced father was picked up for armed robbery.

She had the child for 47 days, until a court action provided for the little girl.

Since then, Capt. Verona has cared for two runaway boys, one of whom left home because of school troubles and one who ran away because he'd fought with his stepfather about the plowing.

Aid to Families

CHILDREN in trouble aren't the only concern of the Halls.

For example, they helped 76 Central Brevard families during their first five months here.

For the needy families, they issued 25 grocery orders, installed one fuel oil tank, paid a month's rent, issued 119 garments and 38 pairs of shoes, paid for 11 prescriptions, gave money to eight, and provided Christmas dinners for 77 people.

Biggest Task

THE HALLS' biggest job has gone almost unnoticed. In their eight-bed shelter, they've provided lodging for more than 50 destitute wanderers every week.

Between the time they opened in August and the end of 1958, they helped 622 people and had 550 sleep overnight in the lodge or a nearby hotel.

They served 1,081 meals to the wanderers.

Many of the 622 were families wandering in search of jobs . . . 39 women and 65 children were among them.

One of the wandering families had four children. The father had loaded all into a car in North Carolina and driven to Cocoa in search of work. He had $20 when he started out, nothing when he got here.

The Salvation Army provided gasoline for that men's car and for the cars of 62 other wandering families.

Caught 4,160 Volts

Quick Action Saves Fellow Worker's Life

Herald Service

FORT PIERCE — The quick action of a fellow worker saved the life of 33-year-old carpenter Edgar (Bud) Gillette of 3105 Tennessee Ave., Monday afternoon.

Gillette was working on top of a new addition to the Fort Pierce city hall when he caught hold of a 4,160-volt line. He was knocked loose by a co-worker, Jay Byrne. Witnesses gave high commendation to Byrne's action.

Not only was he able to knock Gillette loose from the wire with a board, but he prevented him from falling from the top of the structure.

Gillette has severe burns on the back and on one hand, but was reported making satisfactory progress in the Fort Pierce Memorial Hospital Monday night. The attending physician said if he had been in contact with the line any longer he would have been killed.

Avast, You Swabs!

Pirate lads and lassies, armed to the teeth, cling to the rigging of the only buccaneer ship still afloat as it sails up Tampa Bay. The ship, the Jose Gaspar, brought the bold crew of freebooters Monday for the annual "capture" of Tampa, the feature of Gasparilla Day. Guns booming, the pirates "routed" defending ships and forces, swarmed ashore, and received the mayor's surrender. Then, following the policy of "if you can't lick 'em, join 'em," thousands of the "defenders" joined in a huge parade and the other features of Gasparilla Week. The "attack" commemorates the capture of Tampa more than 150 years ago by the pirate, Jose Gaspar.

Brother Charged in Beheading

By DAN BROWN
Cocoa Bureau Chief

The sister, Mrs. Minnie C. Cornell of 408 Willard St., was decapitated with a butcher knife in the pre-dawn Sunday attack.

Sheriff Jimmy Dunn said the 50-year-old Williams confessed to the crime late Sunday.

The killing came at the end of a lengthy argument about a man who was a friend of Mrs. Cornell. Williams, who had a long record of drunkeness arrests, was drunk, said Deputy Tillman McHenry, who arrested him.

The blood-drenched Williams made no attempt to escape after the killing. He told several conflicting stories when arrested.

Although the sheriff's department accused Williams of first degree murder, the charge is subject to review by the spring Grand Jury, which will convene in March.

Services for the victim will be at 4 p.m. today at the Wylie Funeral Home, with burial in the Old Cocoa Cemetery.

In addition to her husband and Shelly Williams, Mrs. Cornell is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Myrtle Pylmel of Cocoa; two other brothers, including Euell Williams of Apopka; five sisters, including Mrs. Janie Pettman and Mrs. Lillie Owens of Fort Pierce, Mrs. Earon Hardzog of Chipley, and Mrs. Lizzie Rathel of Tampa; and eight grandchildren.

School Converted To Court House?

Herald Service

FORT PIERCE — Melvin Shaffner, freshman county commissioner, came up Monday with a new plan to solve St. Lucie County's court house problem.

At present the commission is having plans for a courthouse addition and new jail drawn. Shaffner is suggesting the county take over the 62-classroom elementary school on Delaware Ave. for a courthouse building, and erect the new jail on the playground site.

Two commissioners, contacted by the Herald Monday, were "astonished" at the idea, and said they had not heard it before. Commissioner E. L. Taylor said he would oppose such an idea.

Commissioner N. W. Jorgensen said he felt it would be something that would need expert advice, but added he thought lawyers who have built offices in the vicinity of the present courthouse "would not be happy" about such an idea.

County Commissioner Joseph Nelson said Shaffner had mentioned the idea to him, and he had answered "If you do that, where are you going to get the money to build a new school?"

School Superintendent Ben L. Bryan said such an idea would take several years to work out. He estimated it would cost around a million dollars to provide the necessary classrooms in other locations.

'Old Toothpick' Has Many Sags and Wavers
. . . age of Elbow Creek crossing is anyone's guess

'New Bridges, Quick,' They Plead

By BILL BUNGE
Melbourne Bureau Chief

EAU GALLIE — "Old humpy" and "old toothpick" gotta go, say Eau Gallie city officials. They are backed by 2,000 residents and county school authorities.

"Old humpy," better known as the "humpback bridge," has carried millions of cars and trucks on U.S. 1 over the Eau Gallie river. And "old toothpick," providing a U.S. 1 crossing over Elbow Creek, has a similar record of service.

The spans are a short distance apart between the business section and the Loveridge Heights residential areas.

Mayor Milton McGrath, the City Council and other officials recently spearheaded a campaign for quick state action on replacing the bridges.

The gathered photos, petitions, letters, and other data, which was sent Monday to Gov. LeRoy Collins and State Road officials. More than 2,000 signed the petitions.

A City Council resolution, included in the protests, states the bridges are in "a state of disrepair, making it necessary for the State Road Department to be continually working on the bridges endangering lives of persons using them."

The document also delcared traffic is constantly held up, and "It has been impossible for emergency vehicles to make calls south of the Eau Gallie River." It also declared a large percentage of accidents in this city happen on the two spans.

Mayor McGrath's letter pointed out the 20-foot-wide bridges are a danger to tourists and residents, besides Brevard County school buses.

School Superintendent Woodrow J. Darden, supporting the mayor's statements, said:

"It is necessary for 41 school buses to cross the bridge twice each day, and I consider this bridge the most dangerous hazard to school children of any condition existing in Brevard County.

"We consider it so dangerous that we route every bus we can — across the Melbourne causeway, even though this results in the buses traveling several miles further."

The "humpback" bridge is narrow, and has numerous scars from trucks and other vehicles that either have hit or scraped its high sides.

"Toothpick" bridge is an old wooden span — so old nobody could guess its age — that has been topped by several inches of concrete. Mathers Bridge, at nearby Merritt Island, was of similar construction, and it buckled and fell into the river several years ago.

Leo Hegarty Quits Post On Erosion

By ANNE WILDER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE — Judge Leo Hegarty, a supervisor of the beach erosion district, and president of the Fort Pierce Beach Association, resigned from the erosion board Monday, to prevent "possible conflict" over the half million dollar erosion control plan, now under consideration.

While members of the beach association have taken no formal action on the proposal, many of them are disturbed at the cost, and feel strongly that other public agencies should share the expense.

Monday a committee from the beach association, headed by Del Short, asked the supervisors whether accepting the engineering report of Alton A. Register and Associates committed the erosion board to the plan recommended.

They were told it did not. They also asked other agencies be asked how much they would contribute to erosion control costs, before the matter was presented to beach freeholders for a bond issue vote.

M. A. Ramsey, chairman of the board, said getting such information from the federal and state government would take considerable time.

He also urged the group to be sure that all data is available before approaching any other public body.

Commenting on the cost of the proposed pumping station, Ramsey said freeholders should consider how much land will be washed away if control measures are not taken, and also remember that increased beach population will mean more taxpayers sharing the erosion costs.

Melbourne Landmark Given Up

Herald Bureau

MELBOURNE — One of the remaining momuments to Melbourne's early days soon will become just a memory.

On the corner of U.S. 1 and New Haven Ave. stands one of this city's first houses, which will be removed to make way for development of the property into something more useful in this missile age.

Three Melbourne businessmen, Jackson Vaughn, Roy S. Atkins and Howard Berg, Jr., have made a purchase agreement with Jack Raymond, owner of the land, house and a large auto repair garage.

The home was built out of lumber floated around the Florida peninsula in 1878. Some of the building timber in the house exceeds 70 feet in length.

A spokesman for the trio of purchasers said contacts now are being made in Miami, New York, Chicago and Washington areas to obtain investors capable of handling development of the property.

Meanwhile, the property may be turned into a temporary off-street parking area to serve the downtown section.

Charter Revision Increases Board

By BILL BURGE
Melbourne Bureau Chief

MELBOURNE BEACH — A five-man charter revision committee recommended drastic changes in the charter under which this beach town operates. Voters will be asked to approve amendments at a referendum, set for March 12 by city officials.

The most sweeping change would be to increase the three-member city commission to five, with each serving tow-year terms. Mayor Orville Price also asked for this change prior to the reports.

Proposed amendments also call for a town clerk-treasurer, tax assessor-collector, fire and police departments and health and public works department.

These are all new departments and offices. The head of each would be appointed by the City Commission. A commissioner would be over each department.

Melbourne Beach now has one police officer and fire protection is by a volunteer county unit. The county department is available for the beach area, from Indialantic south of Sebastian Inlet.

Under the proposed amendments, the mayor would receive $300 for the year ending February, 1960, and receive $600 a year thereafter. Commissioners would be paid $200 annually. The mayor would also serve as municipal judge.

The revised charter also would have provisions for recalling elected officials.

Members of the charter committee include Edward J. Rogers, Arthur W. Sauer, L. Corning Ketchum, Don R. Beaujean, and Raymond T. Devereaux.

Golden Gets 10 Years In Shootings

PENSACOLA —(UPI)— Ed Golden Jr., 23, of Milton, was sentenced Monday to two concurrent 10-year prison terms for assault with intent to commit second degree murder, and for shooting into the home of his girl friend in June.

Golden will begin the 10-years in state prison in May, when he completes a six-month sentence in Escambia County prison camp for assault and battery against Mrs. Pearce Jernigan, mother of the girl.

The sentences Monday by Court of Record Judge Ernest E. Mason were for wounding the girl's father and for shooting into the Jernigan home.

Golden was acquitted of murder in the fatal shooting of Deputy Sheriff Len Burton Adams and acquitted of assault with intent to commit first degree murder in the wounding of Deputy Leslie Brock.

In two sidelights to the shooting trials, F. M. Billings of Pensacola was sentenced to 30 days in jail for contacting a member of the jury panel and attempting to influence a favorable verdict.

And Ed Golden Sr., father of the youth, has been charged with contempt, the same charge Billings was convicted of, for allegedly conspiring in contacting a juror.

Hurts Fatal For Victim Of Accident

Herald Service

FORT PIERCE — Joseph Eckerfield, 57, of Harmony Heights, died Sunday from injuries he received in an auto accident Friday.

The car dirven by Eckerfield was struck by a vehicle driven by John Benjamin Wright, 23, of 1610 Ave. K, which went through a stop sign.

Wright fled from the scene but was later arrested and charged with driving while drunk, leaving the scene of an accident, and reckless driving by failure to yield the right of way.

Mr. Eckerfield's wife, Annie, was injured in the accident and is in the Fort Pierce Memorial Hospital. The Baird Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Accident Victims' Rites Set

Herald Service

VERO BEACH — Services for Mrs. Cora Lee Kirkland and her brother and sister-in-law, Mrs. and Mrs. LeRoy Ward, victims of a Sunday auto accident, will be Wednesday at 2 p.m. at Floyds Chapel. Burial will be in Winter Beach.

Mrs. Kirkland, 44, moved recently to 2409 SW 58th Way, West Hollywood, after living in the Vero Beach area for 25 years.

Survivors include her husband, Curtis, injured in the same accident; three daughters, Irene Smith and Lottie and Linda Lee Kirkland, all of West Hollywood; five sons, Elbert of Vero Beach, Milton, Delmus and Durell of West Hollywood, and Kenneth, U.S. Air Force; and two brothers.

Mr. Ward, 42, had lived here 25 years and was a grove manager. His wife, Theresa 27, came here nine years ago from Maine. Both were members of the Assembly of God church.

The Wards' three small children, Leonard, Madeline and Lee Ann, were at home when their parents were killed. Mrs. Ward's mother, Mrs. Margaret Pryor, and a sister, Judy Pryor, live at Melbourne.

Frank Skubic

FORT PIERCE — Frank Skubic, 68, Airport Rd., died Sunday. Services will be at 9 a.m. Tuesday at St. Anastasia's Catholic Church. Mr. Skubic came from Chicago eight years ago. Survivors include his wife, Mary, a son and two grandchildren. The Baird Funeral Home is in charge.

J. T. Yates

MERRITT ISLAND — Services were held here Monday for J. T. Yates, 88, who died Saturday. He was buried in Indianola Cemetery. Mr. Yates, a 16-year-resident of Merritt Island, was a retired Veterans Administration law clerk and a native of Kentucky. He had no close relatives.

Clyde L. Russell

FORT PIERCE — Clyde Lester Russell, 47, of 608 Ave. D, died Sunday. Services will be Wednesday at 11 a.m. at the Yates Funeral Chapel. Mr. Russell came to Fort Pierce a year ago from Chattanooga, Tenn. Survivors include his wife, Hazel, and a son, Clyde of Fort Pierce, four brothers and two sisters.

William M. Erb III

FORT PIERCE — William Montgomery Erb, III, 15-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Erb, Jr., of 2205 Barbara Ave., died Monday. Survivors include the parents, a brother, Thomas; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Erb of Dunkirk, N.Y., and Mrs. M. E. Nevins of Fort Pierce. Services and burial will be at Dunkirk with the Yates Funeral Home in charge here.

Percy J. Wyatt

JENSEN BEACH — The funeral of Percy John Wyatt will be held at 9 a.m. today at St. Joseph's Catholic Church. Burial will be in All Saints Cemetery under the direction of Yates Funeral Home. Mr. Yates died at his home here Saturday.

Medic Dean Fund Drive Honor Head

Herald Bureau

STUART — Dr. J. D. Parker, dean of the medical profession here, has been named honorary chairman of the Martin Memorial Hospital building fund drive, said Claude O. Rainey, drive chairman.

A million-dollar hospital is planned, to be on the present grounds. The present structure will be used as a home for the aged and for Negro patients.

Rainey said more than $85,000 has been contributed, and he expected the fund to amount to half a million dollars before the actual opening of the drive.

A publicity committee with Edwin A. Menninger, chairman, was named by Rainey. Other members are Edward H. Gluckler, Mrs. Ralph W. Hartman, Mrs. Zola Swarthout, Joseph Crankshaw, and Lester M. Combs.

Johns: Extend NAACP Probe

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Sen. Charley Johns said Monday he will ask the Legislature to extend the life of his investigating committee so it can complete a probe into possible Communist infiltration of the NAACP.

Johns, of Starke, said it does not appear the committee will have a chance to finish the investigation before the Legislature convenes April 7 because of numerous court suits testing its powers.

Unless extended another two years, the Johns committee dies June 30.

"I think the NAACP is trying to tire us out in court," Johns declared, "but they are not going to do it."

Committee hearings in Miami were halted when several witnesses refused to testify or produce NAACP records. The Supreme Court has twice ruled on suits challenging the committee's powers, and the NAACP now has taken the fight to federal district court in Miami.

The Supreme Court upheld legality of the committee and its authority to bring contempt proceedings against witnesses who refuse to testify.

In another ruling, the court said the NAACP cannot be required to turn over its rank and file membership rolls, but the committee has a right to know if suspected Communists are members of the race organization and NAACP officials can be required to give this information under oath.

The court said the Legislature has the right to explore the membership of any organization suspected of being the victim of surreptitious infiltration by subversives and witnesses must answer any question pertinent to this inquiry.

Johns said the committee was all set to resume public hearings in Miami when suit was filed before Federal Judge Emmett Choate.

Johns said he has nothing to report on the committee's investigation into alleged homosexuality at the University of Florida. He said the committee has not yet filed a report with University President J. Wayne Reitz.

The senator said the committee will meet in the near future to discuss recommendations it will make to the 1959 Legislature, but no date or location has been set.

Liberties Group Hits Morals Probe

The Florida Civil Liberties Union Monday protested investigation of homosexuals at the University of Florida by a legislative committee.

In a long, detailed letter to Senator Charley Johns, chairman of the investigating committee, the Civil Liberties Union asked the investigation be turned over to university officials.

The protest letter said the Civil Liberties Union looks upon the committee's investigation as a "usurpation of a judicial function."

Simon said the group feels "violators of our laws against nature should be tried in a court of law . . . and not by a legislative investigating committee."

A group of university professors also has registered a protest with the committee, Simon said.

Mental Problems Mounting

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — Mental health is such an acute problem in Florida today hundreds of millions of dollars would be necessary for treatment, a health official said Monday.

Dr. Wayne Yeager, director of the Bureau of Mental Health of the State Board of Health, told the annual conference of county health officers the State Hospital at Chattahoochee cares for 10,000 patients yearly and that there has been a gain of 3,146 since 1952.

But he said on a basis of Florida's estimated 4,450,000 population now, using a conservative 1 per cent as needing treatment, there are 44,500 who have mental and emotional illness.

He said it would cost 12 million dollars a year to maintain these patients, but that in addition facilities to take care of them would cost over 330 million dollars.

On top of all this, Dr. Yeager said it would cost 100 million dollars to build centers to take care of the estimated 1,500 persons who need yearly treatment for alcoholism in Florida.

The problem of caring for mentally retarded children is over and above this and "is almost overwhelming," he said.

Dr. Yeager said "new programs are needed but a great deal can be accomplished immediately if old programs are sharpened and reoriented to mental health."

RED CROSS drive chairman for 1959 in Martin County is Henry Kindred, merchant and school board member. The annual kickoff dinner for the drive will be held March 2 at Stuart. The drive has a goal of $9,000.

UF Enrolls 2nd Negro As Student

GAINESVILLE — (UPI) — Mrs. Daphne Duval, 53-year-old teacher, became the second Negro to enroll in the University of Florida graduate school Monday.

Mrs. Duval, who teaches at the Negro high school here, will take a single graduate course, "professional service," which meets one evening a week.

The university announced last week she had qualified for entrance in the college of education graduate school. She registered for the course by mail and meets her first class tonight.

George Starke Jr., law student from Sanford-Orlando, was the first Negro to enroll after a U.S. court order in June to desegregate the graduate schools.

Starke satisfactorily completed his first semester work and is now beginning his second semester. Not a single incident was reported after his enrollment, and college officials said they did not expect any now.

2 Missile Workers Missing

Herald Bureau

CAPE CANAVERAL — Two employes of an island missile tracking station have been missing since their boat capsized Sunday off Carter Cay in the Bahamas, the Air Force said Monday.

They were presumed dead Monday, but an air and sea search was continuing. Search planes found the boat wrecked on a reef early Monday.

A third passenger in the 18-foot pleasure boat was safe.

The man, Hyman Lesnick, a radio tower maintenance man, swam ashore for help leaving the other two clinging to the overturned boat.

Lesnick reached Carter Cay after a five-hour swim, the Air Force said.

The two missing men were identified as Floyd J. King, 51, of Vero Beach, a mechanic, and Robert Woolard, 32, of Rockingham, N.C., a cook.

The three are employed by Pan American World Airways — prime air force contractor on the Atlantic missile range — at the missile tracking station on Grand Bahama Island.

They were on a weekend fishing outing when their boat capsized at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Legislature To Fet Yates

MELBOURNE — The Florida Legislature is arranging a Gen. Yates Day — honoring Maj. Gen. Donald N. Yates, Air Force Missile Test Center commander — which will be during the 1959 session.

Brevard Rep. James H. Pritt said Gen. and Mrs. Yates will be taken to the rostrum and introduced to the House of Representatives, and then go to the floor of the Senate for an introduction.

★ LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE TO DEALERS
OFFICE OF THE FLORIDA STATE TURNPIKE AUTHORITY
"SUNSHINE STATE PARKWAY"
Fort Lauderdale, Florida
February 6, 1959

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the Florida State Turnpike Authority at its office, 5101 Northwest Tenth Street, McArthur Interchange, Fort Lauderdale, Florida, until 10:30 o'clock A.M. Eastern Standard Time, on the 26th day of February, 1959, for the sale of one years supply (200,000 gallons, more or less) of premium brand gasoline to the Florida State Turnpike Authority, to be delivered by transport truck by the successful bidder to Stuart Interchange, West Palm Beach Interchange, Pompano Beach Interchange, and McArthur Interchange in minimum 6,000 gallon loads or deliveries.

Bid blanks will be furnished to dealers upon application to the Florida State Turnpike Authority, Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Bids will not be recognized unless submitted on the bid blanks.

Each bid shall contain the full name of every person or company interested in it and shall be accompanied by a sufficient bond, or certified check on a solvent bank in an amount equal to 5% of the selling price bid on an estimated one years supply of 200,000 gallons, that if the bid is accepted a contract will be entered into and the performance of its proposal secured.

The Authority may reject any and all bids.

A bond with good and sufficient surety as shall be approved by the Authority shall be required of the successful bidder contractor in an amount equal to one hundred per cent of the contract price, conditioned upon the faithful performance of the contract.

HEY DAD, YOU LOOK FUNNY! Ed Roberts, dressed as a clown, was supposed to be the funny man at St. Theresa Home and School Association's Mardi Gras festival. Here he's teasing his daughter Ellen, a fourth grader, and her friend Susan Novak. Many of the local Catholic schools held their festivals and carnivals just before Lent begins on Wednesday.

Junior Chomps Are Target For Two PTA Projects

By ELEANOR DIXON
Herald Club Editor

Children's smiles at Edison Junior High School and Little River Elementary School should be brighter and healthier if the PTAs of both schools have their way.

The two PTAs are working on dental health programs. Each has a different approach but the thought behind each one is the same—keep the children's teeth in good repair.

Dental Clinic

EDISON'S PROGRAM is a direct one. The PTA has started a dental health clinic for children who can't afford to pay a private dentist.

Four dentists are volunteering their services and will be paid by the PTA for the cost of materials used. Two of the dentists are fathers of students and two are Edison graduates.

The project came up when Mrs. Charles D. Allen, PTA health chairman, learned from the school doctor and nurse that some needy children could not meet the qualifications for county dental services. But they still needed their teeth fixed.

Starting in February the children who have been screened by school officials for physical and financial need will have appointments with the four dentists. (A dental survey showed that 58 children needed dental work).

The dentists have volunteered to serve for one year and Mrs. Allen says, "We hope to budget more PTA money for the program next year. We want to continue it until the county agencies provide enough dental clinics."

Contest

LITTLE RIVER PTA's dental health program hinges on an incentive plan.

EDISON JUNIOR HIGH
LITTLE RIVER ELEMENTARY

All the school rooms are enrolled in a contest to see how many children bring in certificates from their dentists that their dental work is completed. Rooms with the best percentages will receive prizes in April.

During the year dentists are talking at PTA meetings about what parents can do to keep their children's teeth healthy.

The school has been chosen by the Miami Dental Society as part of its survey on dental health, and dentists will be working with teachers, too, to tell them how to teach dental health in the classrooms.

Mrs. E. I. Hilderbrand, PTA president, says the number of needy children in the school's area is perhaps double the normal percentage in other schools because of the number of public housing units in the area.

Fourteen of the children qualified for the Dade County Dental Clinic and PTA members are taking the children to and from the clinic.

"It's amazing how much work these children need. One first grader's teeth were so bad that the dentist at the clinic didn't want to handle it in the office. The child is being sent to Variety Childen's Hospital to have all the work done at one time," she said.

The dental health project is in addition to the PTA's regular health project — maintaining the school's health room where a full time paid attendant gives first aid to the childen and calls the mothers if they need to be sent home.

Pockets Are So Handy

Every little girl loves pockets on her dresses. Sometimes the ones you buy in stores do not have them.

If you want to please your tiny miss just open the waist seam about two inches and insert a pocket that you have stitched all the way around except at the top.

Insert the pocket from the wrong side of the dress and sew the raw seams of the pocket and the dress together.

Cotillion Welcomes Five New Members

Hatted and gloved, practically all of Cotillion Club's 75 or so members met for luncheon in the Biscayne Room of the McAllister Monday. This group of young matrons, who got together just a few years ago solely to plan for themselves and their husbands three or four parties a year, were welcoming in five new members and their new slate of officers.

Joining the old members this year are Betty (Mrs. Paul) Fransella, Charlotte (Mrs. Starr W.) Horton, Marianne (Mrs. James R.) Northcutt, Cynthia (Mrs. Edwin H. Jr.) Underwood, Sara (Mrs. Dan G.) Wheeler.

Miami High Skit To Show History

An elaborate Founders' Day musical play will be presented by Miami Senior High School PTA at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in the auditorium, 2450 SW 1st St.

The play, in which parents and teachers will sing and dance, consists of musical numbers from 1890 to 1959, ranging from the Bird in a Gilded Cage to a skit about the 1959 PTA member.

Mrs. W. G. Gunnoe wrote the skit and will be narrator.

March Of Dimes Event Theme Is Hawaiian Fete

By FLORENCE RABON
Herald Correspondent

KEY WEST—Sunny skies and waving palm trees, glimpsed through the cathedral-like windows of the Casa Marina hotel dining-room, carried out the illusion of an afternoon in Hawaii, which was the theme of the annual March of Dimes card party held there.

Almost 200 guests attended the affair, one of the social high-lights of the mid-winter season.

MRS. RABON

Rita (Mrs. Paul) Sawyer, chairman of the party, was assisted in arrangements by Maizie (Mrs. Jack) Gray, Judy (Mrs. Larry) Nettles, Shirley (Mrs. Norman) Wood, Marilyn (Mrs. Clayton) Papy, Mrs. Lawrence Riggs, Mrs. Paul Landrum, Sylvia (Mrs. Jeff) Knight, Elizabeth (Mrs. Louis) Szabo, Xenia (Mrs. Charles) Smith, Angela (Mrs. Thomas) Caro, and Eloina Gato.

Nick Kenney, famed New York columnist, was emcee for the floor show. The Alan Scott trio gave out with music, songs, and comedy. Jin and Marilyn Carter, sophisticated dance team appearing at the Casa Marina, presented their interpretation of various types of dances often seen on a ballroom floor. Lee Denson, recording artist, sang Nick Kenney's "Love Letters in the Sand" and two of his own original compositions.

Rosemary (Mrs. Joseph) Barnwell and her daughters, Dial and Rosemary, presented "Tales of the Hula" in costumes typical of the dances they interpreted. The Barnwell family formerly lived in Hawaii and there made a study of authentic native dances.

An array of gifts were awarded during the afternoon. Among the winners were Lois (Mrs. Ray) Malone, Doris (Mrs. William) Neblett, Mrs. Harold Bevis, Mrs. Rudolph Pappa, Mrs. Myron Russell, June (Mrs. Hugh) Williams, Mrs. Joe Thompson, Mrs. G. R. Biernesser of New York City and Mrs. R. M. Engleson of Williamson, N.Y.

Two-Man Art Show Stands Out

THE TWO-MAN ART exhibition by Dr. Frank Bowser and Burt Garnett, showing through Feb. 22 at the East Martello Gallery, is a fascinating collection of oils, watercolors, casein and gouache. Snow scenes by Dr. Bowser are particularly appealing with their delicate coloring and beautiful backgrounds. Rustic scenes are typical of rural America. Among Burt's oils "Pasacalle" and "Peggy's Garden" are gay, colorful and eye-catching.

A reception for members of the Key West Art and Historical Society and friends of the artists formally opened the show. There to greet guests were Mrs. J. Edgar Willing, Mrs. G. R. Smiley, Mrs. Norberg Thompson, and Mrs. Bowser.

In the crowd were Miss Eileen Williams and her nieces, Barbara (Mrs. W. L.) Freseman and Ann (Mrs. G. H.) Carmouche; Barbara and her husband, Rear Adm. Freseman, USN Retired, live in New York, where he is associated with International Telephone and Telegraph Co. Ann, whose husband Col. Carmouche was a World War II casualty, is a world traveler. She has had an art show at the local gallery.

Birthday, Betrothal Events

AN ENGAGEMENT party, hosted by Mable Dow at her home on Elizabeth St., honored Myrna Curry and Roger Galipeau, whose wedding will be an August event. Mable was assisted by her sister, Bernice (Mrs. R. C.) Dickson.

Myrna displayed her engagement ring to the 35 guests there. A beautiful diamond in a yellow gold Florentine finish setting which she designed, it matches a diamond watch and bracelet set, one of her prized possessions.

Happy birthday to one of Key West's most charming ladies who is celebrating her 88th, Mrs. John B. Maloney. The widow of the late Dr. Maloney, one time mayor of Key West, she is the mother of Mrs. Robert Spottswood, Mrs. Lewis A. Mills and Mrs. George Mills White.

More Dates For February

MORE FEBRUARY events are crowding the calendar. Thursday evening the Community Concert Association will present "The Ballet Quartet" at the High School auditorium, curtain time is 8:30. Heading the group of five are the world-famous Andre Eglevsky and Melissa Hayden.

The two artists have appeared with the New York City Ballet and have been guest stars with many symphony orchestras.

Friday evening another Audubon screen tour will be welcomed by nature lovers. The film "Land of Early Autumn" will be presented at Memorial Junior High School, by Cleveland P. Grant.

Tomorrow noon is the deadline for reservations for the February luncheon of the Officers' Wives Club to be held at Fort Taylor on Friday. VX-I wives are hostesses. Reservations should be made with Mrs. Edward Day, Mrs. E. Coulson, or Mrs. Cecil Kemf. Mrs. W. C. Moore is general chairman.

The theme will be Valentine, and Mrs. Al Oakley will present a program on her recent trip to Russia.

Sketches In Store At School

By CAROLYN V. COHEN
Herald Correspondent

UPPER KEYS — Coral Shores School is a beehive of activity, and the adults you see there aren't attending school classes. It's Sketch Book time again (Feb. 13, 14) and this year's presentation includes students and many of our best known citizens.

MRS. COHEN

Advance notices say it will be a well balanced mixture of beautiful scenes and riotous sketches as you are taken on a world tour via the stage.

Just a hint . . . can you picture some of our most dignified business men inhabiting a sultan's harem, or PTA members participating in a celebration of Sadie Hawkins Day?

Tonight members of Burton Memorial WSCS hold an important meeting to plan for the first service in their new church on Sunday.

Bowling leagues need money, so Tavernier Fire Dept. Auxiliary and BPODoes are cooperating in a baked goods sale in front of Key Largo post office from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Wednesday. If you buy something it will help the gals maintain their leagues and their high averages in matched play.

Your date book reminder: Feb. 13 the Kiwanis Fish Fry at the Elks Club; Feb. 14 the WSCS baked goods sale at Tavernier post office; Feb. 15 San Pedro annual bazaar on Plantation Key.

Congratulations to Charles Louis Pellicier, new chief of Tavernier Fire Dept. He has been active in the department a long time and richly deserves this honor, which carries deep responsibility for which he has qualified.

Two Hoosier families have joined the Upper Keys community. Welcome to the Don Heaths of Lebanon, Ind., who purchased the Don Purcell's Tavernier home and are enthusiastically moving there.

Also welcome to Great Lakes Captain Wally and Mary Unkuri from Hammond, Ind., who have purchased a home in Pirates Cove, Key Largo. They came to visit old friends Bill and Lotte Uhe and decided to stay with us.

We have good news from Jackson Memorial Hospital, Miami, where Floyd Hinkson, popular Key Largo electrician, has been on the critical list following brain surgery. Wife Margaret says he has rallied and the doctor now believes he is headed for recovery, although he must undergo another operation next week.

And Margaret, who has been with Floyd day and night, wants to thank everyone for their messages and prayers. She added that son, Floyd, Jr., a technical sergeant in England, wife Virginia and children Susan and Mike were flown here by the Army and their presence has had an excellent effect on Floyd's condition.

The Cliff Carpenters, Tavernier, received a call from son Rickey at Fort Gordon, Ga. to tell them he is headed for Newfoundland, the Azores and Paris on a two year assignment with the U. S. Army Signal Corps.

Sorry there was a typographical error when new emergency telephone numbers were printed last week. It was caused by composing room gremlins who take fiendish delight in putting mistakes in important notices.

The numbers are 5353 for a deputy sheriff and 5300 for fire reports. Place an "8" before the numbers if you dial from the Matecumbe exchange.

'Not in the Book' Has Polished Cast

By HELEN VAN HOY SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

PALM BEACH — It's always fair weather when good fellows get together; and for those good fellows of the theater, lovely Ann Harding, Edward Everett Horton and Reginald Owen, the weather at the Royal Poinciana Playhouse is balmy indeed.

"Not in the Book," by Arthur Watkyn opened Monday night for a weeks run with Wednesday and Saturday matinees. It's an Englsh mystery comedy—a brew of blackmail, psychology, traffic violation and a slight case of mayhem and murder.

The entire cast measures up to those three hardy perennials who are starred.

Ann Harding of the soft blue velvet voice and the gracious aristocratic mein is the only woman. No other is needed.

Edward Everett Horton has been delighting audiences since the memory of man runneth not. He continues to do so. In his preparations for murder he brings to new heights the arts of fussbudgetry and vacillation.

Reginald Owen's role is slight but a gem. Applause marks his every entrance and exit. Everyone knows someone who is a prototype of the character he portrays so wisely and so well.

Then there's a young man, slim as a walking cane, named Ralph Purdum, a comedian whose underplayed art increases as the play progresses. You are more and more aware of him.

John Irving, Herbert Volland, Val Avery and Claude Horton, well known and established actors each gives an excellent account of himself.

Setting of an English lounge hall in a well-to-do home is faithfully executed by Jim Riley. Antique lovers were spotting the old settee, the collection of antique sugar bowls and the many fine articles and pictures which added authenticity.

The British accents of the actors are not of the pea-soup variety. You hear every word perfectly and enjoy every word as well.

Key West Girl Wed In Church

KEY WEST — St. Mary's Star of the Sea Catholic Church was the setting Sunday for the wedding of Haydee Maria Lopez and Martin Kurt Eisentraut.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel H. Lopez, 917 Grinnel St. Given in marriage by her father, she wore a gown of hand-clipped chantilly lace with sabrina neckline and bouffant skirt over satin with lace train.

A fingertip veil of silk illusion was attached to her tiara of seed pearls and sequins. She carried a white missal with an orchid.

Madga Esther Lopez, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a ballerina length gown of aqua silk organza with matching shoes and hat and carried yellow gladiolas and pompoms.

Bridesmaids were Cecilia and Olga Lopez, cousins of the bride, Jocelyn Maloney, Anna Haskins, Cecilia Nicolau and Yolanda Avila. They were dressed similarly to the maid of honor and carried yellow pompoms.

Zaida Vega and Christina Pechter were flower girls in floor length slik organza gowns of pale yellow with hats to match. They carried aqua flower baskets.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Emil Eisentraut, Fullerton, Pa. Charles Stuart Maloney III was best man.

Alex Vega was ring bearer.

Mrs. Claudina Yaccarino was soloist, accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Marie Valenzuela.

A reception was held at the Elks Club.

The newly weds will visit Allentown, Pa., on their wedding trip. After Feb. 23, they will live at 916 Georgia St.

Lodge Officials Call on Groups

WEST PALM BEACH — The state lodge officials were honored by Sunshine Theta Rho Girls Club recently at a dinner and meeting held at the I.O.O.F. hall.

Honored were Mrs. Gladys Carpenter of Lakeland, president of the Rebekah Assembly of Florida, and Miss Barbara Volk of Fort Pierce, president of the Theta Rho Assembly of Florida.

The meeting was attended by members of the I.O.O.F. youth committee: George Cole of Fort Pierce, chairman; Mrs. J. D. Gray, Stuart, secretary; Stanley R. Shephard, West Palm Beach, treasurer; and Mrs. H. B. Dawson, advisor of the West Palm Beach club.

Miss Daggett Married at Delray Beach

DELRAY BEACH — Miss Elizabeth B. Daggett, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Daggett, Lewiston Heights, N. Y., became the bride of Leon J. Robbins II, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon A. Robbins of Ocean Ridge.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Harland Zimmerman at St. Paul's Episcopal Church here Feb. 2. A small reception at Delray Beach Patio followed the ceremony.

The bride attended Park School at Buffalo and Rollins College. The groom is a graduate of Riverside Military Academy and Rollins. He served in the Army Signal Corps for two years.

Te couple will be at home at 510 NE 28th St., Miami.

Midwest Slips, Slides on a Giant Ice Sheet

Pea Soup Fog Adds To Peril

New England At Coldest

CHICAGO —(UPI)— The Midwest slipped and slithered on a mammoth sheet of ice Monday.

When Midwesterners weren't cracking their shins and breaking their bones on the glazed sidewalks, they were groping through dense, zero-visibility fog.

From Kansas to Ohio, freezing rain and drizzle laid down an ice cover which crippled cities, closed schools, and made driving a daredevil feat. Warm Gulf air created the pea-soup fog.

The East was scheduled to hit the skids Monday night. Meanwhile, New England froze in its coldest weather of the season — a 34-below reading at Newport, Vt.

To the West, heavy snow warnings were out for parts of Nebraska, South Dakota, Iowa, and Minnesota.

Colorado battled not only ice and fog, but snows up to 16 inches deep which closed one mountain pass and packed all the others with snow. Travel without chains was impossible over the Sierra Mountains from Reno, Nev., to California.

The ice belt stretched from Kansas through parts of Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. Travel was so dangerous that the weather bureau urged: "All except urgent travel should be abandoned . . ."

Illinois had already counted three traffic deaths blamed on the ice and Iowa one.

Chicago, Detroit, Kansas City and St. Louis were among the larger Midwest population centers afflicted by the ice storm.

Tampa Sun Downs 22

Ambulances had a busy day moving the heat victims from downtown to Tampa hospitals. Five of those stricken were marchers in high school bands. They were among the more than 600,000 spectators who lined the parade route.

The scores of attractive girls decorating the floats came well-prepared. Most were in bathing suits or scanty costumes.

Another casualty of the festivity was a member of the crew on the pirate invasion ship, Jose Gasparilla. The unnamed buccaneer fell into the Hillsborough River when he attempted to make a gallant jump to shore. He was pulled intact, but soggy, from the water.

We're Still Hot Stuff

$250,000 Lost In 2nd Gem Grab

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

Two "gentlemen" gunmen efficiently ransacked a downtown Miami diamond importer's office of $250,000 in jewels Monday afternoon, then fled in a crowded elevator eight floors to the safety of jammed sidewalks.

The record holdup operation took 15 minutes, and was the second largest gem haul in Greater Miami in 24 hours. A room prowler snatched $400,000 in gems from an eighth-floor Americana Hotel suite Sunday.

According to the victims' story, one of the gunmen, who bought a $1,800 ring from Levinson last Friday for cash, entered the office first.

Moments later at 5:20 p.m., a nattily dressed accomplice, about 30, busted into the three-room suite wielding a .45 caliber automatic.

"All right, get on the floor!" he said. "Lie face down. This is a holdup.

"Now, nobody is going to get hurt. Just don't move."

The other robber, the one posing as a customer, then pulled a gun.

"Is there a buzzer in here?" he asked.

Nobody said anything.

One by one, the gunmen made the victims sit up with their hands over their eyes, and then bound them with adhesive, the victims told police.

The jewels, lying in sample boxes in an open safe, were mostly diamonds — some mounted and some not.

Two buyers for the company returned from New York City only Jan. 31 with a new supply for the winter tourist season.

The holdup men, both wearing suits and ties, brought a

Collins Met Johnson in Race Huddle

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— The governor's office disclosed Monday LeRoy Collins had a face-to-face meeting with Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas a week ago on Collins' plan that Congress set up a federal-state commission to deal with the school racial crisis.

William Durden, executive assistant to the governor, said Collins flew to Washington in response to a phone call from Johnson.

Durden confirmed that the Collins' plan was the subject of their discussions, but said any details of the Collins-Johnson meeting must come from Collins or the Texas senator.

Both Collins and Johnson, the Senate majority leader, are regarded as moderates on the racial question. Johnson was a non-signer of the Southern Manifesto of 1956 which all Florida congressmen and senators except Rep. Dante Fascell of Miami signed.

Recently, Collins told his news conference he had written Johnson about his plan and asked an opportunity to discuss it with him. Johnson telephoned Collins about two weeks ago and the Washington conference on Jan. 31 resulted.

Collins has proposed that Congress provide for a commission from each state, appointed by the president with approval of the governor of the state.

2½-Billion Aid Offered Schools

WASHINGTON — UPI — The Eisenhower administration Monday proposed a new program of aid to communities and colleges which cannot afford needed new construction.

The long-range aid program would cost the federal government an estimated 2½ billion dollars over a 25-year period. Details of draft bills were outlined to newsmen by Secretary Arthur S. Flemming of the Health, Welfare and Education Department.

He said the plan was "consistent with the fiscal policies of this administration." He said it could be handled within the framework of President Eisenhower's narrowly balanced 77-billion-dollar 1960 budget and will require no cash payments in fiscal 1960.

Under the proposed program for elementary and high school construction, the federal government would agree to pay principal and interest on new school construction bonds on a 50-50 matching basis with the states.

Flemming said the maximum annual federal payment on elementary and high school bonds would be 85 million dollars and the aggregate potential cost would be about two billion dollars over approximately 25 years.

The program, Flemming said, would be available only to communities which lack the resources to finance their own classroom needs.

The plan would be in effect for new construction started in the next five years. Flemming said it would cover up to three billion dollars worth of construction of elementary and high school buildings.

Under the program for college classrooms and housing, the federal government would put up an annual payment of 25 million dollars to retire debts.

The federal government would annually advance half of the funds required by needy local school districts to pay the principal and interest charges on bonds issued by the districts to finance school construction projects, if the states in which such districts are located undertake to put up the remaining half of the payments.

Sparks Fly At Housing Project

EAU GALLIE — Construction of a 24-unit public housing project between Sunset Hills and Sunwood Park has aroused the ire of residents of those two north Eau Gallie subdivisions.

The public housing project, which will be open to both colored and white families, is being constructed by the Brevard County Housing Authority, an arm of the federal government.

Claiming that the low-cost development devaluates their homes, residents of two neighboring subdivisions have sent petitions to Eau Gallie officials in an attempt to have them step into the picture on their side. A city building permit has been issued, however.

Howard W. Yawn of Eau Gallie also plans on protesting the low-cost project location "as an agent of John Frances, builder and developer of Sunset Hills."

Yawn said residents of the two developments sent one petition to city hall, asking that the city halt construction on the low-cost homes. A second petition, he said, asks the city not to change zoning to permit the project.

"On Fe. 24, 1958, the city adopted a new zoning code," Yawn said, "changing the project site from multiple construction to single family. And title company records show that the housing authority did not accept title for the land until May, 1958."

This same zoning issue was brought up by an individual resident two weeks ago, and the city council asked City Attorney Charles A. Williams to investigate. Councilman William M. Woodson said then that a legal technicality was involved because the housing authority first asked for permission to build on the site back in 1951.

City Manager Clark Maxwell also explained that zoning of the low-cost home site was accidently changed.

Cloud Ceiling Raised

U.S. Restricts Electra Landings

NEW YORK —(AP)— The federal government Monday limited bad weather landings by the new Electra jet-prop airliners. The safety restrictions —expected to be only temporary — followed last week's East River crash that cost 65 lives.

Nationally, for the time being, the cloud ceilings for such flights were raised 600 feet and visibility requirements doubled. This is intended to give pilots more leeway in landings when they come off instruments and into open weather.

"We're happy to cooperate," said a spokesman for American Airlines, whose Electra Flight 320 crashed into the river Tuesday night when it undershot LaGuardia Field. There were only eight survivors of the disaster.

American is hopeful that the restrictions — which also apply to Electra jet-props flown by Eastern Airlines— will be short-lived. Eastern, in directing compliance with the restrictions, spoke of "a temporary restriction of not more than three days."

The new safety limits were set by the Federal Aviation Agency, the new over-all government regulatory agency for commercial air operations. The FAA said:

"The restrictions are temporary, voluntary on the part of the airlines, and the airlines have accepted the restrictions so that the order is in force now."

The FAA is directing the intensive investigation now under way into the Feb. 3 East River crash. Thus far, there has been no indication as to why the plane plunged into the river in bad weather just short of LaGuardia.

If it eventually is determined that weather was not a factor in the disaster, the new restrictions presumably will be softened or removed. The FAA said they will remain in effect while the probe is going on.

Flight 320, inbound from Chicago, began its landing on instruments, with a ceiling of between 300 and 400 feet and visibility of about two miles. The federally regulated limits

Herter Is Left In Charge

Secretary Needs Hernia Operation

By FELIX BELAIR JR.
The New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles took an indefinite leave of absence Monday to have an operation for a hernia condition and to complete his recovery from an intestinal disorder.

N.Y. Times News Service

In a letter to President Eisenhower, which was made public immediately by the White House, the secretary asked permission to turn over his duties to Undersecretary C. Douglas Dillon "for a short time."

The secretary told the President in his letter that he "would expect, after a few weeks, to resume fully the duties of the office." James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, added to this that "there is no sign whatsoever of anything malignant" in connection with the secretary's decision to undergo surgery at this time.

Dulles underwent a successful operation for a cancerous colon lesion in December 1956. Last December he was again hospitalized with diverticulitis, an inflammation of the colon, but his doctors reported that there had been no recurrence of the malignancy at that time.

Secretary Dulles' letter to the President read:

"I should like your permission to turn over to Undersecretary Herter, or in his absence, to Undersecretary Dillon, the duties of secretary of state for a short period.

"My doctors advise that I should have an operation for a recently developed hernia; and I have not wholly thrown off the effects of the inflammation of the colon which occurred last December.

"I should accordingly like to devote a few weeks to physical recuperation, and also have some time when, free from other responsibilities, I could concentrate on the complicated and grave problems raised by the Soviet threats regarding Berlin and the Allied response thereto.

"I would be available for consultation with you and my associates and would expect, after a few weeks, to resume fully the duties of the office.

"I regret the circumstances which lead me to ask for this

Car Lights Faded and We Rose Into Darkness

By ROSEMARY MUDIE

Up, Up and Away!

Rosemary Mudie, the lone woman member of the daring expedition in the balloon "The Small World," the year's most thrilling true adventure story, today brings her first-person narrative to the take-off. This is the first publication of the full account of the perilous venture.

The take-off of our balloon from Tenerife Island in our attempt to span the Atlantic was a nightmare come to life.

We had picked the Canary Islands, which lie about 60 miles off the African coast, as the best launching place on the advice of meteorologists. It was a sheer coincidence that from this same island Columbus set out in 1492 on his first voyage to the New World, but we thought it augured well for our own expedition.

El Globo, as the natives called "The Small World," was the No. 1 topic of conversation among the islanders. From the moment of our first appearance there we had a swarm of well-wishers and helpers around our launching site on Playa de la Tejita beach, near the tiny fishing town of El Medano.

A huge ground sheet had been spread out so that the balloon would not be punctured by sharp bits of debris and then the deflated 46-foot canopy itself was spread on top of it. The net was in place over it and firmly anchored with sand bags. Nearby in an orderly pile were the 690 cylinders of hydrogen gas for the four hour inflation job. Now we were waiting on the weather.

The sea trip down from Southampton was on a ship that obviously was more accustomed to carrying bananas than balloons. We were grateful for the free ride they gave us for though we were dealing with a lighter-than-air vehicle, our equipment weighed 45 tons.

The Hairdresser Does His Share

After all the launching preparations were completed, I decided that there was still one thing for me to do personally — I had my hair done.

It turned out to be quite an experience for the shop became crowded with people who wanted to see the woman who was going on "El Globo." I was told later that some of them were comparing me with Manolete, the Spanish bullfighter, as the arch-symbol of bravery, which was the purest nonsense.

When the hairdresser was finished, he refused to accept any money, indicating that this was his contribution to our flight. Little did I reckon that it would be five weeks before I could have my hair done again and that three of those weeks would be spent at sea in an open boat. I left his shop knowing how a celebrity feels, and I must say that I enjoyed it.

"All right, boys and girls, we're going this time!" Bushy Eiloart said. It was just after one a.m. Thursday morning, Dec. 11, when our now-qualified balloon pilot made this decision.

We welcomed the decision after the more than a week of parties mixed with the long wait for the right weather. A beacon was lit on a nearby hill to call the volunteer motorists

Florida Official Accepted Printers' Favors

By JOHN BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE—A top employee of the Florida Department of Agriculture said Monday that he has accepted favors from printers, but said they had not influenced his handling of printing bids for the department.

Jack Shoemaker, director of the department's bureau of immigration, which distributes several publications on Florida, said he received some free personal photographic work from Granger Studio and Printing Co. of Tallahassee after the firm got a state job.

And he said he was a guest at several fishing parties aboard the boat of Charles Rosenberg, president of Rose Printing Co., Tallahassee, and other firms.

Shoemaker explained that he asked Granger to submit a bill for personal family photographs made for him but that he never received the bill.

He said the had been invited by the Rose Printing Co. sales manager to go on fishing trips and "considered it personal business since it was on my own time."

Forrest Granger of the printing firm said he couldn't recall any conversation about a bill and considered the matter closed when the estimated 17 dollars worth of photos was delivered. He said his small firm does only a small amount of state business.

Of $319,000 spent by the agriculture department, Rose Co. and affiliates got $100,000 of business. They got $61,000 of the $130,000 worth of printing business supervised by Shoemaker.

Shoemaker handled publication of the agriculture department's 71-page biennial report recently which cost $1.31 a page. Rose got the bid for the color-splashed job.

Shoemaker said he called for the use of color, in spite of added cost, because he felt it would make the report more attractive. He ordered 1,000 copies.

Shoemaker said he heard rumors "that some printers were getting together on prices" before submitting bids on state jobs, but he said he didn't hear them identified.

He said he submits a standard bid form to five printers for sealed bids on jobs for the immigration bureau. In many cases, he said, bidding is limited to Tallahassee printers because of deadline and proofreading problems.

The immigration bureau is mainly charged with supplying information on Florida agriculture and promoting various phases of the industry.

A legislative committee headed by Sen. Tom Adams of Orange Park recently asserted that some bureau publications duplicate promotional projects of the Florida Development Commission.

Some out-of-town printers have complained they aren't getting a fair shake from state agencies in the doling out of printing jobs.

Rep. John E. Mathews Jr. of Jacksonville has called for a legislative probe of printing costs and for legislation to put printing under supervision of the state purchasing commission.

Gov. LeRoy Collins has said he will support Mathews and will make another attempt to put printing under central purchasing. His effort to do so in the 1957 legislative session was unsuccessful.

Honduran Rebels Put To Flight

By PAUL P. KENNEDY
The New York Times Service

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — It appeared virtually certain Monday that government forces had retaken the small barracks city of Santa Barbara, about 150 miles northwest of here, after that city had been held by rebel forces over the weekend.

A presidential house spokesman confirmed that late-afternoon messages were picked up over the radio station, Voz del Junco, announcing the recapture. A voice making the announcement claimed to be that of Maj. Alonso Flores Guerra, of the First Battalion here in the capital. The spokesman said the voice had been verified.

N. Y. Times News Service

The message said 130 rebels were captured and that the bulk of the rebel forces were fleeing westward toward Copan, on the Guatemalan border.

The Voz de Junco radio station in Santa Barbara had announced early Monday morning, "The revolution has begun."

Beginning shortly afterward, the Ministry of War began commandeering private commercial airliners and sending troops from Tegucigalpa to the beleaguered city. During the morning, at least one bomber and two P38 fighter planes of the Honduran Air Force took off in a northwesterly direction.

The later message said the bulk of the rebel troops were fleeing westward toward Copan on the Guatemalan border.

Aside from this there was a complete blackout of information. It appeared certain the government itself had not been able by midday to ascertain the true situation in the northwest.

For several weeks a clandestine radio, presumably located in northern Nicaragua near the Honduran border, has been broadcasting warnings that rebel forces under former Honduran Army Col. Armando Velasquez Cerato would soon invade Honduras and overthrow the administration of President Ramon Villeda Morales.

The slogan of the clandestine radio in those days was, "First the mountains of Honduras, then the valleys and then the capital."

Tegucigalpa itself was calm Monday.

John Foster Dulles"

Dulles, who will be 71 on Feb. 25, returned to Washington only Monday morning from talks in London, Paris and Bonn on the position of the Western powers should the Soviet Union make good its threat to terminate the four-power occupation agreement on Berlin.

He called at the executive mansion to report to the President on the talks and to inform him of his decision to undergo an operation. About half an hour after the two men had been closeted in the President's oval study on the second floor, Hagerty was called over from the executive office.

Hagerty acknowledged that it was somewhat unusual for a cabinet officer to submit a letter in asking to be away from his desk for a few weeks, but he added:

"Rather than make a mystery of it, we are putting it on the record."

Restrictions On Electra

at the time were a 400 feet ceiling and one mile visibility.

Under the new restrictions, the ceiling must be at least 1,000 feet and visibility two miles. If the limits are less than that, the plane must circle the airport until the weather improves, or go on to another field that meets the limitations.

Eastern Airlines was the first to put the 68-passenger Lockheed Electra into service early this year. American put them on its Chicago-New York run Jan. 23. Eleven other lines have the plane on order.

Lockheed officials said they would have no immediate comment on the FAA order.

Canary Islanders Watch as the Balloon Is Inflated on Medano Beach
. . . this was just after dawn on the morning before the takeoff

whose auto headlamps would be used to illuminate the scene.

The Winds Grew, Foiled Takeoff

"I've just read the latest meteorological report," he continued, "and it shows light to medium northeasterly winds constant for more than 500 miles west. We better take advantage of it."

But to our bitter disappointment it was not to be so. The wind grew in violence and shifted so we had to abandon the plans for takeoff. By now we were all becoming a bit irritable and peevish. This was the second night we had stood by at action stations only to be forced to scrub the takeoff. The tension and lack of sleep were beginning to take their toll of our nerves.

We wouldn't have been so disappointed then if we had been able to be sure that just 24 hours later we would be successfully airborne and off on our adventure. By eight o'clock that evening, we realized with growing excitement that the wind was dropping and if it continued we would have a chance to get off.

Bushy ordered that the balloon be inflated but at nine o'clock the work stopped because the wind had not dropped. We had reached the point where it was dangerous to inflate any more. My husband Colin and I went back to our tent to catch a nap while Bushy and his son Tim elected to sleep in the care of "The Small World."

Autos' Headlights Showed the Way

At 11 o'clock we were awakened by the whine of the gas cylinders inflating the balloon again. We realized that Wing Commander Ralph Booth, the head of our launching crew and the former captain of the dirigible R-100, had decided we might be able to make it after all.

Even then, as we approached the balloon, they were fixing the load ring, from which our car was suspended, to the neck of the canopy.

Wearing our blue two-piece flying suits, we four climbed aboard the car. The autos, which were formed in a semicircle about us, had turned on their headlamps to give us light to work by for it was a pitch-black night.

Speed would be needed in untying the sandbags from the balloon net as the wind hadn't dropped as much as we had hoped. Unfortunately, our launching crew was a multilingual one made up of our friends from England and the Spanish volunteers from the island.

Bushy was running around the car giving instructions about the launching bags and shouting out in exasperation every once in a while: "Tell them in Spanish somebody, tell them in Spanish!"

Colin and I were methodically lining up the materials that we might have to throw overboard on a strict priority basis while Tim was making the electrical connections and checking the radios.

Across the Beach, Up, and a Bounce!

The balloon had reached full inflation and Commander Booth shouted: "All right, let them go, let them go." He could scarcely be heard above the excited jabber of Spanish voices. Suddenly the car began to drag across the sand under the prodding of the turbulent gusts of wind.

It bumped, reared and teeter-tottered across the sand as we fought down the panic that was building up within us. I had a horrified feeling that the bottom of the boat was being ground off by the lava-like stones on the black and gold beach.

Though it was difficult for us to maintain our footing, Colin and I were tossing over some of the calcium hydride — with which we had planned to make hydrogen if necessary — and still "The Small World" grated across the sand.

People were running alongside the car and Bushy, ever gallant even under stress, leaned out to kiss his secretary and another girl goodby. Some of the Spaniards were holding on to the rope too long. Now the launchers were stringing out behind us on the sand as we were pulled inexorably toward the sea. Booth was shouting, "More ballast off, Colin, more ballast!"

Suddenly we lurched into the air only to crash down onto the sea and then bounce on the waves several times. I had the horrible feeling that we would never get up.

Car Horns Tooted, People Applauded

It was Bushy who revived our spirits by saying: "Thank God, that's over with. At least we're not going to be torn to pieces on the sand. Now we've got a chance."

It was 1:07 a.m. December 12th, Canary Island time.

Then we began to rise. We were still oscillating and slapping the ocean but each time there was a longer pause between bounces. My final memory was of seeing Peter Elstob, our business representative, silhouetted against the fading car lights. And then I realized that all the car horns were being tooted and that the people on the ground were clapping their hands.

I was suddenly conscious of the intense darkness and wondered if the people could see us.

"Give them a blast on your bugle, Colin," I said, "so that they will know we're all right. They probably think we've gone down in the sea."

Colin did and then Tim had a go at it and all at once we found ourselves laughing.

We had done it! We were headed toward America.

Our wild dream was turning into an incredible adventure. But our jubilation was to be short-lived.

2 Fliers Walk Out of Glades

The Coast Guard called off a search of the swamp lands by the Civil Air Patrol and a Coast Guard helicopter when the wife of one of the men reported the fliers had arrived home safely.

They were identified as Fred Butler, the pilot, and David Stephens, both of Miami. Apparently they ripped the plane's compass out of the wreckage and used it to find their way to a highway, where they flagged down a passing truck.

Mrs. Stephens reported that both men were in good condition despite the Sunday plane crash and a night in the Everglades.

Stephens lives at 570 NW 91st St. Butler's address was listed as NW Third Ave. and 95th St.

A CAP search located the wreckage of the airplane about 55 miles northwest of Hollywood, near the Big Cypress Seminole Indian Reservation.

The Coast Guard said the two men apparently walked home through rough country, cattle grazing land, marshes and wooded hammocks.

All Agreed: Dulles

Red Blockade Would Find Allies Ready

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said Monday the Western Allies had reached general agreement on steps they would take if Russia imposed a new blockade around Berlin.

Dulles reaffirmed the West's decision to stay in Berlin following his return from Europe. He conferred there with British, French and West German leaders on the Soviet's threat to turn over their section of Berlin to the East German Communists on May 27.

The secretary, who planned to report to President Eisenhower almost immediately, said, "we are willing to talk with the Soviets in a sincere effort to reach agreements" on the German problem. But he said the West was determined to maintain access to Berlin.

"We do not accept the substitution of East Germans for the Soviet Union in its responsibilities toward Berlin and its obligations to us," Dulles said upon his arrival at the Washington airport.

"We are resolved that our position in, and access to, West Berlin shall be preserved. We are in general agreement as to the procedures we shall follow if physical means are invoked to interfere with our rights in this respect."

Dulles did not say what "procedures" the West would follow if the Soviets decided, as they did in 1949, to deny the West access to Berlin. The old German capital is isolated more than 100 miles inside Communist East Germany.

Shortly before Dulles' arrival, Britain announced its complete support for his earlier statement that the West would make no concessions to the Russians without counter proposals from Moscow.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the Russians bore the responsibility for deciding whether there was to be risk of war over Berlin.

Dulles had said as he boarded his plane in Bonn that the Western Allies would be "firm and united for our rights." He did not rule out a conciliatory attitude by the West but excluded any "concessions for which there is no counterpart."

We'll Be Squeezed, Berlin Mayor Says

WASHINGTON —(P)— West Berlin's Mayor Willy Brandt said Monday his city would be "squeezed like a lemon" by the Russians should the West accept the Soviet ultimatum and withdraw its troops.

Brandt and his wife were interviewed on a television program while they had breakfast in West German Ambassador Wilhelm Grewe's residence.

sack with them to carry the loot.

They politely inquired of each victim as they taped him whether or not personal rings were insured.

"Mine aren't," said Irving Getz, a Miami jeweler who said he just happened to be there visiting. So they didn't take his.

Jack M. Werst, one of the four firm officers, said he thought they wouldn't take his rings if they knew they could be traced. So he told them his were insured. They took them.

It took the bandits about 15 minutes to loot the entire office. They also took several thousand dollars in cash.

As they started out one of two entrances into the hallway, one called sharply to the other, "Stop! Take off those white gloves."

Besides Al Levinson and Wertz, two other company officers robbed were Stanley Bud Levinson, son of Al, and Joseph Bickel.

Bud Levinson estimated the loss at a wholesale price of more than $250,000.

"That's close to half a million retail," he said.

A secretary, usually in the front office, already had left for the day, carrying some packages to be mailed. That room was vacant.

Between the first and second offices of the suite is a small bullet-proof glass peep-hole. The door there, however, was unlocked.

In the third room the two Levinsons were talking to their "customer" when the second gunman barged in.

Directly across the hall from the diamond import firm is the office of the Costa Rican consul general, Dr. Gonozalo J. Gallgos. He wasn't in.

The jewel merchants said it took them about a minute to free themselves after the bandits left. It was too late when they shouted for help.

Police theorize the holdup men possibly walked down one or two flights of stairs, then took an elevator.

They timed their escape durnig the peak of the rush hour. Apparently nobody noticed them leaving.

Heavy Snows Forecast for Central U.S. as Rain Covers the East

Forecasts For Today

INDIAN RIVER, NAPLES AND LAKE OKEECHOBEE AREAS: Fair Tuesday and Tuesday night. High in the low 80's, night low in the mid 60's. Variable winds, mostly southeasterly 5 to 15 mph.

FT. LAUDERDALE, PALM BEACH AND KEYS AREAS: Fair Tuesday and Tuesday night. Chance of a few brief early morning showers. High in the low 80's, night low near 70. Southeasterly winds to 10 to 20 mph.

MARINE — Jacksonville through the Florida Straits: Variable winds at five to 15 miles an hour extreme north and southeasterly winds at 10 to 20 miles an hour central and south portions. National Summary

In the wake of a disturbance over the Rockies, clearing skies provided sunshine over southern California and parts of Arizona while another surge of moisture overspread the Pacific northwest.

Snow extended from Washington State into the mountains of northern California with rains along the coast, occasionally reaching heavy intensity, along the northern California shoreline.

In addition to the severe ice storm, heavy snows are forecast for parts of the upper plains and Mississippi Valley and locally heavy accumulations are likely in the Colorado mountains.

Warnings include prospects for four inches or more in parts of Nebraska, Iowa and Wisconsin, and heavy snowfall may develop in South Dakota and southern Minnesota.

Mild temperatures with widespread cloudiness and rain will cover broad areas of the east.

Showers or thunderstorms are anticipated from the southern plains eastward into the Mississippi, Ohio and Tennessee Valleys as well as the Gulf states.

Scattered snows remain in the outlook for most of the west and may be locally heavy in the California mountains as rain moves southward through the state.

Pirate lads and lassies, armed to the teeth, cling to the rigging of the only buccaneer ship still afloat as it sails up Tampa Bay. The ship, the Jose Gaspar, brought the bold crew of freebooters Monday for the annual "capture" of Tampa, the feature of Gasparilla Day. Guns booming, the pirates "routed" defending ships and forces, swarmed ashore, and received the mayor's surrender. Then, following the policy of "if you can't lick 'em, join 'em," thousands of the "defenders" joined in a huge parade and the other features of Gasparilla Week. The "attack" commemorates the capture of Tampa more than 150 years ago by the pirate, Jose Gaspar.

'6-Year Dream' Golf Course Materializes in Mangroves

By CHARLES H. DEAL
Herald Correspondent

MARATHON — A dream of more than six years standing has been realized by one of the foremost developers of the Florida Keys.

Millionaire parachute manufacturer Stanley Switlik decided a half dozen years ago that Marathon needed a bank, good hotels and a golf course. His first ambition was completed more than two years ago and Marathon State Bank now has total deposits of more than three million dollars.

His second dream, that of a golf course, matured Saturday after three years of converting a 155-acre mangrove swampland into an 18-hole championship course. It is the only regulation course between Miami and Havana, Cuba. Key West has a short course.

Rear Adm. Francis McCorkle, commandant of the Key West Naval Base, and other prominent county and state businessmen became the first to try out the nearly completed golf course. The private sneak preview was kicked off with a dinner in the maintenance-caddy house.

On the drawing board for the unique course, which is virtually surrounded by manmade lakes and Boot Key Harbor, is a 12,000 square foot clubhouse to be completed this year. It will be outfitted with billiards downstairs and a ball room on the upper floor. Surrounding it will be a swimming pool, tennis courts and a terrace, all overlooking a massive yacht basin.

Already, cost of the project has exceeded one-million dollars.

The course is par 72, 6,500 yards in length, with sand traps and ponds. Switlik claims it the only course in the country where sharks and barracuda are a natural hazard for golfers. The fish abound at the harbor approach of the fairways.

Stanley Switlik
. . . no golfer, but—

His original idea of building a golf course in the Marathon area was an impulsive one, said Switlik. The property was originally intended to be subdivided for homes. A realtor showed the New Jersey parachute scion the 330-acre property on a Thursday; the deal was closed Sunday of the same week, in February 1953.

"It seemed a crime," he told his dinner guests, "to chop up such a beautiful piece of property," Switlik said, although he does not play golf.

The serious golfer will love the course, Switlik speculates, because of its unusual lay. Nine of the holes are on one island, the remaining nine on another. It is necessary to drive across water to reach holes 10 and 18.

Problems encountered in creating the course were primarily those of nature.

An estimated 2,000,000 cubic yards of fill, mostly marl, was pumped into the area and allowed to dry and settle between 18 months and two years before any attempt was made to work it. Even so conventional trucks were unable to work in the area.

Transportation with fill and other materials was solved by use of the Athey wagon, a World War II innovation for traversing swampy combat areas. The wagon is a steel body mounted high atop caterpillar wheels. A tractor supplies the driving power.

The first nine holes cover a distance of 3,187 yards and a 35 par. The second nine, on a separate island — now bridged with fill — is 6,292 yards and a par 37.

Leaching the salt from the course was the biggest headache encountered by engineers. Tide waters on many occasions killed off strands of grass. Some of it was planted as many as five times, mostly by Seminole Indians.

Col. John Olin, retired, U.S. Army, is manager of Sombero Yacht and Golf Course. He has been on the job more than a year.

Golden Gets 10 Years

PENSACOLA — (UPI) — Ed Golden Jr., 23, of Milton, was sentenced Monday to two concurrent 10-year prison terms for assault with intent to commit second degree murder, and for shooting into the home of his girl friend in June.

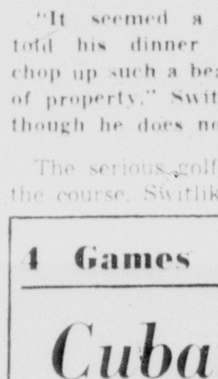
Golden will begin the 10-years in state prison in May, when he completes a six-month sentence in Escambia County prison camp for assault and battery against Mrs. Pearce Jernigan, mother of the girl.

Golden was acquitted of murder in the fatal shooting of Deputy Sheriff Len Burton Adams and acquitted of assault with intent to commit first degree murder in the wounding of Deputy Leslie Brock.

4 Games Set

Cuban Stars to Play KW Baseball Club

KEY WEST — International baseball takes over here this weekend when a Cuban all-star nine headed by major leaguer Frank Herrera clashes with Mike's Hardware team, the local champs for the past two years.



HERRERA

Herrera, a former Miami Marlin now with the Philadelphia Phillies, brings his all-star team from Santiago de las Vegas, his home town in Cuba.

The local club, however, has the top hitter in the league at present — Monk Kerr, with a .375 average. Half a dozen other players in the club also top the .300 average.

Games are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday in Wicker Stadium. Sunday there will be a doubleheader, with the first game getting underway at 1 p.m.

Highway Pushed

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The designation of a highway from Tampa to Miami, as a part of the national defense highway system, was proposed in a bill Monday by Rep. James A. Haley (D., Fla.).

Such designation, he said, would assure federal payment of 90 per cent of the cost of a four-lane controlled access road between the two cities.

Naples Mayor's Plea Invalid

'Politics' Ruled Out Of Taxpayers' Suit

By TOM MORGAN
Naples Bureau Chief

NAPLES — Mayor W. Roy Smith has lost a major point in the taxpayers' suit begun against him last year by Tom Brooker.

The Second District Court of Appeals has denied Smith's attorney's contention that Brooker came into court "with unclean hands" because he filed the suit as part of a political campaign against the mayor.

Brooker brought suit Jan. 28, 1958, charging Smith with getting more pay than the charter-allowed $35 monthly salary; illegally selling gas and oil to the city as Standard Oil distributor, and refusing Brooker access to city records.

Smith countered that Brooker had been endeavoring to cloud the February election in which Smith successfully opposed John Zyck. Smith said Brooker was backing Zyck and brought the suit to aid his man's campaign.

The court overturned an earlier ruling against Brooker by Judge Lynn Gerald of Fort Myers. The appeals court held Judge Gerald erred in allowing the unclean hands argument to be pleaded.

SMITH

However, the court upheld Geralds' refusal to grant Brooker's motion for a summary decree.

The appeals court said, "This should in no way be construed as holding the improprieties charged are baseless or removed from the rather unfavorable light cast by the plaintiff's complaint. The matter is to be determined by the chancellor (Gerald) on its merits at a final hearing."

The question of subpenaing of city records was remanded to Gerald "for further proceedings consistent with the views expressed."

Also at issue in the suit is the $75 monthly gas allowance paid the mayor and councilmen. Two councilmen, Francis Ford and Arnie Haynes, have refused to accept any gas allowances since elected last February, although the city continues to make out the checks and holds them in its files.

The suit seeks to make Smith repay $6,012 he has received beyond his salary for expenses and sales to the city, to enjoin him from further sales, and to see if other persons should be made parties to the suit, presumably other councilmen.

Smith has offered to refund $35 in a salary check overpayment, $353 for insurance premiums, and has ended gas sales to the city although he has denied doing "anything contrary to good morals or the law."

The mayor has further urged that if Brooker be disqualified from continuing the suit that some other taxpayer be allowed to continue it and obtain clarification of the issues.

Cudjoe Key Bought for AF Range

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, — (UPI) — The Air Force reported Monday it had acquired one of the Florida Keys for a radar and communications station to help track missiles and aircraft tested on the Eglin Gulf of Mexico range.

The new site will be on Cudjoe Key, about 20 miles northwest of Key West and about 90 miles south of Naples. It will be the southernmost installation in a chain that extends south from Eglin.

The range extends about 500 miles south of Fort Walton Beach. It currently is being used to test two models of the BOMARC missile and two smaller missiles, the Hound Dog and the Hustler, as well as advance types of aircraft being evaluated by the Air Proving Ground Center at the northwest Florida base.

Other sites already are under construction at Cape San Blas, near Apalachicola; Anclote, near Tarpon Springs; and Marco Island, just south of Naples.

Invitations to bid have been issued by the Jacksonville office of the U.S. Army District Corps of Engineers for construction of a forward scatter building and a temporary road on Cudjoe Key.

Forward scatter is a relatively new means of communication by bouncing radio waves off the ionosphere. It can transmit over distances of up to 300 miles, although the use by the APGC will be over lesser distances, among the four relay sites to the control center on the Eglin reservation.

7 Deaths Might Be Off Toll

MELBOURNE — A little of the shock — as far as statistics go anyway — might be taken out of Brevard County's 1959 highway accident record, already the worst in history.

The State Department of Public Safety is reviewing the crash in which seven Orlando youths died after their car hit a pipeline strung across Cocoa Beach. That boosted the county's toll to 10, against 25 for all of 1958 and 16 for 1957.

Department repersentatives are checking to determine whether it should go into a classification other than highway fatalities — for the official record.

Charles Pratt Dies at 83

Charles Pratt, 83, who formerly operated about 100 acres of avocado and lime groves in Homestead, died Monday.

He had been a Miami resident since 1929 when he started operation of the Homestead groves. He also had about 300 acres of undeveloped woodland in the same area.

PRATT

For several years he was president of the Avocado and Lime Growers Association. He retired from the groves in 1949.

Surviving are his wife, Agnes; two sons, Dr. Kenneth and John C., both of Toronto; a daughter, Mrs. A. P. Power, Calgary, Alberta, Canada; a brother and a sister.

Services will be Wednesday.

Collier School Bonds Sold at 'Good' Rates; $10.50-Foot Cost Set

Herald Bureau

EVERGLADES — A surprisingly good bid of 3.96 interest was the successful one for 1.49 million dollars in Collier County school bonds sold here Monday. Winner of the issue was Ira Haupt and Associates, New York, who beat out four other firms.

The issue is the first part of what will total 2.9 million dollars in bonds. It will require payment of $862,206 in interest over the 1962-81 period.

The money from yesterday's sale will provide for additions to Immokalee Negro and white schools and new Everglades High and Shadowlawn Elementary in Naples.

The board approved hiring K. Whitney Dalzell of Clearwater to design the new Naples High School coming under the second part of the bond issue.

Dalzell assured board members by telephone that he would do the job for a 5.5 per cent fee, hold footage costs on the 70,000 square-foot buildings to a maximum $10.50 a foot, pay half the costs of a clerk of the works, and have plans ready for award of bids about December.

"Dalzell seems the best risk on a cost basis," said Chairman Leo Chickering.

Board members have been concerned with school costs which have run up to $17 a foot on remote buildings in the county.

"There are any number of architects in Naples who could do the job," agreed Pitt Orick, "but from past work Dalzell has enough of a contractors' following so we'll get a good price."

Dalzell has designed schools built at $8.50 a foot.

The board approved preliminary plans of Architect Bolton McBryde for Bethune Negro School, Immokalee. The seven classroom addition will have 8,476 square feet of space and a $10 a foot budgeted cost.

Cooperation Indicated for Borrowing

EVERGLADES — The School Board's $35,000 shortage from a tax roll error may be made up by cooperation with the County Commission and borrowing from school bond funds not immediately needed.

The loan could be repaid when tax money begins to come in next fall, said Supt. William D. Reynolds, although he urged a bank loan be used instead of the bond money suggested by Pitt Orick.

The board actually went no farther Monday than to "spread upon the minutes" its intention to cooperate with the county commission which promised the $35,000 originally under a permissive act. The sum will have to be reduced because of tax roll reductions due to failure to deduct homestead exemptions on Naples property.

The funds are needed to finish buying land for a new Naples High School on which bids are expected in December. The school board is also short $22,000 in its own taxes from the same error but no replacement method was suggested for this amount.

Pennies-Pinching School Boss Pays

Herald Bureau

EVERGLADES — Penny-pinching is highly regarded in the Collier County school administration.

One taxpayer at the school board meeting Monday complimented the group for sending out meeting notices with only a three cent stamp so the receiver had to pay the extra penny.

Supt. W. D. Reynolds, redfaced, admitted he was trying to save money by using the three cent local rate but forgot to post the mail at the Post Office where the rate is effective and instead dropped them in a corner box.

He refunded a penny each in his own funds to the taxpayer, board attorney and two board members.

Naples Police Catch Boys

Herald Bureau

NAPLES — Two Miami juveniles age 13 and 15 — one of whom was already on probation from Juvenile Court — were picked up here at 3:15 a.m. Monday by police, according to Chief S. B. Caruthers.

Sgt. Ed Helnick said he found a 1956 Chevrolet two-door sedan parked next to Jack's Diner and discovered the two juveniles in the car. They said a brother was staying at a motel in town but had no money for a room for them.

Miami Police said the Chevrolet had been stolen there Sunday at 9:30 p.m. Papers inside identified it as belonging to Theodore L. Grippo, 750 E. 31st St., Hialeah.

Act Quick, Fascell Tells Keys

Two Sites Offered Against Collier Bid

By HARRY CAICEDO
Key West Bureau Chief

KEY WEST — The Florida Keys Aqueduct Commission Monday opened the door to negotiations with the U. S. Interior Department in an effort (1) to have a government salt water conversion plant located in the Keys, and (2) to obtain an additional 1,000,000 gallons of water daily for thirsty Monroe County.

The commission acted at the prompting of U.S. Rep. Dante B. Fascell, who urged that immediate action could secure for Key West construction of the proposed sea-to-fresh water conversion plant.

The commission agreed to negotiate "any reasonable contract" with the federal government for the purchase of water from any conversion or desalination plant located in Monroe County.

It also made available for the construction of such a plant a choice of two sites owned by the aqueduct — one in Marathon and one on Stock Island.

Details of what a "reasonable contract" would be were not disclosed by the commission, but it is assumed that it means a price on water comparable to that which the aqueduct is not paying.

All water used in the Keys is bought from the Navy at 55 cents per thousand gallons. The water is brought through a pipeline stretching 150 miles from Key West to Florida City.

The conversion plants, which are of an experimental nature, have been under discussion for some time in government circles. The proposal at present is to build five, three of them in the continental U.S. One of these is contemplated for the Gulf Coast.

In a letter to Merville Rosam, chairman of the Aqueduct Commission, Fascell indicates the competition which exists among interested communities for one of these plants.

"Departmental officials here in Washington are pressured from all sides and are therefore most interested in bringing this matter to an early conclusion," Fascell wrote.

Key West's Mayor Delio Cobo Saturday said he had reliable information that Naples was being favorably considered for the plant. Cobo wired Fascell and other Washington officials urging further consideration of Key West.

Fascell, however, in his letter to Rosam appeared optimistic of the Keys' chances. He said he had "many length discussions" with David S. Jenkins, director of the saline water office, Interior Department.

"I am led to believe that a contract can be negotiated which in effect would allow the aqueduct to purchase about one million gallons per day output, when the plant is completed, at the going wholesale rate," Fascell said.

Homestead Filing Due

KEY WEST — Thousands of homeowners in Monroe County stand to be hit with increased taxes this year by failing to apply for homestead exemption, County Tax Assessor Joe Allen has warned.

Property owners who fail to file for exemption before the April 1 deadline will be turned down thereafter, Allen said.

He called attention to sections of the Florida Constitution and opinions of the Attorney General which define eligibility for homestead exemption, stressing residency.

Homestead exemption applies mainly to owners who reside on their property and "in good faith" make it their permanent home.

Allen indicated that home owners who rent out and live elsewhere are generally not entitled to receive the exemption privilege.

Johns: Extend NAACP Probe

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Sen. Charley Johns said Monday he will ask the Legislature to extend the life of his investigating committee so it can complete a probe into possible Communist infiltration of the NAACP.

Johns, of Starke, said it does not appear the committee will have a chance to finish the investigation before the Legislature convenes April 7 because of numerous court suits testing its powers.

Unless extended another two years, the Johns committee dies June 30.

"I think the NAACP is trying to tire us out in court," Johns declared, "but they are not going to do it."

Committee hearings in Miami were halted when several witnesses refused to testify or produce NAACP records. The Supreme Court has twice ruled on suits challenging the committee's powers, and the NAACP now has taken the fight to federal district court in Miami.

The Supreme Court upheld legality of the committee and its authority to bring contempt proceedings against witnesses who refuse to testify.

In another ruling, the court said the NAACP cannot be required to turn over its rank and file membership rolls, but the committee has a right to know if suspected Communists are members of the race organization and NAACP officials can be required to give this information under oath.

The court said the Legislature has the right to explore the membership of any organization suspected of being the victim of surreptitious infiltration by subversives and witnesses must answer any question pertinent to this inquiry.

Johns said the committee was all set to resume public hearings in Miami when suit was filed before Federal Judge Emmett Choate.

Johns said he has nothing to report on the committee's investigation into alleged homosexuality at the University of Florida. He said the committee has not yet filed a report with University President J. Wayne Reitz.

The senator said the committee will meet in the near future to discuss recommendations it will make to the 1959 Legislature, but no date or location has been set.

Liberties Group Hits Morals Probe

The Florida Civil Liberties Union Monday protested investigation of homosexuals at the University of Florida by a legislative committee.

In a long, detailed letter to Senator Charley Johns, chairman of the investigating committee, the Civil Liberties Union asked the investigation be turned over to university officials.

The protest letter said the Civil Liberties Union looks upon the committee's investigation as a "usurpation of a judicial function."

Simon said the group feels "violators of our laws against nature should be tried in a court of law . . . and not by a legislative investigating committee."

A group of university professors also has registered a protest with the committee, Simon said.

Mental Problems Mounting

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — Mental health is such an acute problem in Florida today hundreds of millions of dollars would be necessary for treatment, a health official said Monday.

Dr. Wayne Yeager, director of the Bureau of Mental Health of the State Board of Health, told the annual conference of county health officers the State Hospital at Chattahoochee cares for 10,000 patients yearly and that there has been a gain of 3,146 since 1952.

But he said on a basis of Florida's estimated 4,450,000 population now, using a conservative 1 per cent as needing treatment, there are 44,500 who have mental and emotional illness.

He said it would cost 12 million dollars a year to maintain these patients, but that in addition facilities to take care of them would cost over 330 million dollars.

On top of all this, Dr. Yeager said it would cost 100 million dollars to build centers to take care of the estimated 1,500 persons who need yearly treatment for alcoholism in Florida.

The problem of caring for mentally retarded children is over and above this and "is almost overwhelming," he said.

Dr. Yeager said "new programs are needed but a great deal can be accomplished immediately if old programs are sharpened and reoriented to mental health."

RED CROSS drive chairman for 1959 in Martin County is Henry Kindred, merchant and school board member. The annual kick-off dinner for the drive will be held March 2 at Stuart. The drive has a goal of $9,000.

UF Enrolls 2nd Negro As Student

GAINESVILLE — (UPI) — Mrs. Daphne Duval, 53-year-old teacher, became the second Negro to enroll in the University of Florida graduate school Monday.

Mrs. Duval, who teaches at the Negro high school here, will take a single graduate course, "professional service," which meets one evening a week.

The university announced last week she had qualified for entrance in the college of education graduate school. She registered for the course by mail and meets her first class tonight.

George Starke Jr., law student from Sanford-Orlando, was the first Negro to enroll after a U.S. court order in June to desegregate the graduate schools.

Starke satisfactorily completed his first semester work and is now beginning his second semester. Not a single incident was reported after his enrollment, and college officials said they did not expect any now.

2 Missile Workers Missing

Herald Bureau

CAPE CANAVERAL — Two employes of an island missile tracking station have been missing since their boat capsized Sunday off Carter Cay in the Bahamas, the Air Force said Monday.

They were presumed dead Monday, but an air and sea search was continuing. Search planes found the boat wrecked on a reef early Monday.

A third passenger in the 18-foot pleasure boat was safe.

The man, Hyman Lesnick, a radio tower maintenance man, swam ashore for help leaving the other two clinging to the overturned boat.

Lesnick reached Carter Cay after a five-hour swim, the Air Force said.

The two missing men were identified as Floyd J. King, 51, of Vero Beach, a mechanic, and Robert Woolard, 32, of Rockingham, N.C., a cook.

The three are employed by Pan American World Airways — prime air force contractor on the Atlantic missile range — at the missile tracking station on Grand Bahama Island.

They were on a weekend fishing outing when their boat capsized at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Legislature To Fet Yates

MELBOURNE — The Florida Legislature is arranging a Gen. Yates Day — honoring Maj. Gen. Donald N. Yates, Air Force Missile Test Center commander — which will be during the 1959 session.

Brevard Rep. James H. Pritt said Gen. and Mrs. Yates will be taken to the rostrum and introduced to the House of Representatives, and then go to the floor of the Senate for an introduction.

Midwest Slips, Slides on a Giant Ice Sheet

Pea Soup Fog Adds To Peril

New England At Coldest

CHICAGO —(UPI)— The Midwest slipped and slithered on a mammoth sheet of ice Monday.

When Midwesterners weren't cracking their shins and breaking their bones on the glazed sidewalks, they were groping through dense, zero-visibility fog.

From Kansas to Ohio, freezing rain and drizzle laid down an ice cover which crippled cities, closed schools, and made driving a daredevil feat. Warm Gulf air created the pea-soup fog.

The East was scheduled to hit the skids Monday night. Meanwhile, New England froze in its coldest weather of the season — a 34-below reading at Newport, Vt.

To the West, heavy snow warnings were out for parts of Nebraska, South Dakota, Iowa, and Minnesota.

Colorado battled not only ice and fog, but snows up to 16 inches deep which closed one mountain pass and packed all the others with snow. Travel without chains was impossible over the Sierra Mountains from Reno, Nev., to California.

The ice belt stretched from Kansas through parts of Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. Travel was so dangerous that the weather bureau urged: "All except urgent travel should be abandoned . . ."

Illinois had already counted three traffic deaths blamed on the ice and Iowa one.

Chicago, Detroit, Kansas City and St. Louis were among the larger Midwest population centers afflicted by the ice storm.

Tampa Sun Downs 22

Tampa —(AP)— A hot sun which shot temperatures into the mid-80s felled at least 22 persons at Monday's Gasparilla invasion parade.

Ambulances had a busy day moving the heat victims from downtown to Tampa hospitals. Five of those stricken were marchers in high school bands. They were among the more than 600,000 spectators who lined the parade route.

The scores of attractive girls decorating the floats came well-prepared. Most were in bathing suits or scanty costumes.

Another casualty of the festivity was a member of the crew on the pirate invasion ship, Jose Gasparilla. The unnamed buccaneer fell into the Hillsborough River when he attempted to make a gallant jump to shore. He was pulled intact, but soggy, from the water.

$250,000 Lost In 2nd Gem Grab

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

Two "gentlemen" gunmen efficiently ransacked a downtown Miami diamond importer's office of $250,000 in jewels Monday afternoon, then fled in a crowded elevator eight floors to the safety of jammed sidewalks.

The record holdup operation took 15 minutes, and was the second largest gem haul in Greater Miami in 24 hours. A room prowler snatched $400,000 in gems from an eighth-floor Americana Hotel suite Sunday.

According to the victims' story, one of the gunmen, who bought a $1,800 ring from Levinson last Friday for cash, entered the office first.

Moments later at 5:20 p.m., a nattily dressed accomplice, about 30, busted into the three-room suite wielding a .45 caliber automatic.

"All right, get on the floor!" he said. "Lie face down. This is a holdup.

"Now, nobody is going to get hurt. Just don't move."

The other robber, the one posing as a customer, then pulled a gun.

"Is there a buzzer in here?" he asked.

Nobody said anything.

One by one, the gunmen made the victims sit up with their hands over their eyes, and then bound them with adhesive, the victims told police.

The jewels, lying in sample boxes in an open safe, were mostly diamonds — some mounted and some not.

Two buyers for the company returned from New York City only Jan. 31 with a new supply for the winter tourist season.

The holdup men, both wearing suits and ties, brought a

Collins Met Johnson in Race Huddle

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— The governor's office disclosed Monday LeRoy Collins had a face-to-face meeting with Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas a week ago on Collins' plan that Congress set up a federal-state commission to deal with the school racial crisis.

William Durden, executive assistant to the governor, said Collins flew to Washington in response to a phone call from Johnson.

Durden confirmed that the Collins' plan was the subject of their discussions, but said any details of the Collins-Johnson meeting must come from Collins or the Texas senator.

Both Collins and Johnson, the Senate majority leader, are regarded as moderates on the racial question. Johnson was a non-signer of the Southern Manifesto of 1956 which all Florida congressmen and senators except Rep. Dante Fascell of Miami signed.

Recently, Collins told his news conference he had written Johnson about his plan and asked an opportunity to discuss it with him. Johnson telephoned Collins about two weeks ago and the Washington conference on Jan. 31 resulted.

Collins has proposed that Congress provide for a commission from each state, appointed by the president with approval of the governor of the state.

2½-Billion Aid Offered Schools

WASHINGTON — UPI) — The Eisenhower administration Monday proposed a new program of aid to communities and colleges which cannot afford needed new construction.

The long-range aid program would cost the federal government an estimated 2½ billion dollars over a 25-year period. Details of draft bills were outlined to newsmen by Secretary Arthur S. Flemming of the Health, Welfare and Education Department.

He said the plan was "consistent with the fiscal policies of this administration." He said it could be handled within the framework of President Eisenhower's narrowly balanced 77-billion-dollar 1960 budget and will require no cash payments in fiscal 1960.

Under the proposed program for elementary and high school construction, the federal government would agree to pay principal and interest on new school construction bonds on a 50-50 matching basis with the states.

Flemming said the maximum annual federal payment on elementary and high school bonds would be 85 million dollars and the aggregate potential cost would be about two billion dollars over approximately 25 years.

The program, Flemming said, would be available only to communities which lack the resources to finance their own classroom needs.

The plan would be in effect for new construction started in the next five years. Flemming said it would cover up to three billion dollars worth of construction of elementary and high school buildings.

Under the program for college classrooms and housing, the federal government would put up an annual payment of 25 million dollars to retire debts.

The federal government would annually advance half of the funds required by needy local school districts to pay the principal and interest charges on bonds issued by the districts to finance school construction projects, if the states in which such districts are located undertake to put up the remaining half of the payments.

Yugoslavs Laud U.S. Home-Life

DANIA — Fire building experts from Communist Yugoslavia praised "American home-life" here Monday, but boasted they could outstrip our building industry with equal resources.

The three men and two women said they were impressed by the pleasant home-life they've found in American homes they've visited.

"But," said one of the ladies, "give us the same climate, the same raw materials, and under the Communist system we'll leave you behind in home building."

The five Slavs are here on an eight-week tour under the auspices of federal agencies, observing building methods and materials in the country. Monday they visited the R. H. Wright Inc., concrete plant here.

Tow, Zivan Miladinovic and Radomir Mihailovic, are construction engineers. The other three, Miss Nevenka Budic, Miss Vukosava Dobricanin and Jernej Janenic, are technical experts studying chemicals and materials used in construction.

Though they admittedly were impressed with American home-life, they dodged a question about Red China's practice of breaking up homes and putting people into communes.

Shaking their heads, they went into a huddle with interpreter Konstantin Grubesic, and came up with this wry bit of humor:

"Ask Mikoyan."

Cloud Ceiling Raised

U.S. Restricts Electra Landings

NEW YORK —(AP)— The federal government Monday limited bad weather landings by the new Electra jet-prop airliners. The safety restrictions —expected to be only temporary — followed last week's East River crash that cost 65 lives.

Nationally, for the time being, the cloud ceilings for such flights were raised 600 feet and visibility requirements doubled. This is intended to give pilots more leeway in landings when they come off instruments and into open weather.

"We're happy to cooperate," said a spokesman for American Airlines, whose Electra Flight 320 crashed into the river Tuesday night when it undershot LaGuardia Field. There were only eight survivors of the disaster.

American is hopeful that the restrictions — which also apply to Electra jet-props flown by Eastern Airlines— will be short-lived. Eastern, in directing compliance with the restrictions, spoke of "a temporary restriction of not more than three days."

The new safety limits were set by the Federal Aviation Agency, the new over-all government regulatory agency for commercial air operations. The FAA said:

"The restrictions are temporary, voluntary on the part of the airlines, and the airlines have accepted the restrictions so that the order is in force now."

The FAA is directing the intensive investigation now under way into the Feb. 3 East River crash. Thus far, there has been no indication as to why the plane plunged into the river in bad weather just short of LaGuardia.

If it eventually is determined that weather was not a factor in the disaster, the new restrictions presumably will be softened or removed. The FAA said they will remain in effect while the probe is going on.

Flight 320, inbound from Chicago, began its landing on instruments, with a ceiling of between 300 and 400 feet and visibility of about two miles. The federally regulated limits

Herter Is Left In Charge

Secretary Needs Hernia Operation

By FELIX BELAIR JR.
The New York Times Service

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles took an indefinite leave of absence Monday to have an operation for a hernia condition and to complete his recovery from an intestinal disorder.

In a letter to President Eisenhower, which was made public immediately by the White House, the secretary asked permission to turn over his duties to Undersecretary Christian A. Herter or, in his absence, to Undersecretary C. Douglas Dillon "for a short time."

The secretary told the President in his letter that he "would expect, after a few weeks, to resume fully the duties of the office." James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, added to this that "there is no sign whatsoever of anything malignant" in connection with the secretary's decision to undergo surgery at this time.

Dulles underwent a successful operation for a cancerous colon lesion in December 1956. Last December he was again hospitalized with diverticulitis, an inflammation of the colon, but his doctors reported that there had been no recurrence of the malignancy at that time.

Secretary Dulles' letter to the President read:

"I should like your permission to turn over to Undersecretary Herter, or in his absence, to Undersecretary Dillon, the duties of secretary of state for a short period.

"My doctors advise that I should have an operation for a recently developed hernia; and I have not wholly thrown off the effects of the inflammation of the colon which occurred last December.

"I should accordingly like to devote a few weeks to physical recuperation, and also have some time when, free from other responsibilities, I could concentrate on the complicated and grave problems raised by the Soviet threats regarding Berlin and the Allied response thereto.

"I would be available for consultation with you and my associates and would expect, after a few weeks, to resume fully the duties of the office.

"I regret the circumstances which lead me to ask for this

Up, Up and Away!

Rosemary Mudie, the lone woman member of the daring expedition in the balloon "The Small World," the year's most thrilling true adventure story, today brings her first-person narrative to the take-off. This is the first publication of the full account of the perilous venture.

* * *

By ROSEMARY MUDIE

The take-off of our balloon from Tenerife Island in our attempt to span the Atlantic was a nightmare come to life.

We had picked the Canary Islands, which lie about 60 miles off the African coast, as the best launching place on the advice of meteorologists. It was a sheer coincidence that from this same island Columbus set out in 1492 on his first voyage to the New World, but we thought it augured well for our own expedition.

El Globo, as the natives called "The Small World," was the No. 1 topic of conversation among the islanders. From the moment of our first appearance there we had a swarm of well-wishers and helpers around our launching site on Playa de la Tejita beach, near the tiny fishing town of El Medano.

A huge ground sheet had been spread out so that the balloon would not be punctured by sharp bits of debris and then the deflated 46-foot canopy itself was spread on top of it. The net was in place over it and firmly anchored with sand bags. Nearby in an orderly pile were the 690 cylinders of hydrogen gas for the four hour inflation job. Now we were waiting on the weather.

The sea trip down from Southampton was on a ship that obviously was more accustomed to carrying bananas than balloons. We were grateful for the free ride they gave us for though we were dealing with a lighter-than-air vehicle, our equipment weighed 45 tons!

* * *

The Hairdresser Does His Share

After all the launching preparations were completed, I decided that there was still one thing for me to do personally — I had my hair done.

It turned out to be quite an experience, for the shop became crowded with people who wanted to see the woman who was going on "El Globo." I was told later that some of them were comparing me with Manolete, the Spanish bullfighter, as the arch-symbol of bravery, which was the purest nonsense.

When the hairdresser was finished, he refused to accept any money, indicating that this was his contribution to our flight. Little did I reckon that it would be five weeks before I could have my hair done again and that three of those weeks would be spent at sea in an open boat. I left his shop knowing how a celebrity feels, and I must say that I enjoyed it.

"All right, boys and girls, we're going this time!" Bushy Eiloart said. It was just after one a.m. Thursday morning, Dec. 11, when our now-qualified balloon pilot made this decision.

We welcomed the decision after the more than a week of parties mixed with the long wait for the right weather. A beacon was lit on a nearby hill to call the volunteer motorists

Florida Official Accepted Printers' Favors

By JOHN BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE—A top employee of the Florida Department of Agriculture said Monday that he has accepted favors from printers, but said they had not influenced his handling of printing bids for the department.

Jack Shoemaker, director of the department's bureau of immigration, which distributes several publications on Florida, said he received some free personal photographic work from Granger Studio and Printing Co. of Tallahassee after the firm got a state job.

And he said he was a guest at several fishing parties aboard the boat of Charles Rosenberg, president of Rose Printing Co., Tallahassee, and other firms.

Shoemaker explained that he asked Granger to submit a bill for personal family photographs made for him but that he never received the bill.

He said the had been invited by the Rose Printing Co. sales manager to go on fishing trips and "considered it personal business since it was on my own time."

Forrest Granger of the printing firm said he couldn't recall any conversation about a bill and considered the matter closed when the estimated 17-dollars worth of photos was delivered. He said his small firm does only a small amount of state business.

Of $319,000 spent by the agriculture department, Rose Co. and affiliates got $100,000 of business. They got $61,000 of the $130,000 worth of printing business supervised by Shoemaker.

Shoemaker handled publication of the agriculture department's 71-page biennial report recently which cost $1.31 a page. Rose got the bid for the color-splashed job.

Shoemaker said he called for the use of color, in spite of added cost, because he felt it would make the report more attractive. He ordered 1,000 copies.

Shoemaker said he heard rumors "that some printers were getting together on prices" before submitting bids on state jobs, but he said he didn't hear them identified.

He said he submits a standard bid form to five printers for sealed bids on jobs for the immigration bureau. In many cases, he said, bidding is limited to Tallahassee printers because of deadline and proofreading problems.

The immigration bureau is mainly charged with supplying information on Florida agriculture and promoting various phases of the industry.

A legislative committee headed by Sen. Tom Adams of Orange Park recently asserted that some bureau publications duplicate promotional projects of the Florida Development Commission.

Some out-of-town printers have complained they aren't getting a fair shake from state agencies in the doling out of printing jobs.

Rep. John E. Mathews Jr. of Jacksonville has called for a legislative probe of printing costs and for legislation to put printing under supervision of the state purchasing commission.

Gov. LeRoy Collins has said he will support Mathews and will make another attempt to put printing under central purchasing. His effort to do so in the 1957 legislative session was unsuccessful.

Honduran Rebels Put To Flight

By PAUL P. KENNEDY
The New York Times Service

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — It appeared virtually certain Monday that government forces had retaken the small barracks city of Santa Barbara, about 150 miles northwest of here, after that city had been held by rebel forces over the weekend.

N.Y. Times News Service

A presidential house spokesman confirmed that late-afternoon messages were picked up over the radio station, Voz del Junco, announcing the recapture. A voice making the announcement claimed to be that of Maj. Alonso Flores Guerra, of the First Battalion here in the capital. The spokesman said the voice had been verified.

The message said 130 rebels were captured and that the bulk of the rebel forces were fleeing westward toward Copan, on the Guatemalan border.

The Voz de Junco radio station in Santa Barbara had announced early Monday morning, "The revolution has begun."

Beginning shortly afterward, the Ministry of War began commandeering private commercial airliners and sending troops from Tegucigalpa to the beleaguered city. During the morning, at least one bomber and two P38 fighter planes of the Honduran Air Force took off in a northwesterly direction.

The later message said the bulk of the rebel troops were fleeing westward toward Copan on the Guatemalan border.

Aside from this there was a complete blackout of information. It appeared certain the government itself had not been able by midday to ascertain the true situation in the northwest.

For several weeks a clandestine radio, presumably located in northern Nicaragua near the Honduran border, has been broadcasting warnings that rebel forces under former Honduran Army Col. Armando Velasquez Cerato would soon invade Honduras and overthrow the administration of President Ramon Villeda Morales.

The slogan of the clandestine radio in those days was, "First the mountains of Honduras, then the valleys and then the capital."

Tegucigalpa itself was calm Monday.

respite, but I have full confidence, as I know you have, in my associates in the Department of State."

Faithfully yours,
John Foster Dulles"

Dulles, who will be 71 on Feb. 25, returned to Washington only Monday morning from talks in London, Paris and Bonn on the position of the Western powers should the Soviet Union make good its threat to terminate the four-power occupation agreement on Berlin.

He called at the executive mansion to report to the President on the talks and to inform him of his decision to undergo an operation. About half an hour after the two men had been closeted in the President's oval study on the second floor, Hagerty was called over from the executive office.

Hagerty acknowledged that it was somewhat unusual for a cabinet officer to submit a letter in asking to be away from his desk for a few weeks, but he added:

"Rather than make a mystery of it, we are putting it on the record."

Restrictions On Electra

at the time were a 400 feet ceiling and one mile visibility.

Under the new restrictions, the ceiling must be at least 1,000 feet and visibility two miles. If the limits are less than that, the plane must circle the airport until the weather improves, or go on to another field that meets the limitations.

Eastern Airlines was the first to put the 68-passenger Lockheed Electra into service early this year. American put them on its Chicago-New York run Jan. 23. Eleven other lines have the plane on order.

Lockheed officials said they would have no immediate comment on the FAA order.

whose auto headlamps would be used to illuminate the scene.

The Winds Grew, Foiled Takeoff

"I've just read the latest meteorological report," he continued, "and it shows light to medium northeasterly winds constant for more than 500 miles west. We better take advantage of it."

But to our bitter disappointment it was not to be so. The wind grew in violence and shifted so we had to abandon the plans for takeoff. By now we were all becoming a bit irritable and peevish. This was the second night we had stood by at action stations only to be forced to scrub the takeoff. The tension and lack of sleep were beginning to take their toll of our nerves.

We wouldn't have been so disappointed then if we had been able to be sure that just 24 hours later we would be successfully airborne and off on our adventure. By eight o'clock that evening, we realized with growing excitement that the wind was dropping and if it continued we would have a chance to get off.

Bushy ordered that the balloon be inflated but at nine o'clock the work stopped because the wind had not dropped. We had reached the point where it was dangerous to inflate any more. My husband Colin and I went back to our tent to catch a nap while Bushy and his son Tim elected to sleep in the care of "The Small World."

* * *

Autos' Headlights Showed the Way

At 11 o'clock we were awakened by the whine of the gas cylinders inflating the balloon again. We realized that Wing Commander Ralph Booth, the head of our launching crew and the former captain of the dirigible R-100, had decided we might be able to make it after all.

Even then, as we approached the balloon, they were fixing the load ring, from which our car was suspended, to the neck of the canopy.

Wearing our blue two-piece flying suits, we four climbed aboard the car. The autos, which were formed in a semicircle about us, had turned on their headlamps to give us light to work by for it was a pitch-black night.

Speed would be needed in untying the sandbags from the balloon net as the wind hadn't dropped as much as we had hoped. Unfortunately, our launching crew was a multilingual one made up of our friends from England and the Spanish volunteers from the island.

Bushy was running around the car giving instructions about the launching bags and shouting out in exasperation every once in a while: "Tell them in Spanish somebody, tell them in Spanish!"

Colin and I were methodically lining up the materials that we might have to throw overboard on a strict priority basis while Tim was making the electrical connections and checking the radios.

Across the Beach, Up, and a Bounce!

The balloon had reached full inflation and Commander Booth shouted: "All right, let them go, let them go." He could scarcely be heard above the excited jabber of Spanish voices. Suddenly the car began to drag across the sand under the prodding of the turbulent gusts of wind.

It bumped, reared and teeter-tottered across the sand as we fought down the panic that was building up within us. I had a horrified feeling that the bottom of the boat was being ground off by the lava-like stones on the black and gold beach.

Though it was difficult for us to maintain our footing, Colin and I were tossing over some of the calcium hydride — with which we had planned to make hydrogen if necessary — and still "The Small World" grated across the sand.

People were running alongside the car and Bushy, ever gallant even under stress, leaned out to kiss his secretary and another girl goodby. Some of the Spaniards were holding on to the rope too long. Now the launchers were stringing out behind us on the sand as we were pulled inexorably toward the sea. Booth was shouting, "More ballast off, Colin, more ballast!"

Suddenly we lurched into the air only to crash down onto the sea and then bounce on the waves several times. I had the horrible feeling that we would never get up.

Car Horns Tooted, People Applauded

It was Bushy who revived our spirits by saying: "Thank God, that's over with. At least we're not going to be torn to pieces on the sand. Now we've got a chance."

It was 1:07 a.m. December 12th, Canary Island time.

Then we began to rise. We were still oscillating and slapping the ocean but each time there was a longer pause between bounces. My final memory was of seeing Peter Elstob, our business representative, silhouetted against the fading car lights. And then I realized that all the car horns were being tooted and that the people on the ground were clapping their hands.

I was suddenly conscious of the intense darkness and wondered if the people could see us.

"Give them a blast on your bugle, Colin," I said, "so that they will know we're all right. They probably think we've gone down in the sea."

Colin did and then Tim had a go at it and all at once we found ourselves laughing.

We had done it! We were headed toward America.

Our wild dream was turning into an incredible adventure. But our jubilation was to be short-lived.

RR Men Seeking Vandals

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
Herald Staff Writer

POMPANO BEACH — Juvenile officers were expected to apprehend late Monday several juveniles who have been throwing switches, and placing obstructions on tracks of the Seaboard Airlines railroad here and in Deerfield Beach.

Detective John Hovey said the culprits had been identified, and the matter turned over to the juvenile bureau.

The youths had been throwing switches on an SAL spur line adjacent to the mainline in the vicinity of Pompano station.

The vandalism had not caused an accident because the incidents were discovered in time by SAL employes.

SAL Special Agent R. I. Zipperer told The Herald, "we don't care if the tampering is on a mainline, or a secondary track — it is equally as serious." He said the incidents had become numerous in the past few days.

At Deerfield Beach a baggage wagon had been moved onto a mainline track last week.

Hovey said "we feel the matter is now under control."

All Agreed: Dulles

Red Blockade Would Find Allies Ready

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said Monday the Western Allies had reached general agreement on steps they would take if Russia imposed a new blockade around Berlin.

Dulles reaffirmed the West's decision to stay in Berlin following his return from Europe. He conferred there with British, French and West German leaders on the Soviet's threat to turn over their section of Berlin to the East German Communists on May 27.

The secretary, who planned to report to President Eisenhower almost immediately, said, "we are willing to talk with the Soviets in a sincere effort to reach agreements" on the German problem. But he said the West was determined to maintain access to Berlin.

"We do not accept the substitution of East Germans for the Soviet Union in its responsibilities toward Berlin and its obligations to us," Dulles said upon his arrival at the Washington airport.

"We are resolved that our position in, and access to, West Berlin shall be preserved. We are in general agreement as to the procedures we shall follow if physical means are invoked to interfere with our rights in this respect."

Dulles did not say what "procedures" the West would follow if the Soviets decided, as they did in 1949, to deny the West access to Berlin. The old German capital is isolated more than 100 miles inside Communist East Germany.

Shortly before Dulles' arrival, Britain announced its complete support for his earlier statement that the West would make no concessions to the Russians without counter proposals from Moscow.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the Russians bore the responsibility for deciding whether there was to be risk of war over Berlin.

Dulles had said as he boarded his plane in Bonn that the Western Allies would be "firm and united for our rights." He did not rule out a conciliatory attitude by the West but excluded any "concessions for which there is no counterpart."

We'll Be Squeezed, Berlin Mayor Says

WASHINGTON —(AP)— West Berlin's Mayor Willy Brandt said Monday his city would be "squeezed like a lemon" by the Russians should the West accept the Soviet ultimatum and withdraw its troops.

Brandt and his wife were interviewed on a television program while they had breakfast in West German Ambassador Wilhelm Grewe's residence.

sack with them to carry the loot.

They politely inquired of each victim as they taped him whether or not personal rings were insured.

"Mine aren't," said Irving Getz, a Miami jeweler who said he just happened to be there visiting. So they didn't take his.

Jack M. Werst, one of the four firm officers, said he thought they wouldn't take his rings if they knew they could be traced. So he told them his were insured. They took them.

It took the bandits about 15 minutes to loot the entire office. They also took several thousand dollars in cash.

As they started out one of two entrances into the hallway, one called sharply to the other, "Stop! Take off those white gloves."

Besides Al Levinson and Wertz, two other company officers robbed were Stanley Bud Levinson, son of Al, and Joseph Bickel.

Bud Levinson estimated the loss at a wholesale price of more than $250,000.

"That's close to half a million retail," he said.

A secretary, usually in the front office, already had left for the day, carrying some packages to be mailed. That room was vacant.

Between the first and second offices of the suite is a small bullet-proof glass peep-hole. The door there, however, was unlocked.

In the third room the two Levinsons were talking to their "customer" when the second gunman barged in.

Directly across the hall from the diamond import firm is the office of the Costa Rican consul general, Dr. Gonozalo J. Gallgos. He wasn't in.

The jewel merchants said it took them about a minute to free themselves after the bandits left. It was too late when they shouted for help.

Police theorize the holdup men possibly walked down one or two flights of stairs, then took an elevator.

They timed their escape during the peak of the rush hour. Apparently nobody noticed them leaving.

National Summary

In the wake of a disturbance over the Rockies, clearing skies provided sunshine over southern California and parts of Arizona while another surge of moisture overspread the Pacific northwest.

Snow extended from Washington State into the mountains of northern California with rains along the coast, occasionally reaching heavy intensity, along the northern California shoreline.

In addition to the severe ice storm, heavy snows are forecast for parts of the upper plains and Mississippi Valley and locally heavy accumulations are likely in the Colorado mountains.

Warnings include prospects for four inches or more in parts of Nebraska, Iowa and Wisconsin, and heavy snowfall may develop in South Dakota and southern Minnesota.

Mild temperatures with widespread cloudiness and rain will cover broad areas of the east.

Showers or thunderstorms are anticipated from the southern plains eastward into the Mississippi, Ohio and Tennessee Valleys as well as the Gulf states.

Scattered snows remain in the outlook for most of the west and may be locally heavy in the California mountains as rain moves southward through the state.

Witness Gone On Trial's Eve

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — Key witness Glynn Mercer was officially declared missing Monday night on the eve of the trial of Charles Vermorel, former chief county building inspector.

County Investigator Carl Christy said he could not locate Mercer, and was convinced that he had left the area. Christy signed an affidavit of the disappearance.

County Solicitor Tom Coker said he will ask Court of Crimes Judge Thomas Tompkins today to postpone the extortion and malpractice case.

Vermorel said Saturday he will fight a postponement. "I want it prosecuted or dismissed," he declared.

Vermorel is alleged to have obtained $50 illegally from Mercer, a contractor, while he was an inspector.

Another witness, Ernest Rainey, who is Mercer's brother-in-law, is expected to appear in court although he was earlier reported missing too.

But Coker said that Rainey is a "corroborative" witness, and that his testimony would not be sufficient to obtain a conviction.

It was learned Monday that the sheriff's office is also looking for Mercer — with an arrest capias for driving without a license.

Issued Jan. 19, it was Mercer's eighth traffic run-in with the law since March 1956. In that year he also forfeited a $50 bond for vagrancy.

Friends of Mercer said they believe he has gone abroad. Coker explained that the state has no power to stop him.

'Metro' Here Not Foreseen

THERE DOESN'T SEEM to be much chance that Broward County will accept Dade's "Metro" type of home rule any time soon; some people are deathly afraid of the word and others want to observe Dade for a few years and see how it works there. As a matter of fact, no one is pushing or seriously considereng Metro for Broward County.

Further, there will be no effort this year to put a bill for home rule, as such, through the Legislature. There is no particular pressure for that, either, or need for haste. The need for certain powers can be achieved through a series of separate bills, and it does appear that these will be attempted.

One in particular will probably win wide support from residents of Broward's larger cities. It would empower the County Commission to set up special tax districts for such purposes as fire protection, laying sewers, creating water supplies and such. If, for example, the residents of North Andrews Gardens should decide that they were ready for a tax supported fire department, the commission could create a district there, levy taxes within it and set up the department.

Thus the unincorporated areas could have what they were willing to pay for. And just as important, the residents of the cities, who are already being taxed for municipal fire protection, would not have to pay for protection for North Andrews Gardens.

Under our present system, the County Commission can only levy taxes on a countywide basis. Therefore, if taxes are laid for improvements or services in the unincorporated areas, city residents must pay them — and as a matter of fact, about 60 per cent of the tax money spent in these areas comes from the people of Fort Lauderdale.

Suburban Commission Suggested

JOHN TOLAR, president of the County Bar Association, wonders if we might be wise to establish a public body such as the Suburban Sanitary Commission in the State of Maryland. It handles water, sewers and garbage for the environs of Washington, D.C.

It's one possibility — a suburban sanitary commission for Broward County, authorized to lay taxes in the unincorporated areas and provide them with various services. There seems to be widespread opposition here, though, to creating any more taxing bodies than we already have . . .

'Stranger' Author Likes Area

YOU CAN ADD Author Harold Robbins ("Never Love A Stranger," etc.) to the list of people who've been captivated by Fort Lauderdale at first glance.

He knew Miami, but had never had a good look at our town until he came here last September with his movie. He liked what he saw, and returned later with his wife. "I see what you mean," she said. So they've been here since December, are living in a house off the beach, and Harold writes movie and TV scripts like mad between jaunts to New York. Incidentally, he loves that quick direct service between Gotham and Broward International Airport . . .

Purpose of Actor Eddie Bracken's stay was a quick confab with Robbins on a couple of movies they're doing together. For tax reasons, they exchange services instead of cash. "I don't understand it," Harold said, "But the lawyers do." . . .

Best Insurance Is Good Lawyer

ONE OF THE REACTIONS to the comments here about protection of real estate buyers was a letter from a broker suggesting that the best protection is to consult a good attorney.

Joe Christian, who's president of a newly formed title insurance company, says the letter "implies that title companies operate without benefit of attorney," which is not the case. His corporation requires that each abstract be examined by a lawyer "trained in real estate." Title policies are issued only after such examination and are based upon the opinion of the attorney. Further, the policy provides coverage as set forth in the guarantee, regardless of errors in the abstract.

That's generally true of all title insurance companies.

Another reader tells of a rather surprising incident involving a title. He employed a lawyer to make certain the title was good; there was a discrepancy in the legal description of the property, and the lawyer searched the wrong lot. The buyer had to pay for that search, as well as for another search of the right lot. He felt that the attorney should have checked closely enough to have caught the discrepancy in the first place . . .

Joe Wendel Gets the Word From Sheriff: Off the Beach

By DUANE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Time is running out on Joe Wendel.

If the celebrated 62-year-old beachcomber isn't out of the county by sundown Wednesday, the sheriff plans to put him out.

"We've had about all we're going to take from that guy." Chief Deputy Ben Grigsby bristled Monday.

"He's gotta go."

Grigsby said he didn't care where Joe goes.

"The County Welfare Department can build him a mansion if they like," he declared.

"But he doesn't belong out there on the beach. He's got no right to set up housekeeping there. No one else could get away with a stunt like that."

Grigsby said the County Commission instructed Sheriff J. A. Lloyd to "throw him off" last Wednesday.

The order followed "five or six" complaints from boat owners who accused Joe of shooting at them as they passed his hideaway on a peninsular just east of Port Everglades.

"I absolutely didn't shoot at nobody, period. Never shot, not even close to nobody," Wendel said.

Joe squatted on the county-owned property three years ago, and since then has ignored several orders to move on. He and his son live in an abandoned houseboat and made their livelihood salvaging junk.

Sheriff Lloyd took Joe's rifle and pistol and told the bearded vagabond he could have the arms back on his way out of the county.

Joe claimed the guns hadn't been fired in six months. "Can't't afford it," he said. "The danged shells cost too much."

Grigsby said the sheriff offered Joe $50 to help get him out of town.

"Joe told us he wanted to go up around Cocoa and said it would cost about $100," Grigsby added.

"When he said he could only get about $50 from his lumber and junk, the sheriff agreed to give him $50 from his own pocket."

Grigsby said he couldn't prosecute Joe on the gun-shooting complaints because of insufficient evidence.

"But he's the only one over there and it's got to be him or his son," he added.

Joe said he and his son have moved off the beach and are now living on Whiskey Creek, a nearby canal.

He's willing to leave town, but hopes the sheriff gives him a few more days.

"I'm going as quick as I can," he explained. "But I'd sure like to sell that lumber. It's nice stuff."

Gambler Lansky Set For Bedside Checkup

Bigtime Gambler Meyer Lansky, who claims he's too sick to testify at the Senate Rackets Committee probe of gangsterism in the juke box biz, will get a bed-side check-up today from a U.S. Health Department official.

Robert Kennedy, the Rackets Committee's chief counsel, said in Washington Monday he has asked the Health Department to make sure that Lansky, a shadowy Hollywood resident, is as ill as he says.

The 56-year-old New York-Florida-Cuba gambling figure had been subpenaed to appear as a witness at the Washington-based juke-box hearing which opens today.

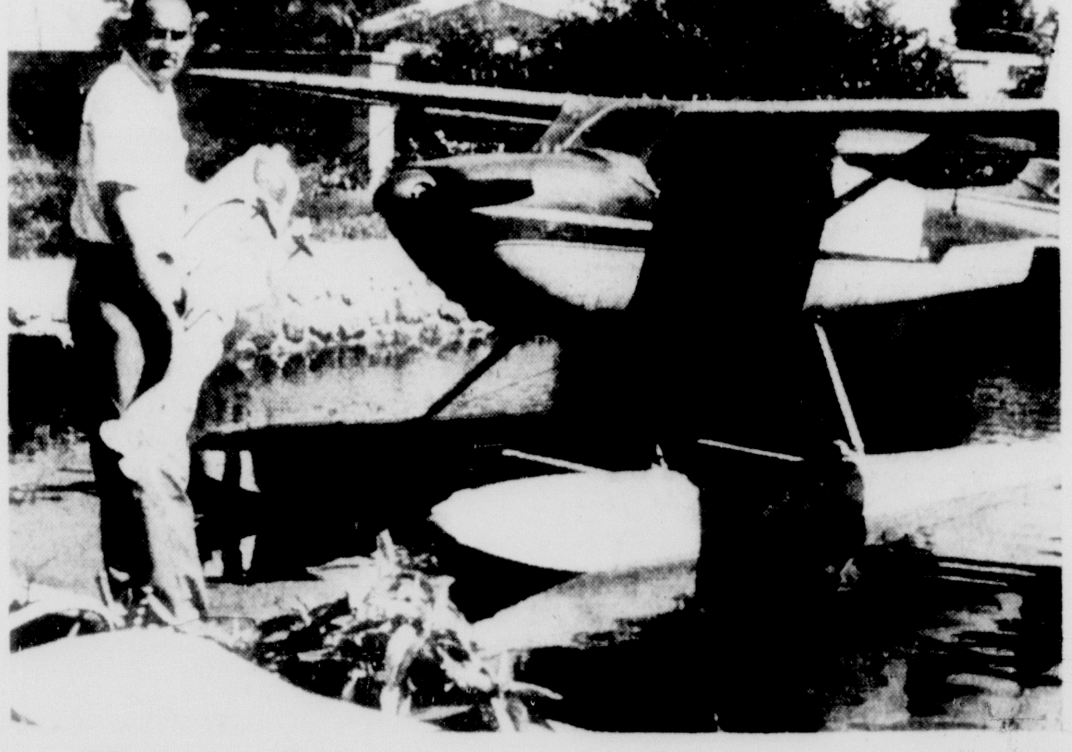
But shortly after he returned to his home in Hollywood after abandoning his Havana gambling enterprises in the wake of Fidel Castro's triumphant revolution, Lansky pulled up the sick-bed covers.

A Herald reporter who tried to talk to Lansky Monday got as far as the private Hollywood Hospital, 1859 Van Buren St.

There a nurse told him that Lansky was indeed a patient but would not say how long he had been in or what was ailing him.

Lansky's son, Buddy, who manages the Tuscany Hotel at 3800 South Ocean Dr., Hollywood, was even less cooperative.

"You come over here, you %!!!&'()('&, and I'll punch you in the mouth!" he told the reporter.



What Now?

A seaplane has officials in a quandary. John Taylor, 39, New Bern, N. C., landed in the Middle River Sunday night in violation of a city ordinance. Now police are wondering if they will violate the ordinance if they ask him to fly it out again. Taylor will appear in Municipal Court this morning to answer charges of landing in other than a designated landing area. He told police he thought he was in federal waters. Bob Staples, above, of the Marine Mart, 1450 N. Federal Hwy., found the plane docked at the mart Monday morning.

Find Road, Hitchhike Back Home

By AL FINKELSTEIN

Two young Miami wildlife lovers trudged 20 miles in seven hours Monday to escape the mosquito-bombed Everglades swamp where they crash-landed their light plane.

They emerged footsore, bug-bitten, and cheerful.

Pilot Donald Stephens, 23, of 270 NW 91st St., and his buddy, Fred Butler, 23, of 9486 NW Third Ave., said their 65-horsepower light plane "cut out" Sunday afternoon 70 miles from Miami.

They spiraled safety into the grassy Everglades, then started their motor again and tried to take off. The craft somersaulted and the propeller snapped.

They boys were not injured.

They spent the night being bitten by mosquitoes "as big as a half-dollar."

They kept warm overnight by starting a fire with gunpowder from .22 bullets.

"So help me," said Butler, "we got two sticks, rubbed the powder between them, and we got a flame."

Monday they ripped the compass from their plane, used it as a guide, and headed for civilization.

After tiptoeing, via log, over an alligator-infested canal, they emerged on Highway 29 between Miles City and Deep Lake. A motorist picked them up.

While they slogged through the 'glades a Coast Guard helicopter from Miami, deputies from Collier County Sheriff's department and a band of volunteers from the Florida Civil Air Patrol scoured swampland.

They found the cracked-up plane and the campfire ashes — but not the boys, who were arriving at home about that time.

Quipped Stephens, as he opened the porch door:

"Why all the fuss?"

Butler asked:

"What's for supper?"

Dance Studio Hit By $40,727 Suit

By PETER LAINE

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Arthur Murray Dance Studio and the Broward School of Beauty Culture were named as defendants in separate suits filed Monday in Circuit Court.

Plaintiff Mable McWilliams claimed she paid James and Mary Banta, studio operators, $10,727 in the last three years, but "received no consideration" for the money.

"The payments were induced by misrepresentations of certain facts and by exercise of duress and undue influence over the mind of the plaintiff," the suit contends.

The plaintiff is represented by Yale Rapkin, Miami Beach attorney. She asked damages of $10,727 plus exemplary damages of $30,000. James W. Schweizer is named in the suit as the Bantas' agent.

The suit against the beauty school was filed by Mrs. Sharon Bell, 107 E. Sunrise Blvd., through Attorney Richard Roth.

She seeks danages of more than $1,000 for alleged burns suffered at the school Dec. 2.

Owner Wilbur Raynor claimed Mrs. Bell "insisted" on the treatment against the school's advice. All customers sign a release from any damages caused by student operators, he said.

Deerfield Board Bows Out

DEERFIELD BEACH—This city's Planned Recreation Department floundered on the rocks Monday night as the City Commission accepted the mass resignation of the five-member Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, and then admitted the whole program might be too expensive for the city to undertake.

Mayor Paul Stalter set a special meeting for Wednesday for the commission to "review" the matter of hiring a recreation director.

He said he would "immediately" appoint a new recreation board.

But Stalter admitted that it would "cost around $15,000 to start this thing properly." And that "we have to think it over very carefully.

The current city budget carries a $4,000 appropriation for salary and $5,000 for equipment for a new recreation department.

The recreation advisory board resigned Feb. 4 when they were told they hadn't the authority to hire a director at a prescribed salary, but were merely to advise the commission.

Richardson to Answer Port Board Critics

By PETER LAINE
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Gerald Richardson, former Port Everglades insurance counselor, said Monday he will seek the right of free speech at Wednesday's Port Board meeting.

Richardson said he wants to clear his reputation.

Port Chairman Ed Crowells wants the board to cancel policies written by Richardson as counselor last year.

Crowells maintains that liability coverage placed by Richardson will cost some $12,000 more than necessary over a five-year period.

Ricardson retorted that his placement has already saved the port $200 since last summer, and that more savings are on the way.

"I'm tied of having my ears beaten off by old man Crowells," he said.

Richardson and the 78-year-old chairman clashed bitterly last year over commissioners' participation in the employes group life insurance plan.

Richardson quit after the election of two new members shifted the Port Board's balance of power. The new board abolished his job.

Before he left, he increased the port's liability coverage to $1,000,000. The policy includes excess coverage of $750,000 written through Employers Surplus Life Insurance Co., of Boston, and reinsured through Lloyd's of London.

It became effective Dec. 12 for a one-year period at a premium of about $3,500, Richardson said. If the board cancels it now, he continued it will lose money because of penalties and a four per cent federal tax.

Richardson claims a replacement policy would cost the same because any domestic company would have to reinsure it with Lloyd's at standard rates.

Richardson asked to talk to the new board about insurance at its first meeting, but said he was allowed only one minute by Crowells.

He said he was afraid he'd be "shut up again" Wednesday.

Richardson repeated his contention that port insurance should be handled by a committee of county agents, with commissions returned to taxpayers for a drivers training program.

The Grand Jury last week recommended that future port insurance awards be handled in the same manner as public contracts of more than $1,000.

The port charter requires advertisement of such contracts and their award to the lowest responsible bidder unless all bids are rejected as too high.

Attorney Is Sued Over Lot

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — Attorney Chesley Morton was named defendant in a Circuit Court suit filed Monday by R. D. and Willie Mae Cunningham over possession of a lot and house in Washington Park.

The plaintiffs ask the court to void Morton's deed to the property, and to order an accounting of the transactions between the litigants.

Morton said Monday that he has informed the Cunninghams' attorney, Thomas Reddick, of a lease agreement he has with the plaintiffs, and that he expects the suit to be dropped.

The Cunninghams claim that Morton and his then partner, Eugene Betts, offered them a second mortgage on the property after acquiring it in lieu of legal fees.

The Cunninghams contend that the outstanding mortgage when they surrendered the property was about $1,200. In the next two years they paid Morton some $2,500, they said.

They claim they were evicted Dec. 18, 1958. Betts had meanwhile sold his interest to Morton, the suit continued.

Morton said that there was indebtedness on the property when he took it over, and that he also made improvements to it. It was then leased to the Cunninghams at $80 a month, he added.

Plant Blight Expert Due

POMPANO BEACH—While a U. S. Department of Agriculture plant pathologist was on his way to Broward County to study a soil disease problem, State Sen. George S. Tedder, Jr., said he and Reps. Emerson Allsworth and A. J. Ryan will meet soon to discuss the matter.

Tedder said the legislative delegation had not yet decided what action they will take on a farmers' request for a $15,000 annual expenditure for research on the soil disease.

They toured the farm area Jan. 29 and termed as "fantastic" the devastation they saw. The soil-borne diseases already have wiped out 90 per cent of this season's 1,900-acre planting.

Evidence for Supper

'Hot' Pork Chops Put Him in Cooler

The pork chops were "hot" so FORT LAUDERDALE City Court put them on ice.

Halcyirus Small, 64, of 508 NW Third Ave., was convicted of stealing four chops Monday and sentenced to pay a $100 fine and spend 30 days in jail.

But he may get to eat the copys anway.

After the trial, court officials took the "evidence" out of its storage place in a soft drink cooler and turned it over to the prisoners for supper.

Greyhound Case

County Commission Chairman George Petersen said Greyhound Limousine Service, whose temporary operating contract ends today, probably will continue operating out of Broward International Airport until the commission awards a new contract. The Greyhound franchise was canceled following a mix-up over its sale (also later canceled) and the county said it would consider new offers for the franchise. Greyhound can reapply.

Stingers Gone

The FORT LAUDERDALE beach was free of Portuguese men-of-war Monday, and Chief Lifeguard Frank Dane was smiling again.

An estimated 420 persons were treated by Dane's beach patrol after being stung Sunday. "They only bother us when there's a strong wind out of the southeast. It was quiet today and we've had a big crowd —maybe 2,500 persons," Dane said.

No Session

The POMPANO, BEACH City Commission meeting, regularly scheduled for today has been postponed to 9 a.m. Wednesday. The regular meeting will be combined with the canvas of votes from Tuesday's primary election.

Teen Problem

POMPANO BEACH Police Chief James Boggs conferred with City Manager James Hughes and Recreation Director Tom Miller Monday afternoon to seek a change in policy regarding teenager use of the city's "Deck" recreational area.

Boggs is expected to request all existing identification cards be voided, and new ones issued only to residents. His request followed a near-riot Saturday night when two youths were knifed.

Bar Hours

Municipal Judge John W. Douglass said Monday FORT LAUDERDALE should allow bars and package stores to stay open later at night. He termed the closing ordinance discriminatory against Fort Lauderdale businesses because liquor establishments in the county can stay open later than the city's 8 p.m. package store deadline and 2 a.m. bar deadline.

Hotel Theft

Clothing and other articles valued at $1,500 were stolen from their hotel room, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Bushnell, Arlington, Mass., reported to FORT LAUDERDALE police.

Hospital Is Target Of Report

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — State Auditor Bryan Willis Monday was critical of initial operations at the South Florida Mental Hospital at West Hollywood.

But Willis said accounting procedures were being overhauled by an auditor of the division of mental health, who was also correcting errors found in the audit.

Willis said the hospital, opened for patients March 1, 1957, was plagued by a "multitude" of problems connected with opening of a large institution and most deficiencies could be traced to that.

He said new personnel were not used to state accounting procedures, accounting records were not adequate for auditing purposes, and necessary ledger accounts had not been started.

Willis also was critical of property records and generally weak internal control over payrolls during the hospital's activitation period.

Meet The Rules, Director States

HOLLYWOOD — Dr. Arnold Eichert, superintendent of South Florida State Hospital, said Monday accounting procedures at the institution now meet state requirements.

He said he does not consider a recently released report pointing up auditing shortcomings at the hospital as critical of his administration.

"Willis' statements apply to the opening days of the hospital. Apparently the state required more complete records than we were then making.

"But even they we were in the process of correcting the omission," Eichert said.

He declined to comment on a two-month delay in completion of the first phase of construction, saying he was not in charge of this.

Fishermen Rescue Two From Canal

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — Unidentified Negro fishermen saved the lives of a motorist and his wife whose car was bumped into a canal near the intersection of Highways 27 and 84 Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Smith of Barbertown, Ohio, were pulled from their submerged car about a mile and a half north of the intersection on U.S. 27.

The Negroes, who were fishing on the canal bank, left the scene after taking the Smiths to safety, state troopers said.

The Smiths were taken to Broward General Hospital and treated for shock. Their condition was satisfactory late Monday.

Five other persons, occupants of the car which struck the Smith vehicle, were also treated for injuries, State Troopers Maurice DuPont said.

The five were all members of the Carl Simule family of Keweenaw Bay, Mich. Two of them, Carl, 48 and his daughter Sharon, 22, were admitted to Broward General with minor injuries.

Broward Deaths

Edward J. Larkin

FORT LAUDERDALE — Edward J. Larkin, 75, a resident here 17 years, died Monday.

A retired Army captain, he came here from Atlanta and lived at 1025 NE 17th Way. He was a veteran of World War I.

Survivors include his wife, Elsa. Services will be at 2 p.m. today at the Fairchild chapel. Burial will be in Charleston, S.C.

Gordon A. Schminky

FORT LAUDERDLAE — Burial will be in Lykens, Pa., for Gordon A. Schminky, 62, who died Saturday. A night watchman, Mr. Schminky came here in 1954 from Gratz, Pa., and lived at 2671 SW Second Ct. Survivors include two sons and his parents, all of Gratz. Fannin Funeral Home was in charge.

William Bumgarner

FORT LAUDERDALE — Services for William Bumgarner, 77, who died Sunday, will be in N. Wilkesboro, N.C. A resident here one month, Mr. Bumgarner lived at 1218 NE 18th Ave. Survivors include a son, Cecil, Fort Lauderdale. Fairchild Funeral Home was in charge.

Mrs. Anne Nicholson

POMPANO BEACH — Mrs. Anne Nicholson, 70, of 2950 NE 23rd Ct., died Sunday. She came here two months ago from Wilkes Barre, Pa. Survivors include her husband, Harry; two daughters, including Mrs. R. N. Youngblood, Pompano; two sons, and six grandchildren. Services and burial will be in Wilkes Barre with Kraeer Funeral Home in charge locally.

Weather News Sent to North

FORT LAUDERDALE — Official temperature readings from Fort Lauderdale were dispatched Monday to major cities in the north.

The first — 79 degrees — was telegraphed at 10 a.m. to cities served by seven airlines which cover this area.

Station managers in each city were asked to relay the readings to radio and television stations.

The second reading — 81 degrees — was sent by Western Union at 3 p.m. to radio and TV stations in 25 cities throughout the East and Midwest.

HEY DAD, YOU LOOK FUNNY! Ed Roberts, dressed as a clown, was supposed to be the funny man at St. Theresa Home and School Association's Mardi Gras festival. Here he's teasing his daughter Ellen, a fourth grader, and her friend Susan Novak. Many of the local Catholic schools held their festivals and carnivals just before Lent begins on Wednesday.

Ed Murrows Will Visit

By GWEN HARRISON
Herald Columnist

Ed Murrow and his wife are due at the Kenilworth on Feb. 22 to be house guests for a week of Leo DeOrsey and his wife . . . the Washington attorney, DeOrsey, is financial adviser to Murrow (as he is to the hotel's owner, Arthur Godfrey) so while the two men while away the daylight hours on local golf courses a goodly bit of person-to-person business will take place . . .

* * *

The well-known Navy chaplain who invented the revolving altar, Capt. W. W. Edel, now president of Dickinson College in Pennsylvania, is on a ten-day tour of Florida . . . en route to Key West he stopped off in Sarasota for a sojourn with Col. William Gance and his wife . . . the colonel, a student at Dickinson before his West Point days, and a onetime English professor, is author of a number of books, including Soldiers Unmasked, The History of the Army, and The English of Military Communications . . . also a contributor to the Encyclopedia Britannica, the colonel and his family have made Sarasota their home for 13 years . . .

Miami High Skit To Show History

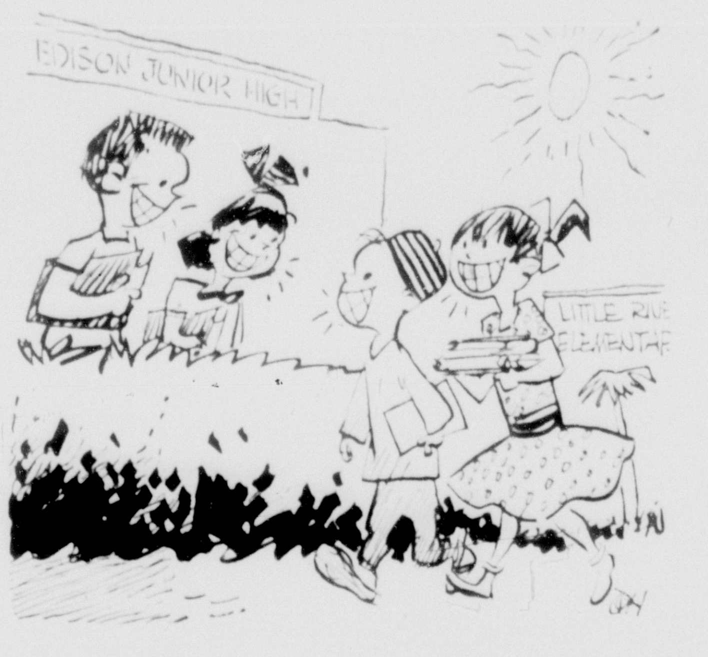
An elaborate Founders' Day musical play will be presented by Miami Senior High School PTA at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in the auditorium, 2450 SW 1st St.

The play, in which parents and teachers will sing and dance, consists of musical numbers from 1890 to 1959, ranging from the Bird in a Gilded Cage to a skit about the 1959 PTA member.

Mrs. W. G. Gunnoe wrote the skit and will be narrator.

Junior Chomps Are Target For Two PTA Projects

By ELEANOR DIXON
Herald Club Editor



Children's smiles at Edison Junior High School and Little River Elementary School should be brighter and healthier if the PTAs of both schools have their way.

The two PTAs are working on dental health programs. Each has a different approach but the thought behind each one is the same—keep the children's teeth in good repair.

Dental Clinic

EDISON'S PROGRAM is a direct one. The PTA has started a dental health clinic for children who can't afford to pay a private dentist.

Four dentists are volunteering their services and will be paid by the PTA for the cost of materials used. Two of the dentists are fathers of students and two are Edison graduates.

The project came up when Mrs. Charles D. Allen, PTA health chairman, learned from the school doctor and nurse that some needy children could not meet the qualifications for county dental services. But they still needed their teeth fixed.

Starting in February the children who have been screened by school officials for physical and financial need will have appointments with the four dentists. (A dental survey showed that 58 children needed dental work).

The dentists have volunteered to serve for one year and Mrs. Allen says, "We hope to budget more PTA money for the program next year. We want to continue it until the county agencies provide enough dental clinics."

* * *

Contest

LITTLE RIVER PTA's dental health program hinges on an incentive plan.

All the school rooms are enrolled in a contest to see how many children bring in certificates from their dentists that their dental work is completed. Rooms with the best percentages will receive prizes in April.

During the year dentists are talking at PTA meetings about what parents can do to keep their children's teeth healthy.

The school has been chosen by the Miami Dental Society as part of its survey on dental health, and dentists will be working with teachers, too, to tell them how to teach dental health in the classrooms.

Mrs. E. I. Hilderbrand, PTA president, says the number of needy children in the school's area is perhaps double the normal percentage in other schools because of the number of public housing units in the area.

Fourteen of the children qualified for the Dade County Dental Clinic and PTA members are taking the children to and from the clinic.

"It's amazing how much work these children need. One first grader's teeth were so bad that the dentist at the clinic didn't want to handle it in the office. The child is being sent to Variety Childen's Hospital to have all the work done at one time," she said.

The dental health project is in addition to the PTA's regular health project — maintaining the school's health room where a full time paid attendant gives first aid to the childen and calls the mothers if they need to be sent home.

Cotillion Welcomes Five New Members

Hatted and gloved, practically all of Cotillion Club's 75 or so members met for luncheon in the Biscayne Room of the McAllister Monday. This group of young matrons, who got together just a few years ago solely to plan for themselves and their husbands three or four parties a year, were welcoming in five new members and their new slate of officers.

Joining the old members this year are Betty (Mrs. Paul) Fransella, Charlotte (Mrs. Starr W.) Horton, Marianne (Mrs. James R.) Northcutt, Cynthia (Mrs. Edwin H. Jr.) Underwood, Sara (Mrs. Dan G.) Wheeler.

Lifting the weight of the presidency from the shoulders of Georgia (Mrs. Ray) Pearson is Carolyn (Mrs. John) Pepper who'll be assisted by vice president Irene (Mrs. B. Boyce) Swartz. Other officers are Mimi (Mrs. D. V.) Spiva, Sue (Mrs. C. Jackson) Baldwin, Jean (Mrs. James L.) Davis, Dotty (Mrs. James C.) Culver, Marilyn (Mrs. James L.) Hiss. Ann (Mrs. Homer V.) Briggle was in charge of the luncheon.

Plans are making for their next party, a spring formal dance.

Pockets Are So Handy

Every little girl loves pockets on her dresses. Sometimes the ones you buy in stores do not have them.

If you want to please your tiny miss just open the waist seam about two inches and insert a pocket that you have stitched all the way around except at the top.

Insert the pocket from the wrong side of the dress and sew the raw seams of the pocket and the dress together.

Eugenia's Welcome Home Present Was a Real Winner — at Hialeah

By MARGARET WALKER
Broward Society Editor

FORT LAUDERDALE — Eugenia Bankhead bid adieu to her international set of friends in Tangier recently and returned last week to an exciting welcome home gift.

It came from her horse, Chit Chat, who became her first winner Saturday at Hialeah. It was a particularly cheering victory to Eugenia and Mrs. Louisa Carpenter, co-owners of a string of thoroughbreds who lost Appleton, their favorite horse, when he broke his leg in his first race in January and had to be destroyed. They had met the Argentine-bred horse in New York when he was flown over and had pinned high hopes on him. Now they are in search of a replacement for their Maryland stable, winter-quartered at Hialeah.

EUGENIA

Eugenia, looking sylph-like since her sojourn on the Mediterranean (she's lost 15 pounds), returned to find a similar reduction in the weight of her Great Dane, a noble black beauty who's picking up now that his attractive owner is home again.

Before leaving her lovely apartment set on a hillside" . . . you can see Spain on a clear day . . . "Eugenia had a gay send-off from her English friends, including Lord Davis Herbert, Sir Michael Duff and his sister, Mrs. Veronica Tennant.

"It's wonderful to be back in beautiful Florida, though," said Eugenia in the famous Bankhead voice.

Her aunt, Mrs. Henry Bankhead, who is her house guest, is so charged with Fort Lauderdale that she's looking for a permanent home here.

Black Cats Are Lucky

FRIDAY THE 13TH will be a lucky day for black cats—in fact, all kinds of cats and dogs.

Invitations are in the mail to a dog and cat-tail party Friday at the home of Mrs. Buell Bindshelder, 1612 SE Ninth St.

"Have a heart," guests are urged. The party's for the benefit of our furry friends at the Humane Society.

It's being planned by Co-Chairmen Mrs. Roger Folwell and Mrs. Leonard Corcoran, who heads a long list of prominent people who help provide shelter for orphaned animals every year.

Tennis Tot

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas L. McKee have had a much-traveled Miss in their household, one who's well known in the tennis world, even though she's only seven months old. Lorie Lou Frost, daughter of Jack and Judy Frost of Monterey, Calif., accompanied her tennis star dad and pretty mother to Fort Lauderdale while Jack played a tournament here over the weekend.

Little Lorie was born last July in London during the Wimbledon matches, but her dad has no ambitions for her to return there to win the championship. At the moment, Lorie's perfectly content traveling around the world with her parents. Jack is currently making the Florida-Caribbean circuit.

The young couple left Monday for Palm Beach in their little English car, in which Lorie lolls amidst the luggage.

Mrs. McKee and Judy Frost's family are lifelong friends from Iowa.

Dr. and Mrs. McKee's popular daughter Alice, who graduated last June from Duke and spent the summer traveling in Europe, will leave this week for New York to become a career gal. A talented journalist (she's been a teen columnist and a staff writer for The Miami Herald), Alice may aim at magazine writing. She plans to join a group of Duke girls at their apartment in the big city.

Quick Move

MARY-JANE and Sam Tucker III had no sooner unpacked from a trip to New York than they were busy packing Lares and Penates for a permanent move to Coral Gables. Sam has joined a brokerage firm in the Gables, where he, Mary-Jane and their baby, Sam, are getting settled in an attractive house on Ponce de Leon Blvd.

Their move was so spur-of-the-moment, they had to telephone their whereabouts to Mary-Jane's parents, the Stephen Bowens, who are in the midst of Mardi Gras gaieties in New Orleans as guests of Sam's father, Dr. W. Samuel Tucker.

When Dad Is Also a Mother

By MARY PRIME
United Press International

MILLBROOK, N.Y. — Too few fathers know how to take over as chief cook, bottle washer and nursemaid, says educator Dr. Randle Elliott.

Much is said about the role of widows and divorcees in bringing up children, but in an increasing number of homes, dad is the only parent.

And his task is more difficult than a mother's. He must work and yet give his children security, said Dr. Elliott, head of the Greer School for children of broken homes.

The school cares for children from six to 18 years old during family emergencies — death, desertion, separation, divorce, sickness or poverty.

The youngsters leave if and when their homes are reestablished. About half of the 200 boys and girls are what Elliott called "sociological orphans" — children of divorced parents.

"Such a child cannot be as well-adjusted as he would be living with both a mother and father, but children need not suffer too much if dad does a good job" Elliott continued.

"There are two main things a father must do — show love and affection at all times and give children more of his time.

"To run a good one-parent household, don't become active in civic affairs which claim your time at night. Instead, spend that time at home with the children. That means letting the newspaper wait until they go to bed."

He also gave these suggestions for the only parent: "Take the children on fishing trips or participate in sports, photography, checkers or chess. It's surprising how close you become to a child over a chessboard.

"The important thing is recreation done together. It convinces the child you love him more than the guy down the street.

Fathers who must act the dual-parent role often tend to spoil the child, either out of ignorance or guilt.

"To prevent spoiling, don't hesitate to punish the child," said Elliott.

"Don't give the child everything he wants. A lot of undisciplined adults today break speed limits, quarrel, commit crimes and drink to excess because they were given all they wanted as children."

Sketches In Store At School

By CAROLYN V. COHEN

UPPER KEYS — Coral Shores School is a beehive of activity, and the adults you see there aren't attending school classes. It's Sketch Book time again (Feb. 13, 14) and this year's presentation includes students and many of our best known citizens.

MRS. COHEN

Advance notices say it will be a well balanced mixture of beautiful scenes and riotous sketches as you are taken on a world tour via the stage.

Just a hint . . . can you picture some of our most dignified business men inhabiting a sultan's harem, or PTA members participating in a celebration of Sadie Hawkins Day?

Tonight members of Burton Memorial WSCS hold an important meeting to plan for the first service in their new church on Sunday.

Bowling leagues need money, so Tavernier Fire Dept. Auxiliary and BPODoes are cooperating in a baked goods sale in front of Key Largo post office from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Wednesday. If you buy something it will help the gals maintain their leagues and their high averages in matched play.

Your date book reminder: Feb. 13 the Kiwanis Fish Fry at the Elks Club; Feb. 14 the WSCS baked goods sale at Tavernier post office; Feb. 15 San Pedro annual bazaar on Plantation Key.

Congratulations to Charles Louis Pellicier, new chief of Tavernier Fire Dept. He has been active in the department a long time and richly deserves this honor, which carries deep responsibility for which he has qualified.

Two Hoosier families have joined the Upper Keys community. Welcome to the Don Heaths of Lebanon, Ind., who purchased the Don Purcell's Tavernier home and are enthusiastically moving there.

Also welcome to Great Lakes Captain Wally and Mary Unkuri from Hammond, Ind., who have purchased a home in Pirates Cove, Key Largo. They came to visit old friends Bill and Lotte Uhe and decided to stay with us.

We have good news from Jackson Memorial Hospital, Miami, where Floyd Hinkson, popular Key Largo electrician, has been on the critical list following brain surgery. Wife Margaret says he has rallied and the doctor now believes he is headed for recovery, although he must undergo another operation next week.

And Margaret, who has been with Floyd day and night, wants to thank everyone for their messages and prayers. She added that son, Floyd, Jr., a technical sergeant in England, wife Virginia and children Susan and Mike were flown here by the Army and their presence has had an excellent effect on Floyd's condition.

The Cliff Carpenters, Tavernier, received a call from son Rickey at Fort Gordon, Ga. to tell them he is headed for Newfoundland, the Azores and Paris on a two year assignment with the U. S. Army Signal Corps.

Sorry there was a typographical error when new emergency telephone numbers were printed last week. It was caused by composing room gremlins who take fiendish delight in putting mistakes in important notices.

The numbers are 5353 for a deputy sheriff and 5300 for fire reports. Place an "8" before the numbers if you dial from the Matecumbe exchange.

'Not in the Book' Has Polished Cast

By HELEN VAN HOY SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

PALM BEACH — It's always fair weather when good fellows get together; and for those good fellows of the theater, lovely Ann Harding, Edward Everett Horton and Reginald Owen, the weather at the Royal Poinciana Playhouse is balmy indeed.

"Not in the Book," by Arthur Watkyn opened Monday night for a weeks run with Wednesday and Saturday matinees. It's an Englsh mystery comedy—a brew of blackmail, psychology, traffic violation and a slight case of mayhem and murder.

The entire cast measures up to those three hardy perennials who are starred.

Ann Harding of the soft blue velvet voice and the gracious aristocratic mein is the only woman. No other is needed.

Edward Everett Horton has been delighting audiences since the memory of man runneth not. He continues to do so. In his preparations for murder he brings to new heights the arts of fuss-budgetry and vacillation.

Reginald Owen's role is slight but a gem. Applause marks his every entrance and exit. Everyone knows someone who is a prototype of the character he portrays so wisely and so well.

Then there's a young man, slim as a walking cane, named Ralph Purdum, a comedian whose underplayed art increases as the play progresses. You are more and more aware of him.

John Irving, Herbert Volland, Val Avery and Claude Horton, well known and established actors each gives an excellent account of himself.

Setting of an English lounge hall in a well-to-do home is faithfully executed by Jim Riley. Antique lovers were spotting the old settee, the collection of antique sugar bowls and the many fine articles and pictures which added authenticity.

The British accents of the actors are not of the pea-soup variety. You hear every word perfectly and enjoy every word as well.

The play is directed by Richard Bender and is under the personal supervision of Paul Crabtree.

Key West Girl Wed In Church

KEY WEST — St. Mary's Star of the Sea Catholic Church was the setting Sunday for the wedding of Haydee Maria Lopez and Martin Kurt Eisentraut.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel H. Lopez, 917 Grinnel St. Given in marriage by her father, she wore a gown of hand-clipped chantilly lace with sabrina neckline and bouffant skirt over satin with lace train.

A fingertip veil of silk illusion was attached to her tiara of seed pearls and sequins. She carried a white missal with an orchid.

Madga Esther Lopez, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a ballerina length gown of aqua silk organza with matching shoes and hat and carried yellow gladiolas and pompoms.

Bridesmaids were Cecilia and Olga Lopez, cousins of the bride, Jocelyn Maloney, Anna Haskins, Cecilia Nicolau and Yolanda Avila. They were dressed similarly to the maid of honor and carried yellow pompoms.

Zaida Vega and Christina Pechter were flower girls in floor length slik organza gowns of pale yellow with hats to match. They carried aqua flower baskets.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Emil Eisentraut, Fullerton, Pa. Charles Stuart Maloney III was best man.

Alex Vega was ring bearer.

Mrs. Claudina Yaccarino was soloist, accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Marie Valenzuela.

A reception was held at the Elks Club.

The newly weds will visit Allentown, Pa., on their wedding trip. After Feb. 23, they will live at 916 Georgia St.

Midwest Slips, Slides on a Giant Ice Sheet

Pea Soup Fog Adds To Peril

New England At Coldest

CHICAGO —(UPI)— The Midwest slipped and slithered on a mammoth sheet of ice Monday.

When Midwesterners weren't cracking their shins and breaking their bones on the glazed sidewalks, they were groping through dense, zero-visibility fog.

From Kansas to Ohio, freezing rain and drizzle laid down an ice cover which crippled cities, closed schools, and made driving a daredevil feat. Warm Gulf air created the pea-soup fog.

The East was scheduled to hit the skids Monday night. Meanwhile, New England froze in its coldest weather of the season — a 34-below reading at Newport, Vt.

To the West, heavy snow warnings were out for parts of Nebraska, South Dakota, Iowa, and Minnesota.

Colorado battled not only ice and fog, but snows up to 16 inches deep which closed one mountain pass and packed all the others with snow. Travel without chains was impossible over the Sierra Mountains from Reno, Nev., to California.

The ice belt stretched from Kansas through parts of Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. Travel was so dangerous that the weather bureau urged: "All except urgent travel should be abandoned . . ."

Illinois had already counted three traffic deaths blamed on the ice and Iowa one.

Chicago, Detroit, Kansas City and St. Louis were among the larger Midwest population centers afflicted by the ice storm.

Tampa Sun Downs 22

Tampa —(AP)— A hot sun which shot temperatures into the mid-80s felled at least 22 persons at Monday's Gasparilla invasion parade.

Ambulances had a busy day moving the heat victims from downtown to Tampa hospitals. Five of those stricken were marchers in high school bands. They were among the more than 600,000 spectators who lined the parade route.

The scores of attractive girls decorating the floats came well-prepared. Most were in bathing suits or scanty costumes.

Another casualty of the festivity was a member of the crew on the pirate invasion ship, Jose Gasparilla. The unnamed buccaneer fell into the Hillsborough River when he attempted to make a gallant jump to shore. He was pulled intact, but soggy, from the water.

$250,000 Lost In 2nd Gem Grab

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

Two "gentlemen" gunmen efficiently ransacked a downtown Miami diamond importer's office of $250,000 in jewels Monday afternoon, then fled in a crowded elevator eight floors to the safety of jammed sidewalks.

The record holdup operation took 15 minutes, and was the second largest gem haul in Greater Miami in 24 hours. A room prowler snatched $400,000 in gems from an eighth-floor Americana Hotel suite Sunday.

The two bandits in Monday's robbery left five men bound with adhesive tape on the floor of the "wholesale only" Al Levinson and Co. firm in the Congress Building, 111 NE Second Ave.

According to the victims' story, one of the gunmen, who bought a $1,800 ring from Levinson last Friday for cash, entered the office first.

Moments later at 5:20 p.m., a nattily dressed accomplice, about 30, busted into the three-room suite wielding a .45 caliber automatic.

"All right, get on the floor!" he said. "Lie face down. This is a holdup.

"Now, nobody is going to get hurt. Just don't move."

The other robber, the one posing as a customer, then pulled a gun.

"Is there a buzzer in here?" he asked.

Nobody said anything.

One by one, the gunmen made the victims sit up with their hands over their eyes, and then bound them with adhesive, the victims told police.

The jewels, lying in sample boxes in an open safe, were mostly diamonds — some mounted and some not.

Two buyers for the company returned from New York City only Jan. 31 with a new supply for the winter tourist season.

The holdup men, both wearing suits and ties, brought a

Collins Met Johnson in Race Huddle

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — The governor's office disclosed Monday LeRoy Collins had a face-to-face meeting with Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas a week ago on Collins' plan that Congress set up a federal-state commission to deal with the school racial crisis.

William Durden, executive assistant to the governor, said Collins flew to Washington in response to a phone call from Johnson.

Durden confirmed that the Collins' plan was the subject of their discussions, but said any details of the Collins-Johnson meeting must come from Collins or the Texas senator.

Both Collins and Johnson, the Senate majority leader, are regarded as moderates on the racial question. Johnson was a non-signer of the Southern Manifesto of 1956 which all Florida congressmen and senators except Rep. Dante Fascell of Miami signed.

Recently, Collins told his news conference he had written Johnson about his plan and asked an opportunity to discuss it with him. Johnson telephoned Collins about two weeks ago and the Washington conference on Jan. 31 resulted.

Collins has proposed that Congress provide for a commission from each state, appointed by the president with approval of the governor of the state.

Indefinite Term of Absence

Dulles Taking Leave To Undergo Surgery

Herter Is Left In Charge

Secretary Needs Hernia Operation

By FELIX BELAIR JR.
The New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles took an indefinite leave of absence Monday to have an operation for a hernia condition and to complete his recovery from an intestinal disorder.

N.Y. Times News Service

In a letter to President Eisenhower, which was made public immediately by the White House, the secretary asked permission to turn over his duties to Undersecretary Christian A. Herter or, in his absence, to Undersecretary C. Douglas Dillon "for a short time."

The secretary told the President in his letter that he "would expect, after a few weeks, to resume fully the duties of the office." James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, added to this that "there is no sign whatsoever of anything malignant" in connection with the secretary's decision to undergo surgery at this time.

Dulles underwent a successful operation for a cancerous colon lesion in December 1956. Last December he was again hospitalized with diverticulitis, an inflammation of the colon, but his doctors reported that there had been no recurrence of the malignancy at that time.

Secretary Dulles' letter to the President read:

"I should like your permission to turn over to Undersecretary Herter, or in his absence, to Undersecretary Dillon, the duties of secretary of state for a short period.

"My doctors advise that I should have an operation for a recently developed hernia; and I have not wholly thrown off the effects of the inflammation of the colon which occurred last December.

"I should accordingly like to devote a few weeks to physical recuperation, and also have some time when, free from other responsibilities, I could concentrate on the complicated and grave problems raised by the Soviet threats regarding Berlin and the Allied response thereto.

"I would be available for consultation with you and my associates and would expect, after a few weeks, to resume fully the duties of the office.

"I regret the circumstances which lead me to ask for this

2½-Billion Aid Offered Schools

WASHINGTON — UPI — The Eisenhower administration Monday proposed a new program of aid to communities and colleges which cannot afford needed new construction.

The long-range aid program would cost the federal government an estimated 2½ billion dollars over a 25-year period. Details of draft bills were outlined to newsmen by Secretary Arthur S. Flemming of the Health, Welfare and Education Department.

He said the plan was "consistent with the fiscal policies of this administration." He said it could be handled within the framework of President Eisenhower's narrowly balanced 77-billion-dollar 1960 budget and will require no cash payments in fiscal 1960.

Under the proposed program for elementary and high school construction, the federal government would agree to pay principal and interest on new school construction bonds on a 50-50 matching basis with the states.

Flemming said the maximum annual federal payment on elementary and high school bonds would be 85 million dollars and the aggregate potential cost would be about two billion dollars over approximately 25 years.

The program, Flemming said, would be available only to communities which lack the resources to finance their own classroom needs.

The plan would be in effect for new construction started in the next five years. Flemming said it would cover up to three billion dollars worth of construction of elementary and high school buildings.

Under the program for college classrooms and housing, the federal government would put up an annual payment of 25 million dollars to retire debts.

The federal government would annually advance half of the funds required by needy local school districts to pay the principal and interest charges on bonds issued by the districts to finance school construction projects, if the states in which such districts are located undertake to put up the remaining half of the payments.

WEST PALM BEACH — The City Commission Monday approved a long debated $80,000 Advertising Commission contract with a Fort Lauderdale agency.

The vote, which gave the 1959 contract to the Evans Agency, was unanimous.

A meeting was set for Feb. 19 with the Advertising Commission to thresh out the demands of City Commissioner Sylvan Burdick that the city be given a greater voice in establishing and directing advertising policy.

In a last ditch effort to put the city in the driver's seat, Burdick moved that the ordinance creating the Advertising Commission be amended.

He proposed the removal of a restriction that Ad Board members be selected from a list recommended by the Chamber of Commerce and urged that three city commissioners be members of the Ad Board.

Burdick agreed to withdraw his motion with the understanding that his proposals be the subject of the Feb. 19 meeting with the Ad Board.

The contract provides funds to expound the charms of West Palm Beach in northern papers. The old contract terminated six weeks ago.

The controversy, which has its roots in the question of how big a part the City Commission should play in setting advertising policy, dates back to last year's budget sessions.

Cloud Ceiling Raised

U.S. Restricts Electra Landings

NEW YORK —(AP)— The federal government Monday limited bad weather landings by the new Electra jet-prop airliners. The safety restrictions —expected to be only temporary — followed last week's East River crash that cost 65 lives.

Nationally, for the time being, the cloud ceilings for such flights were raised 600 feet and visibility requirements doubled. This is intended to give pilots more leeway in landings when they come off instruments and into open weather.

"We're happy to cooperate," said a spokesman for American Airlines, whose Electra Flight 320 crashed into the river Tuesday night when it undershot LaGuardia Field. There were only eight survivors of the disaster.

American is hopeful that the restrictions — which also apply to Electra jet-props flown by Eastern Airlines— will be short-lived. Eastern, in directing compliance with the restrictions, spoke of "a temporary restriction of not more than three days."

The new safety limits were set by the Federal Aviation Agency, the new over-all government regulatory agency for commercial air operations. The FAA said:

"The restrictions are temporary, voluntary on the part of the airlines, and the airlines have accepted the restrictions so that the order is in force now."

The FAA is directing the intensive investigation now under way into the Feb. 3 East River crash. Thus far, there has been no indication as to why the plane plunged into the river in bad weather just short of LaGuardia.

If it eventually is determined that weather was not a factor in the disaster, the new restrictions presumably will be softened or removed. The FAA said they will remain in effect while the probe is going on.

Flight 320, inbound from Chicago, began its landing on instruments, with a ceiling of between 300 and 400 feet and visibility of about two miles. The federally regulated limits

Up, Up and Away!

Rosemary Mudie, the lone woman member of the daring expedition in the balloon "The Small World," the year's most thrilling true adventure story, today brings her first-person narrative to the take-off. This is the first publication of the full account of the perilous venture.

* * *

By ROSEMARY MUDIE

The take-off of our balloon from Tenerife Island in our attempt to span the Atlantic was a nightmare come to life.

We had picked the Canary Islands, which lie about 60 miles off the African coast, as the best launching place on the advice of meteorologists. It was a sheer coincidence that from this same island Columbus set out in 1492 on his first voyage to the New World, but we thought it augured well for our own expedition.

El Globo, as the natives called "The Small World," was the No. 1 topic of conversation among the islanders. From the moment of our first appearance there we had a swarm of well-wishers and helpers around our launching site on Playa de la Tejita beach, near the tiny fishing town of El Medano.

A huge ground sheet had been spread out so that the balloon would not be punctured by sharp bits of debris and then the deflated 46-foot canopy itself was spread on top of it. The net was in place over it and firmly anchored with sand bags. Nearby in an orderly pile were the 690 cylinders of hydrogen gas for the four hour inflation job. Now we were waiting on the weather.

The sea trip down from Southampton was on a ship that obviously was more accustomed to carrying bananas than balloons. We were grateful for the free ride they gave us for though we were dealing with a lighter-than-air vehicle, our equipment weighed 45 tons!

The Hairdresser Does His Share

After all the launching preparations were completed, I decided that there was still one thing for me to do personally — I had my hair done.

It turned out to be quite an experience for the shop became crowded with people who wanted to see the woman who was going on "El Globo." I was told later that some of them were comparing me with Manolete, the Spanish bullfighter, as the arch-symbol of bravery, which was the purest nonsense.

When the hairdresser was finished, he refused to accept any money, indicating that this was his contribution to our flight. Little did I reckon that it would be five weeks before I could have my hair done again and that three of those weeks would be spent at sea in an open boat. I left his shop knowing how a celebrity feels, and I must say that I enjoyed it.

"All right, boys and girls, we're going this time!" Bushy Eiloart said. It was just after one a.m. Thursday morning, Dec. 11, when our now-qualified balloon pilot made this decision.

A

The Sea

We welcomed the decision after the more than a week of parties mixed with the long wait for the right weather. A beacon was lit on a nearby hill to call the volunteer motorists

Florida Official Accepted Printers' Favors

By JOHN BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE—A top employee of the Florida Department of Agriculture said Monday that he has accepted favors from printers, but said they had not influenced his handling of printing bids for the department.

Jack Shoemaker, director of the department's bureau of immigration, which distributes several publications on Florida, said he received some free personal photographic work from Granger Studio and Printing Co. of Tallahassee after the firm got a state job.

And he said he was a guest at several fishing parties aboard the boat of Charles Rosenberg, president of Rose Printing Co., Tallahassee, and other firms.

Shoemaker explained that he asked Granger to submit a bill for personal family photographs made for him but that he never received the bill.

He said the had been invited by the Rose Printing Co. sales manager to go on fishing trips and "considered it personal business since it was on my own time."

Forrest Granger of the printing firm said he couldn't recall any conversation about a bill and considered the matter closed when the estimated 17 dollars worth of photos was delivered. He said his small firm does only a small amount of state business.

Of $319,000 spent by the agriculture department, Rose Co. and affiliates got $100,000 of business. They got $61,000 of the $130,000 worth of printing business supervised by Shoemaker.

Shoemaker handled publication of the agriculture department's 71-page biennial report recently which cost $1.31 a page. Rose got the bid for the color-splashed job.

Shoemaker said he called for the use of color, in spite of added cost, because he felt it would make the report more attractive. He ordered 1,000 copies.

Shoemaker said he heard rumors "that some printers were getting 'together on prices" before submitting bids on state jobs, but he said he didn't hear them identified.

He said he submits a standard bid form to five printers for sealed bids on jobs for the immigration bureau. In many cases, he said, bidding is limited to Tallahassee printers because of deadline and proofreading problems.

The immigration bureau is mainly charged with supplying information on Florida agriculture and promoting various phases of the industry.

A legislative committee headed by Sen. Tom Adams of Orange Park recently asserted that some bureau publications duplicate promotional projects of the Florida Development Commission.

Some out-of-town printers have complained they aren't getting a fair shake from state agencies in the doling out of printing jobs.

Rep. John E. Mathews Jr. of Jacksonville has called for a legislative probe of printing costs and for legislation to put printing under supervision of the state purchasing commission.

Gov. LeRoy Collins has said he will support Mathews and will make another attempt to put printing under central purchasing. His effort to do so in the 1957 legislative session was unsuccessful.

Honduran Rebels Put To Flight

By PAUL P. KENNEDY
The New York Times Service

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — It appeared virtually certain Monday that government forces had retaken the small barracks city of Santa Barbara, about 150 miles northwest of here, after that city had been held by rebel forces over the weekend.

A presidential house spokesman confirmed that late-afternoon messages were picked up over the radio station, Voz del Junco, announcing the recapture. A voice making the announcement claimed to be that of Maj. Alonso Flores Guerra, of the First Battalion here in the capital. The spokesman said the voice had been verified.

N.Y. Times News Service

The message said 130 rebels were captured and that the bulk of the rebel forces were fleeing westward toward Copan, on the Guatemalan border.

The Voz de Junco radio station in Santa Barbara had announced early Monday morning, "The revolution has begun."

Beginning shortly afterward, the Ministry of War began commandeering private commercial airliners and sending troops from Tegucigalpa to the beleaguered city. During the morning, at least one bomber and two P38 fighter planes of the Honduran Air Force took off in a northwesterly direction.

The later message said the bulk of the rebel troops were fleeing westward toward Copan on the Guatemalan border.

Aside from this there was a complete blackout of information. It appeared certain the government itself had not been able by midday to ascertain the true situation in the northwest.

For several weeks a clandestine radio, presumably located in northern Nicaragua near the Honduran border, has been broadcasting warnings that rebel forces under former Honduran Army Col. Armando Velasquez Cerato would soon invade Honduras and overthrow the administration of President Ramon Villeda Morales.

The slogan of the clandestine radio in those days was, "First the mountains of Honduras, then the valleys and then the capital."

Tegucigalpa itself was calm Monday.

respite, but I have full confidence, as I know you have, in my associates in the Department of State."

John Foster Dulles"

Dulles, who will be 71 on Feb. 25, returned to Washington only Monday morning from talks in London, Paris and Bonn on the position of the Western powers should the Soviet Union make good its threat to terminate the four-power occupation agreement on Berlin.

He called at the executive mansion to report to the President on the talks and to inform him of his decision to undergo an operation. About half an hour after the two men had been closeted in the President's oval study on the second floor, Hagerty was called over from the executive office.

Hagerty acknowledged that it was somewhat unusual for a cabinet officer to submit a letter in asking to be away from his desk for a few weeks, but he added:

"Rather than make a mystery of it, we are putting it on the record."

Restrictions On Electra

at the time were a 400 feet ceiling and one mile visibility.

Under the new restrictions, the ceiling must be at least 1,000 feet and visibility two miles. If the limits are less than that, the plane must circle the airport until the weather improves, or go on to another field that meets the limitations.

Eastern Airlines was the first to put the 68-passenger Lockheed Electra into service early this year. American put them on its Chicago-New York run Jan. 23. Eleven other lines have the plane on order.

Lockheed officials said they would have no immediate comment on the FAA order.

whose auto headlamps would be used to illuminate the scene.

The Winds Grew, Foiled Takeoff

"I've just read the latest meteorological report," he continued, "and it shows light to medium northeasterly winds constant for more than 500 miles west. We better take advantage of it."

But to our bitter disappointment it was not to be so. The wind grew in violence and shifted so we had to abandon the plans for takeoff. By now we were all becoming a bit irritable and peevish. This was the second night we had stood by at action stations only to be forced to scrub the takeoff. The tension and lack of sleep were beginning to take their toll of our nerves.

We wouldn't have been so disappointed then if we had been able to be sure that just 24 hours later we would be successfully airborne and off on our adventure. By eight o'clock that evening, we realized with growing excitement that the wind was dropping and if it continued we would have a chance to get off.

Bushy ordered that the balloon be inflated but at nine o'clock the work stopped because the wind had not dropped. We had reached the point where it was dangerous to inflate any more. My husband Colin and I went back to our tent to catch a nap while Bushy and his son Tim elected to sleep in the care of "The Small World."

* * *

Autos' Headlights Showed the Way

At 11 o'clock we were awakened by the whine of the gas cylinders inflating the balloon again. We realized that Wing Commander Ralph Booth, the head of our launching crew and the former captain of the dirigible R-100, had decided we might be able to make it after all.

Even then, as we approached the balloon, they were fixing the load ring, from which our car was suspended, to the neck of the canopy.

Wearing our blue two-piece flying suits, we four climbed aboard the car. The autos, which were formed in a semicircle about us, had turned on their headlamps to give us light to work by for it was a pitch-black night.

Speed would be needed in untying the sandbags from the balloon net as the wind hadn't dropped as much as we had hoped. Unfortunately, our launching crew was a multilingual one made up of our friends from England and the Spanish volunteers from the island.

Bushy was running around the car giving instructions about the launching bags and shouting out in exasperation every once in a while: "Tell them in Spanish somebody, tell them in Spanish!"

Colin and I were methodically lining up the materials that we might have to throw overboard on a strict priority basis while Tim was making the electrical connections and checking the radios.

* * *

Across the Beach, Up, and a Bounce!

The balloon had reached full inflation and Commander Booth shouted: "All right, let them go, let them go." He could scarcely be heard above the excited jabber of Spanish voices. Suddenly the car began to drag across the sand under the prodding of the turbulent gusts of wind.

It bumped, reared and teeter-tottered across the sand as we fought down the panic that was building up within us. I had a horrified feeling that the bottom of the boat was being ground off by the lava-like stones on the black and gold beach.

Though it was difficult for us to maintain our footing, Colin and I were tossing over some of the calcium hydride — with which we had planned to make hydrogen if necessary — and still "The Small World" grated across the sand.

People were running alongside the car and Bushy, ever gallant even under stress, leaned out to kiss his secretary and another girl goodby. Some of the Spaniards were holding on to the rope too long. Now the launchers were stringing out behind us on the sand as we were pulled inexorably toward the sea. Booth was shouting, "More ballast off, Colin, more ballast!"

Suddenly we lurched into the air only to crash down onto the sea and then bounce on the waves several times. I had the horrible feeling that we would never get up.

Car Horns Tooted, People Applauded

It was Bushy who revived our spirits by saying: "Thank God, that's over with. At least we're not going to be torn to pieces on the sand. Now we've got a chance."

It was 1:07 a.m. December 12th, Canary Island time.

Then we began to rise. We were still oscillating and slapping the ocean but each time there was a longer pause between bounces. My final memory was of seeing Peter Elstob, our business representative, silhouetted against the fading car lights. And then I realized that all the car horns were being tooted and that the people on the ground were clapping their hands.

I was suddenly conscious of the intense darkness and wondered if the people could see us.

"Give them a blast on your bugle, Colin," I said, "so that they will know we're all right. They probably think we've gone down in the sea."

Colin did and then Tim had a go at it and all at once we found ourselves laughing.

We had done it! We were headed toward America.

Our wild dream was turning into an incredible adventure. But our jubilation was to be short-lived.

RR Men Seeking Vandals

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
Herald Staff Writer

POMPANO BEACH — Juvenile officers were expected to apprehend late Monday several juveniles who have been throwing switches, and placing obstructions on tracks of the Seaboard Airlines railroad here and in Deerfield Beach.

Detective John Hovey said the culprits had been identified, and the matter turned over to the juvenile bureau.

The youths had been throwing switches on an SAL spur line adjacent to the mainline in the vicinity of Pompano station.

The vandalism had not caused an accident because the incidents were discovered in time by SAL employes.

SAL Special Agent R. I. Zipperer told The Herald, "we don't care if the tampering is on a mainline, or a secondary track — it is equally as serious." He said the incidents had become numerous in the past few days.

At Deerfield Beach a baggage wagon had been moved onto a mainline track last week.

Hovey said "we feel the matter is now under control."

All Agreed: Dulles

Red Blockade Would Find Allies Ready

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said Monday the Western Allies had reached general agreement on steps they would take if Russia imposed a new blockade around Berlin.

Dulles reaffirmed the West's decision to stay in Berlin following his return from Europe. He conferred there with British, French and West German leaders on the Soviet's threat to turn over their section of Berlin to the East German Communists on May 27.

The secretary, who planned to report to President Eisenhower almost immediately, said, "we are willing to talk with the Soviets in a sincere effort to reach agreements" on the German problem. But he said the West was determined to maintain access to Berlin.

"We do not accept the substitution of East Germans for the Soviet Union in its responsibilities toward Berlin and its obligations to us," Dulles said upon his arrival at the Washington airport.

"We are resolved that our position in, and access to, West Berlin shall be preserved. We are in general agreement as to the procedures we shall follow if physical means are invoked to interfere with our rights in this respect."

Dulles did not say what "procedures" the West would follow if the Soviets decided, as they did in 1949, to deny the West access to Berlin. The old German capital is isolated more than 100 miles inside Communist East Germany.

Shortly before Dulles' arrival, Britain announced its complete support for his earlier statement that the West would make no concessions to the Russians without counter proposals from Moscow.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the Russians bore the responsibility for deciding whether there was to be risk of war over Berlin.

Dulles had said as he boarded his plane in Bonn that the Western Allies would be "firm and united for our rights." He did not rule out a conciliatory attitude by the West but excluded any "concessions for which there is no counterpart."

We'll Be Squeezed, Berlin Mayor Says

WASHINGTON —(P)— West Berlin's Mayor Willy Brandt said Monday his city would be "squeezed like a lemon" by the Russians should the West accept the Soviet ultimatum and withdraw its troops.

Brandt and his wife were interviewed on a television program while they had breakfast in West German Ambassador Wilhelm Grewe's residence.

sack with them to carry the loot.

They politely inquired of each victim as they taped him whether or not personal rings were insured.

"Mine aren't," said Irving Getz, a Miami jeweler who said he just happened to be there visiting. So they didn't take his.

Jack M. Wertz, one of the four firm officers, said he thought they wouldn't take his rings if they knew they could be traced. So he told them his were insured. They took them.

It took the bandits about 15 minutes to loot the entire office. They also took several thousand dollars in cash.

As they started out one of two entrances into the hallway, one called sharply to the other, "Stop! Take off those white gloves."

Besides Al Levinson and Wertz, two other company officers robbed were Stanley Bud Levinson, son of Al, and Joseph Bickel.

Bud Levinson estimated the loss at a wholesale price of more than $250,000.

"That's close to half a million retail," he said.

A secretary, usually in the front office, already had left for the day, carrying some packages to be mailed. That room was vacant.

Between the first and second offices of the suite is a small bullet-proof glass peep-hole. The door there, however, was unlocked.

In the third room the two Levinsons were talking to their "customer" when the second gunman barged in.

Directly across the hall from the diamond import firm is the office of the Costa Rican consul general, Dr. Gonozalo J. Gallgos. He wasn't in.

The jewel merchants said it took them about a minute to free themselves after the bandits left. It was too late when they shouted for help.

Police theorize the holdup men possibly walked down one or two flights of stairs, then took an elevator.

They timed their escape durnig the peak of the rush hour. Apparently nobody noticed them leaving.

Heavy Snows Forecast for Central U.S. as Rain Covers the East

Forecasts For Today

INDIAN RIVER, NAPLES AND LAKE OKEECHOBEE AREAS: Fair Tuesday and Tuesday night. High in the low 80's, night low in the mid 60's. Variable winds, mostly southeasterly 5 to 15 mph.

FT. LAUDERDALE, PALM BEACH AND KEYS AREAS: Fair Tuesday and Tuesday night. Chance of a few brief early morning showers. High in the low 80's, night low near 70. Southeasterly winds to 10 to 20 mph.

ARINE — Jacksonville through the Florida Straits: Variable winds at five to 15 miles an hour extreme north and southeasterly winds at 10 to 20 miles an hour central and south portions. Partly cloudy. East Gulf: Southeast and south winds at five to 15 miles an hour. Winds variable, immediate coastal section. Fair weather.

National Summary

In the wake of a disturbance over the Rockies, clearing skies provided sunshine over southern California and parts of Arizona while another surge of moisture overspread the Pacific northwest.

Snow extended from Washington State into the mountains of northern California with rains along the coast, occasionally reaching heavy intensity, along the northern California shoreline.

In addition to the severe ice storm, heavy snows are forecast for parts of the upper plains and Mississippi Valley and locally heavy accumulations are likely in the Colorado mountains.

Warnings include prospects for four inches or more in parts of Nebraska, Iowa and Wisconsin, and heavy snowfall may develop in South Dakota and southern Minnesota.

Mild temperatures with widespread cloudiness and rain will cover broad areas of the east.

Showers or thunderstorms are anticipated from the southern plains eastward into the Mississippi, Ohio and Tennessee Valleys as well as the Gulf states.

Scattered snows remain in the outlook for most of the west and may be locally heavy in the California mountains as rain moves southward through the state.

Researchers Survey Vigorous Growth

PB Population Nearly Doubles in 9 Years

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — The population of Palm Beach County soared from 115,000 to an estimated 226,000 in the last nine years, a Miami research firm said Monday.

A report prepared by Julian Langner Research, Inc., showed the county's population increased 97 per cent during the 1950-1959 period. This compared to a 64 per cent gain for the state as a whole.

The report, prepared in conjunction with an extensive economic study of the Town of Palm Beach, West Palm Beach and Palm Beach County, indicated the plush resort community registered a hefty 87 per cent population gain during the same period.

The addition of 3,400 persons since 1950 brought the total population of the Town of Palm Beach to 7,275.

According to Langner, a third of the permanent residents of Palm Beach control about two-thirds of the income of the area.

Families in this upper third, the report said, have an average annual income after taxes of about $27,000.

Commening on tourism, the report had this to say:

"Tourism in Palm Beach is currently in the throes of a major transition. Palm Beach was, and to some extent still is, the most fashionable and exclusive resort area in the U.S.

"The carriage trade, however, is beginning to leave the area and give their patronage to northern resorts, Europe and the Caribbean."

However, the research organization said it will be many decades, if at all, before Palm Beach becomes a middle-income resort.

It contended that the character of Palm Beach is built-in and that the land is highly built-up. Neither fact favors rapid change, it said.

A factor that contributes to the resort's "built-in character" is the expensive homes. In the first six months of 1958, the average value of new residences constructed in Palm Beach was $52,786.

By comparison, Delray Beach's new homes averaged $25,000; Juno, $19,400; West Palm, $9,800, and Boca Raton, $12,700.

According to Langner, in Coral Gables homes cost an average of $25,700, Miami Beach averaged $27,200, Bal Harbour $42,700 and Lauderdale-by-the-Sea $17,400.

On April 1, 1950, there were 2,605 residential homes in Palm Beach. In the next eight years 1,378 more were added, an increase of 53 per cent.

Because of the value of their homes, residents of Palm Beach assume a sizeable share of the county's tax load. A few years ago they paid 50 per cent of the county's real estate taxes. Even today their share is estimated at 45 per cent.

Welcome Dr. Patient

Beall Gets Go Ahead On Parking

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH—City commissioners Monday decided either to amend the municipal charter or seek special legislation to set up a parking authority and provide for revenue bonds to finance parking facilities.

The board instructed City Attorney Egbert Beall to proceed with the action after a conference of commissioners and Parking Board members earlier in the day agreed on the procedure.

The south side of First St. between Dixie Hwy. and Olive Ave. has been generally approved as a site for downtown parking facilities.

The commission voted unanimously that the city, as a matter of policy, go on record as refusing to pay for home phones for city employes.

The action apparently put an end to a practice of using tax money to pay for the private home phones of some 16 city personnel.

The board threw out a recommendation by City Manager James J. Mott that the privilege be maintained for 12 key employes and voted unanimously to abolish the practice.

It was indicated that the city is ready to kick off its government authorized slum clearance program.

City Engineer John H. Klinck Jr. told the commission he has prepared a preliminary list of areas to be razed.

The commission also:

VOTED a $100 reward leading to the apprehension of vandals who destroyed barbecue pits at Dreher Park, and directed the city attorney to see if a standing reward for the apprehension of vandals could be set up.

TURNED over to the Planning Board an offer from the Golf Commission for property on Maddock St. to be used for a neighborhood playground.

FINALLY ADOPTED an ordinance aimed at stopping the transportation of call girls, and, in another, made it unlawful to trespass or loiter on city owned property.

Sheriff Tells of Vandalism

Bid for Supervisors Granted After Youths Rip Jail Cells

By ROSE ALLEGATO
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — Sixteen juvenile offenders staged a riot in their county jail cells and were brought under control only by a makeshift "drunk tank" treatment, Sheriff John Kirk revealed Monday.

Kirk make these disclosures in an appeal for funds to hire three "adult supervisors" to provide an around-the-clock guard for juvenile prisoners. His request was granted by county commissioners for a 30-day trial period.

Kirk said the latest outbreak of vandalism occurred Sunday night. He termed the vandalism "periodic."

The sheriff said he put an older prison trusty in the cell with the boys in an attempt to curb the vandalism but, "They pretty near lynched him. We had to take him out."

The sheriff also reported he was forced to put the boys in a "drunk tank" type cell "where there isn't anything they can tear up."

He added, "I've been criticized for that. The public don't understand. It's hard to believe what these boys will do."

The juveniles, he said, tear out the light fixtures, punch holes in the walls, tear up the sheets, pillow cases, and even mattresses, stop up the toilets, and turn on the faucets full force, flooding the jail cells.

"They wreck the place," he said.

Kirk and Chief Juvenile Counselor Alton Murray also pointed up the need for a separate detention home for offenders under 17 years of age. They cited Polk County's successful program.

"Polk County has proven," Murray said, "that nearly 60 per cent of the problems are eliminated by adult supervision and a treatment center."

Under the trial plan, the adult supervisors will be posted outside the juvenile cells entering only when trouble begins.

FEC Sued for $700,000 Over Death of Family

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — A Boynton Beach salesman whose wife and child were killed in a car-train wreck only yards away from his store in Boynton sued the Florida East Coast railway for $700,000 Monday.

Roy E. Bach brought three separate actions in Circuit Court against the FEC, two as administrator of the estates of his wife, Marie, and his daughter, Kim, 2. He asked $100,000 in each. In a suit brought for himself, he asked a total of $500,000 for the death of his family.

Bach charged that the northboud train which struck the Bach car at [illegible] E Second Ave. was traveling at an excessive speed and failed to blow its whistles.

He charged the FEC with negligence in not erecting gates or warning signals at the grade crossing. He also contended that high grass and buildings obscured vision at the crossing.

The accident prompted Boynton town officials to voice strong protests with the FEC and to lay down a 25 mph speed limit for trains traveling through Boynton.

The town has since successfully negotiated for gates and warning signals for grade crossings. They are to be installed by spring.

Times Change

Day in Jail's Worth $5 of Prisoner's Fine

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — It's inflation, that's what. City prisoners got a $4 "raise" Monday — the first since 1927.

Every day in jail is now worth $5 instead of $1. "It's fairer," said Municipal Judge John Born.

Under the city's 1927 code, a prisoner got a day in jail for every dollar of a fine meted out to him. For instance, it was $25 or 25 days. Now it's legally $25 or five days.

Actually, Judge Born has been operating on the $5 per day theory since he took over the gavel in Municipal Court three years ago. Monday's City Commission action amending the 1927 code merely makes the law conform to the practice, the judge explained.

The value of the dollar isn't the only thing that's changed since 1927. In those days, city prisoners actually worked out their time — at the rate of $1 a day. Now they sit out at the rate of $5 a day.

Car Kills Boy

WEST PALM BEACH — A 22-months-old boy was struck and killed by an auto in Jupiter 14 miles north of here late Monday, the sheriff's office reported.

The boy was identified as Edward Eugene Schoolie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Schoolie, who live on Center St., where the accident occurred. The sheriff's office said the auto was driven by William Joseph Oakes, 18. No charges were filed pending an inquiry.

Legion at Work

Flags to Fly Over Holiday

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Flags will be flying in downtown West Palm Beach by the dawn's early light of George Washington's birthday.

American Legion Post No. 12, complaining that "the lack of flag display was increasingly noticeable" in West Palm Beach, brought out the Yankee Doodle Dandy in city commissioners.

When all is done, 200 flags will be flapping in a downtown breeze on seven national holidays. By George Washington's birthday, the Legion hopes to have at least 50 up.

Downtown is just the starter. The Legion hopes to bring the red, white, and blue to outlying areas too.

Here's where the city comes in. City personnel will erect the flags, purchased by merchants, and also store them when the holiday is over. But this policy will apply only to Old Glory on display downtown — along a "parade" route.

Watson Cooper, of the American Legion post, outlined the program, pointing out that all the flags will have the 49th star and room for the 50th.

Furthermore, Cooper reported, the City of West Palm Beach will receive the first flag with 49 stars in the state.

The flag proposal prompted Commissioner L. W. Kelloway, who faces re-election this March, to comment: "I certainly believe in flags. We ought to put them up on election days. It's one of the best times.

Commissioner Sylvan Burdick asked, "how about Confederate flags?"

At 'Little Courthouse'

Small Claims Cases To Go to Belle Glade?

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — A survey is under way here to determine if legislation should be sought permitting Small Claims Court to held sessions in the "Little Courthouse" near Belle Glade.

Small Claims Court, headed by Judge F. A. Currie is the smallest but one of the busiest courts in Palm Beach County.

Even if it should develop that the court should hold all its sessions in the courthouse here, it was learned Monday provisions may be made to have small claims cases filed in the Glades Office Bldg.

State Rep. Ralph J. Blank Jr., of this city, said special legislation probably would be required in the event it would be practical to hold Small Claims Court away from the courthouse here.

Blank indicated if the survey shows a large proportion of small claims cases are filed by Everglades residents, he might seek the necessary legislation.

The courthouse in West Palm Beach is some 40 miles away from the heart of the Glades area, and residents there frequently object to the necessity of a long trip into this city to take care of county affairs.

Statutes forbid holding trials away from the "county seat."

Delray to Study Overpass Need

DELRAY BEACH — The Planning Board was authorized by the City Commission Monday to go to work on a comprehensive survey of a proposed western expansion area.

The immediate purpose of the study is to provide city officials with a basis for requesting county, state and federal approval for overpasses or interchanges through State Rd 9 right-of-way.

Solicitor's 3rd Aide Sworn In

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — John H. Evans Monday was sworn in by Criminal Court Judge E. G. Newell as a third assistant county solicitor. He immediately took over his new duties.

Evans, who succeeds Ralph Mabie, represented the county solicitor's office in plea day sessions in Criminal Court. Mabie resigned to go into private law practice after serving a year as an assistant solicitor.

The new assistant is no stranger to the job. He served under a temporary appointment during January, while Solicitor Charles A. Nugent was in Bartow prosecuting the retrial of former Sen. Harry King.

The third assistant post pays $7,000 a year.

There were indications, meantime, that recommendations may be made for the appointment of a fourth assistant solicitor in Nugent's office to handle the rapidly spiraling number of criminal court cases.

It had been anticipated two years ago that legislation would be introduced permitting the solicitor four assistants, but only a third was added under a special act.

Palm Beach County has two Criminal Courts, which maintain almost continuous sessions.

Port Can Sell Land After Vote

By ROSE ALLEGATO
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — Palm Beach County commissioners Monday delcared themselves on controversial Peanut Island.

They want the island in Lake Worth near the Port of Palm Beach for a park and will take steps toward a referendum to decide the issue.

The action came after John Rybovich, boat works man, appealed to the county to settle the fate of Peanut Island "once and for all."

Owned by the Port Of Palm Beach, the little island has long been the subject of controversy. Developers have sought to buy it for a highly exclusive subdivision, and one municipality, Riviera Beach, has attempted to annex it.

The port is empowered to sell the island, subject to referendum. No referendum, however, has even been called.

Rybovich said he feared port commissioners may attempt to get a bill through this spring's State Legislature allowing them to sell the island without a referendum. He said the port would dispose of the island to private industry unless the county took steps.

Lake Lytal, chairman of commissioners, said the county would have to cooperate with the port in an attempt to designate the island a park.

Rybovich pointed to the county's recent efforts to find sites for waterfront parks and said Peanut Island, with a mile of waterfront, was ideal for recreational facilities.

The boat man called for a "permanent and definite policy" and called for a referendum, already provided by law, to decide the fate of the little island.

The island is the site for the Coast Guard and the Air Force rescue team, plus a sand operation.

Lytal said, "Many people have approached us to make a recreational area out of the island."

Commissioner Kenneth Foster moved that Lytal confer with port officials and the Florida Power and Light Co., which owns portions of the island, about developing it into a park.

Commissioners also went on record declaring themselves in favor of using the controversial island for a park.

Only access to the island now is by boat.

Resolution Adopted

Bar Seeks 5th Circuit Judge

By ED PFISTER
Herald Bureau Chief

WEST PALM BEACH—The bar association here Monday took steps to determine if the Palm Beach County division of the 15th Judicial District is entitled to a fifth circuit judge.

Following steps taken by the Broward County Bar, the local organization adopted a resolution asking Gov. LeRoy Collins to set up a special commission.

The commission, through a study of population figures and related data, would decide whether the county is eligible for the fifth judge.

Palm Beach and Broward Counties make up the 15th District. Each obtained a fourth circuit judge in 1957.

Under Florida statutes, a county over a minimum figure, is entitled to a circuit judge for each added 50,000 in population. In 1957, Palm Beach County's population was estimated as about 187,000. Estimates now are over 225,000 population.

The resolution was adopted by the bar here on the basis of a recommendation by its Court Advisory Committee.

Broward County initiated the action to obtain an additional judge early in January and asked the Palm Beach County Bar whether it would participate.

Appointment of a special commission to make such a study is at the discretion of the governor.

Palm Beach Counsy has added two circuit judges since 1955.

The bar also adopted a resolution hiking the fee for attorneys serving as masters in uncontested divorce cases from $15 to $20.

Charles Yates Dies at 88

WEST PALM BEACH—Charles W. Yates, 88, of 700 S. Olive Ave., died in a local hospital Sunday.

Prominent in Masonic circles and in civic organizations, he is survived by his wife, Agnes S.; two sons, Durwood S. and Charles Warren, and two daughters, Mrs. Allen M. Foresam and Mrs. Edward J. Bennett. Mizell-Simon-Faville Funeral Home has charge of arrangements.

Leonard M. Harris

LAKE WORTH — Leonard M. Harris, 41, of 1321 N. M St. died in a West Palm Beach hospital Monday. He came here in 1953 from Wilmington, Del. and is survived by his wife, Ruth; two sons, Robert M. and Everette M.; two daughters, Vera Fay and Charlotte Anne, and one brother and four sisters. The E. Earl Smith and Son Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

WEST PALM BEACH — Milton E. Thompson, 51, of 835 W. Lakeland Rd. died Monday in Pompano Beach. He is survived by his wife, Dorothy; a daughter, Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald; a brother, W. J. Thompson, this city, and a sister, Mrs. Guy Dakos. Mizell-Simon-Faville Funeral Home has charge of arrangements.

Johns: Extend NAACP Probe

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Sen. Charley Johns said Monday he will ask the Legislature to extend the life of his investigating committee so it can complete a probe into possible Communist infiltration of the NAACP.

Johns, of Starke, said it does not appear the committee will have a chance to finish the investigation before the Legislature convenes April 7 because of numerous court suits testing its powers.

Unless extended another two years, the Johns committee dies June 30.

"I think the NAACP is trying to tire us out in court," Johns declared, "but they are not going to do it."

Committee hearings in Miami were halted when several witnesses refused to testify or produce NAACP records. The Supreme Court has twice ruled on suits challenging the committee's powers, and the NAACP now has taken the fight to federal district court in Miami.

The Supreme Court upheld legality of the committee and its authority to bring contempt proceedings against witnesses who refuse to testify.

In another ruling, the court said the NAACP cannot be required to turn over its rank and file membership rolls, but the committee has a right to know if suspected Communists are members of the race organization and NAACP officials can be required to give this information under oath.

The court said the Legislature has the right to explore the membership of any organization suspected of being the victim of surreptitious infiltration by subversives and witnesses must answer any question pertinent to this inquiry.

Johns said the committee was all set to resume public hearings in Miami when suit was filed before Federal Judge Emmett Choate.

Johns said he has nothing to report on the committee's investigation into alleged homosexuality at the University of Florida. He said the committee has not yet filed a report with University President J. Wayne Reitz.

The senator said the committee will meet in the near future to discuss recommendations it will make to the 1959 Legislature, but no date or location has been set.

Liberties Group Hits Morals Probe

The Florida Civil Liberties Union Monday protested investigation of homosexuals at the University of Florida by a legislative committee.

In a long, detailed letter to Senator Charley Johns, chairman of the investigating committee, the Civil Liberties Union asked the investigation be turned over to university officials.

The protest letter said the Civil Liberties Union looks upon the committee's investigation as a "usurpation of a judicial function."

Simon said the group feels "violators of our laws against nature should be tried in a court of law . . . and not by a legislative investigating committee."

A group of university professors also has registered a protest with the committee, Simon said.

Mental Problems Mounting

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — Mental health is such an acute problem in Florida today hundreds of millions of dollars would be necessary for treatment, a health official said Monday.

Dr. Wayne Yeager, director of the Bureau of Mental Health of the State Board of Health, told the annual conference of county health officers the State Hospital at Chattahoochee cares for 10,000 patients yearly and that there has been a gain of 3,146 since 1952.

But he said on a basis of Florida's estimated 4,450,000 population now, using a conservative 1 per cent as needing treatment, there are 44,500 who have mental and emotional illness.

He said it would cost 12 million dollars a year to maintain these patients, but that in addition facilities to take care of them would cost over 330 million dollars.

On top of all this, Dr. Yeager said it would cost 100 million dollars to build centers to take care of the estimated 1,500 persons who need yearly treatment for alcoholism in Florida.

The problem of caring for mentally retarded children is over and above this and "is almost overwhelming," he said.

Dr. Yeager said "new programs are needed but a great deal can be accomplished immediately if old programs are sharpened and reoriented to mental health."

RED CROSS drive chairman for 1959 in Martin County is Henry Kindred, merchant and school board member. The annual kickoff dinner for the drive will be held March 2 at Stuart. The drive has a goal of $9,000.

UF Enrolls 2nd Negro As Student

GAINESVILLE — (UPI) — Mrs. Daphne Duval, 53-year-old teacher, became the second Negro to enroll in the University of Florida graduate school Monday.

Mrs. Duval, who teaches at the Negro high school here, will take a single graduate course, "professional service," which meets one evening a week.

The university announced last week she had qualified for entrance in the college of education graduate school. She registered for the course by mail and meets her first class tonight.

George Starke Jr., law student from Sanford-Orlando, was the first Negro to enroll after a U.S. court order in June to desegregate the graduate schools.

Starke satisfactorily completed his first semester work and is now beginning his second semester. Not a single incident was reported after his enrollment, and college officials said they did not expect any now.

2 Missile Workers Missing

Herald Bureau

CAPE CANAVERAL — Two employes of an island missile tracking station have been missing since their boat capsized Sunday off Carter Cay in the Bahamas, the Air Force said Monday.

They were presumed dead Monday, but an air and sea search was continuing. Search planes found the boat wrecked on a reef early Monday.

A third passenger in the 18-foot pleasure boat was safe.

The man, Hyman Lesnick, a radio tower maintenance man, swam ashore for help leaving the other two clinging to the overturned boat.

Lesnick reached Carter Cay after a five-hour swim, the Air Force said.

The two missing men were identified as Floyd J. King, 51, of Vero Beach, a mechanic, and Robert Woolard, 32, of Rockingham, N.C., a cook.

The three are employed by Pan American World Airways — prime air force contractor on the Atlantic missile range — at the missile tracking station on Grand Bahama Island.

They were on a weekend fishing outing when their boat capsized at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Legislature To Fet Yates

MELBOURNE — The Florida Legislature is arranging a Gen. Yates Day — honoring Maj. Gen. Donald N. Yates, Air Force Missile Test Center commander — which will be during the 1959 session.

Brevard Rep. James H. Pritt said Gen. and Mrs. Yates will be taken to the rostrum and introduced to the House of Representatives, and then go to the floor of the Senate for an introduction.

★ LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE TO DEALERS
OFFICE OF THE FLORIDA STATE TURNPIKE AUTHORITY
"SUNSHINE STATE PARKWAY"
Fort Lauderdale, Florida
February 6, 1959

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the Florida State Turnpike Authority at its office, 5101 Northwest Tenth Street, McArthur Interchange, Fort Lauderdale, Florida, until 10:30 o'clock A.M. Eastern Standard Time, on the 26th day of February, 1959, for the sale of one years supply (200,000 gallons, more or less) of premium brand gasoline to the Florida State Turnpike Authority, to be delivered by transport truck by the successful bidder to Stuart Interchange, West Palm Beach Interchange, Pompano Beach Interchange, and McArthur Interchange in minimum 6,000 gallon loads or deliveries.

Bid blanks will be furnished to dealers upon application to the Florida State Turnpike Authority, Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Bids will not be recognized unless submitted on the bid blanks.

Each bid shall contain the full name of every person or company interested in it and shall be accompanied by a sufficient bond, or certified check on a solvent bank in an amount equal to 5% of the selling price bid on an estimated one years supply of 200,000 gallons, that if the bid is accepted a contract will be entered into and the performance of its proposal secured.

The Authority may reject any and all bids.

A bond with good and sufficient surety as shall be approved by the Authority shall be required of the successful bidder contractor in an amount equal to one hundred per cent of the contract price, conditioned upon the faithful performance of the contract.
